After last week's seventh week of play, two teams — Cambridge in Class AA and Sandstone in Class C have already clinched state playoff berths. Both are certain of winning their respective conferences. In addition to those two schools, many other schools have garnered spots in those upcoming qualifying games.

Class AA

Cambridge became the first of teams to qualify for this year's state class AA playoffs. The Central Lakes Conference champion Blue Jackets are 7-0 and now await to learn of their first round state playoff foe, the champion of the North Suburban Conference — Columbia Heights, Coon Rapids or Irondale. Champions of the other seven conferences within Class AA will be crowned either this week or next week. Other undefeated teams in addition to Cambridge are Richfield and Stillwater.

Class A

Two Harbors is the first of 12 teams to qualify for berths in Class A post-season games. Unbeaten in seven games, the Agates are one of seven teams that are undefeated in Class A. Others are Albany, Paynesville, Princeton, St. Peter, Hutchinson, Brooklyn Center and Mahtomedi. Victories this week by Hutchinson and Princeton would put those teams in post-season brackets. Other schools in this class hoping to gain post-season berths this week with wins include Apple Valley, Rochester Lourdes, Redwood Falls and Montevideo.

Class B

Blackduck and Ortonville have clinched post-season berths in Class B where there are still nine unbeaten teams. Two key games this week involve unbeaten teams. Winthrop (7-0), will play at Gaylord (7-0) for the Tomahawk Conference title and Blooming Prairie (7-0) will venture to Janesville (7-0) for the first place spot in the Gopher Conference. The five other undefeated teams are Holdingford, Belle Plaine, Winona Cotter, Mahnomen and Fertile-Beltrami.

Class C

Sandstone is the first of the Class C teams to qualify for a state playoff spot. Teams having clinched berths in qualifying games include Bird Island-Lake Lillian and Lewiston. A key game this week pits Morristown (7-0) at Randolph (7-0) for top honors in the Centennial Conference. Undefeated teams in addition to Sandstone, Bird Island-Lake Lillian, Lewiston, Morristown, and Randolph are Mountain Lake, Battle Lake, Osakis, Tyler and Stephen.

Nine-Man

Kelliher, Akeley, Beardsley, Mt. St. Benedict of Crookston and Lake Park have clinched post-season berths in the nine-man classification, which includes 100 teams. A game many will be watching in West Central Minnesota this week is the contest between Chokio-Alberta and Graceville, which the latter school will host. The victor will gain sole possession of first place in the Pheasant Conference. Eight teams are undefeated in this class. In addition to Kelliher, Akeley and Beardsley, unbeatens are Alden-Conger, Gonvick-Trail, Toivola-Meadowlands Brewster and Welcome.

Bobcats Eliminate Skippers From North Tri County Title Picture

Oklee spoiled the North Tri County Conference championship hopes of Middle River Tuesday as the Bobcats eliminated the Skippers from the title chase with a 26-6 decision in a nine-man high school football game played at Oklee.

The win improved Oklee's record to 5-3 while dropping Middle River to 6-2. The Skippers were hoping to combine season-ending wins over Oklee and Clearbrook with a McIntosh-Winger win over unbeaten Gonvick in the final week of the regular season to lay claim to a share of the North Tri County Conference crown.

Middle River appeared headed toward that goal when Delay Ness turned a quarterback option into a 40-yard touchdown run on the Skippers' first offensive series of the game.

But that was all the offense the error-plagued visitors could muster. "We played well defensively," mentioned Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "Our linebackers — Wes Magnell, Pat Paquin and Mike Kirkpatrick — did a good job for us. In fact, everybody played well."

John Dulka, who rushed for 115 yards on 13 carries, gave Oklee a 6-6 tie at halftime when he scored on a 12-yard second quarter run.

That tie was broken as soon as the second half started as Middle River fumbled away the first snap of the third quarter at the Skippers' 20-yard line. Dulka scored and it was quickly a 12-6 ball game.

"That was the turning point," said Svaren about the fumble and the ensuing touchdown. "That fired us up."

Touchdowns by Magnell and Kirkpatrick completed the scoring as the Bobcats capitalized on several Middle River mistakes to keep the Skippers off the scoreboard.

"They made a couple of mistakes and we were able to come up with the interception or fumble recovery when we needed it," noted Svaren.

Middle River's come-back hopes were handicapped by the loss of Scott McKeever who was taken out of the game after receiving a hard hit near the end of the first half.

Both teams will close out their seasons with Tuesday games next week when Oklee hosts Grygla and Middle River entertains Clearbrook.

Erskine 50
Goodridge 26

Erskine quarterback Jerry Lindseth scored three touchdowns, passed for two more and completed three two-point conversion passes that added up to 30 points Tuesday in a 50-26 North Tri County Conference win at Goodridge.

Carroll Bishop and Rory Haugen both scored twice for the Huskies who led 26-22 before surrendering a one-yard Lindseth touchdown and a Gary Carlson conversion run in the final two minutes of the third quarter.

"That's when our defense totally died," reported Goodridge assistant coach Ed Kees.

Erskine pulled away with three fourth quarter touchdowns to hand the Huskies their seventh loss in eight games.

"Our offense scored the most points we have all year, but our defense let us down," said Kees.

Goodridge closes out its 1979 season at Mentor Tuesday.

Plummer 28
Grygla 0

Plummer, after losing four straight games to start the year, collected its third win in four weeks Tuesday by posting a 28-0 shutout at Grygla.

"We played very well," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "You never know how the kids are going to react when you play those Tuesday games; they're still thinking about last Friday's game and they might be sore yet. But our defense played well the whole game."

Plummer produced 14 points in both the first and second quarter for the victory.

A drive from the Plummer 28 ended up with quarterback Brad Rosten going in from the Grygla two-yard line to start the scoring.

Rosten's 20-yard pass to Kevin Malwitz set up a four-yard Alan Mattison touchdown run for a 14-0 lead.

Facing a fourth-and-goal situation in the second quarter, Rosten hit Jon Swanson with an eight-yard touchdown pass.

Rosten, who completed five of ten pass attempts for 70 yards, passed 37 yards to Clifton Franklin for the final touchdown.

Plummer finished with 373 yards on offense. Gustafson led the 247-yard ground game with 106 yards on 19 carries, with Mattison adding 73.

Plummer passers completed eight of 18 attempts for 126 yards, with Malwitz catching four passes for 69 yards.

Swanson, a defensive end, and Malwitz, a linebacker, were both credited with 11 solo tackles.

Plummer hosts Erskine Tuesday in a 7:30 p.m. parent's night game to close out the season.

Winner Assured Of At Least A Title Tie . . .

Bemidji, Crookston Play For NWAC Title Friday

Northwest Athletic Conference football title will be on the line Friday when Bemidji plays at Crookston. The winner will be assured of at least a co-championship this fall, depending upon the fortunes of Thief River Falls over the final two weeks of the 1979 season. The Prowlers, who play at East Grand Forks tonight (Wednesday), can gain a title tie with wins over the Green Wave and Crookston the following week.

Fergus Falls, playing just an eight-game schedule, has an open date this week.

Bemidji eliminated East Grand Forks from the NWAC race with a 33-8 decision Friday when Dale Leonard rushed for 252 yards on just 18 carries as part of a 601-yard offensive assault by the Lumberjacks who also got a 156-yard night out of fullback Nelson Rotto.

Fergus Falls, already out of the title picture, kept Thief River Falls from having a chance at winning an out-right NWAC pennant with a 28-22 win as two Darwin Boe touchdowns staked the Otters to a 28-8 lead that was narrowed in the final minute by a Thief River Falls passing attack.

Crookston challenged St. Peter, ranked No. 2 in the Class A Associated Press power poll, before losing 20-15. Steve Johnson, Brent Weiss and Mark Berg rushed for 72, 79 and 89 yards, respectively, as the Prirated produced a 15-6 halftime lead.

+ Leonard's performance against East Grand Forks raised his NWAC rushing figures to 497 yards in three games. He has 901 yards in seven games overall. Roto has 257 yards in the NWAC and 581 for the year.

+ Leonard is also the conference scoring leader with 30 points in the NWAC and 78 points overall. Craig Erhart of Bemidji and Berg have 14 points apiece to rank second in the NWAC. Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks is a distant second in the overall scoring charts with 48 points.

+ Phil Hatchner of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in passing yardage with an 8-for-39 performance netting 177 yards. John Herath of Bemidji is 9-for-26 for 140 yards. In all games, Hatchner is 19-for-64 for 365 yards and Jeff Ulrich of Thief River Falls is 13-for-41 for 297 yards.

+ Rob Egersdorf of Bemidji leads the NWAC with six pass receptions, good for 81 yards. John Dillon of Thief River Falls and Alan Stricker of Fergus Falls have four catches each for 97 and 93 yards, respectively. Egersdorf has caught nine passes overall for 100 yards. Stricker has seven catches for 126 yards.

+Tom Bjorkman of Thief River Falls is the leading punter in the NWAC, averaging 36.2 yards on three punts. Boe has a 32.8-yard average on 22 punts in all games, with Bjorkman carrying a 32.2-yard average on 25 punts.

+ Erhart leads the NWAC in punt return yardage, returning six for 57 yards. In all games, Leonard is tops with 142 yards on seven returns, a 20.3-yard average. Erhart has 99 yards on nine returns.

+ Erhart is the NWAC leader in kickoff return hardage, returning seven kicks for 142 yards and a 20.3-yard average. Overall, Swanberg leads with 359 yards on 12 returns for a 29.9-yard average.

+ Leonard is the NWAC leader in individual offense with 1,174 yards on rushing, passing, receiving and return totals in seven games. Erhart has 861 yards and Bill Jury of Thief River Falls has 785.

+ Bemidji is the NWAC offensive leader, averaging 363 yards over a seven-game schedule. Thief River Falls averages 242.3 yards, East Grand Forks 231, Crookston 230.6 and Fergus Falls 203.

+ Bemidji is also the defensive leader, giving up 182 yards per game, followed by Thief River Falls 195, Crookston 229.1, Fergus Falls 236.7 and East Grand Forks 260.6.

Procedure Different In Juvenile Court

(Editor's Note: The following is prepared by the court information office of the Minnesota supreme court.)

The court setting probably doesn't change. The same courtroom may be used, and as often as not, it's the same judge that's presiding. In fact, on the surface nothing seems different in juvenile court, except perhaps the youngness in the face of the person appearing before the court.

But, there's something else very different in juvenile court. The rules of court, the standards that govern juvenile court activities, are not the same as in regular court. In this sense, juvenile court is a world unto itself.

The proceedings in juvenile court are sometimes called "quasi-criminal," since they are neither entirely like criminal nor like civil cases. Turn-of-the century reform movements established the unique way for handling children, in the belief that young people should be treated and rehabilitated, rather than imprisoned at a tender age, as they once were. Further developments have been enacted through the years.

Any person under the age of 18 who is charged with breaking the law must be brought to juvenile court. Also brought there are cases in which a family is alleged to have neglected or failed to properly care for a child, known as a dependency and neglect action.

A youth who supposedly breaks the law is charged in juvenile court with juvenile delinquency — a catch-all term that covers many activities. There were approximately 30,000 hearings on juvenile delinquency charges in Minnesota in 1978. While an adult who commits a crime, for example an assault, is charged with the crime, a minor is charged with juvenile delinquency based on the commission of that act. If it is proven that the youth committed the assault, he or she can be declared a juvenile delinquent and sentenced to a juvenile institution.

Juveniles can also be charged with delinquency for doing something that is not illegal for an adult to do — staying out past curfew, running away from home, not attending school. These acts, called "status offenses," are controversial and there is debate as to how the law should handle such situations. Some legislators, for example, favor abolishing status offenses; others call for stiffer penalties.

Juvenile court rules differ in other fundamental ways. Youths have some of the rights of an adult in court, but not all. A juvenile has the right to an attorney and the right to have charges against him or her proven beyond a reasonable doubt, the same heavy standard as in adult criminal cases.

Like adults, youths have the right not to be forced to make statements to the police — "the right to remain silent" — and the right not to be required to testify in their own cases. And, while these rights can be waived or relinquished by the juvenile, they cannot be waived by the child's parents on the child's behalf.

But, somewhere along the road to adulthood, these rights end. Some rights a person over 18 years would have, a juveniles does not. A juvenile, for example, can be held in an institution without any right to bail. Also, juveniles are not entitled to have juries decide their cases. Judges or referees handle these matters.

Other special rules apply to juvenile cases. Their names, for example, are not made public. Juvenile offenses are wiped off the slate upon adulthood to give the youth a chance to lead a productive life without a "record." Juveniles are not sent to prison if found delinquent, but can be sent to juvenile institutions, industrial schools, halfway homes, foster care, or placed in special counselling treatment.

Within the framework of the juvenile system fall some youths who don't fit. If a judge finds that a juvenile over 14 years of age cannot be treated through the juvenile system, the youth could be "certified" and transferred to an adult court to be handled through the regular criminal justice system.

Perhaps more than any other area of law, the juvenile court system is under continual scrutiny in modern times. An American bar association meeting recently made recommendations for reform of the juvenile system, while in Minnesota, a juvenile justice study commission appointed by the supreme court has undertaken the task of analyzing the need for change in the system.

God's Eternal Plan

God gives us each the gift of life
To cherish from our birth,
He gives us friends and those we love
To share our days on earth.
He watches us with loving care
And takes us by the hand,
He blesses us with countless joys
And guides the lives we've planned.
Then when our work on earth is done
He calls us to his side
To live with Him in happiness
Where peace and love abide.

A sincere thank you to all who comforted us during the loss of our young son, brother and uncle, Brady Green. God be with you all.

CAN YOU RECOGNIZE A QUALITY CARPET?

Clearly visible signs of quality carpet include good color and design, but there are equally—if not more—important clues that you may overlook.

To pinpoint quality, follow these tips from the experts at Bigelow:

1. Take the carpet in your hands and feel it. The level-surfaced, cut-pile carpet with a velvety feeling is called a "plush"—the most elegant of all. Bend a sample back and forth and look into the pile.

2. Look for pile height and density. Pile density is how close together yarn strands are. Highly dense yarns resist wear, soil and crushing under heavy traffic. A deep pile, the most luxurious, usually lasts longer than a short pile.

3. Check the ply. "Ply" refers to the number of strands used to make the yarn. The more strands a manufacturer packs into an inch, the better the carpet wears.

4. Check the manufacturer's brand name. Since his name is his promise that the carpet will live up to his reputation, it's wise to buy only from an established manufacturer. A reputable dealer is important, too.

Your sense of touch can tell you a lot about carpet.

If paying for quality is a problem, you may want to make monthly installments. Many dealers are delighted to arrange payments that will fit easily into your budget—and give you the freedom to choose carpet that will give you more service and beauty.

Remember that a bargain is a bargain only if you're getting a percentage off and not just cheap carpet. At $5 a square yard, a rug that lasts two years costs you $2.50 a yard per year, but at $10 a square yard, carpet that last 10 years cost you only $1 a yard per year.

For additional hints on selecting carpet, send 25 cents for the booklet "Everything You've Always Wanted To Know About Carpet" to Bigelow-Sanford, Inc., Dept. of Consumer Information, P.O. Box 3089, Greenville, S.C. 29602.

Glowing Years

It was their Golden Anniversary. And, as Granddad placed his arm around Grandmother he said, "The years have been good to us."

"You have been good to the years," someone replied.

What a perfect description of their marriage. They cherished each day and filled it with love. They faced every week as a new adventure in useful living. They counted the months with patience and crowned them with firm commitment. They made the years glow with their confident trust in God.

Thus they lighted the hearth-fires of faith in the lives of their children and grandchildren.

Long after our grandparents are gone, the years will still glow with the faith they kindled in a dozen other hearts.

Message Clear Enough?

Following editorial is from the Baudette Region:

The resounding defeat of the state building code this week in Koochiching County was but one of a number of sound thrashings that issue has taken during the past two months.

In fact, all ten counties that voted on the issue since mid-August have gone against it, and the defeats have been far from squeakers. Mahnomen County's 937-176 vote against the code has thus far been the closest vote. In most other areas, the margins have been 20-1 against the issue, or more.

Perhaps the message may get through to our metropolitan-dominated Minnesota Legislature.

The state code was passed in 1977 with the highest of motives. Members of the Legislature saw what they perceived to be a problem with less than honest construction firms foisting inadequately built homes into people. As well, inadequately constructed buildings presented a safety hazard to surrounding properties where buildings are concentrated as in a metropolitan area.

But somehow, the solution that the Legislature selected was worse than the problem itself. The standards set by the code may have been basic ones for a metropolitan area, where property values are far higher than they usually are in rural areas. But those standards, when applied to a sparsely populated area such as Koochiching County, tended to increase the cost of basic home construction astronomically.

In a case such as this, there is really little comparison between the heavily populated metropolitan area and outstate Minnesota. Living standards — and that includes housing — are generally lower in northern Minnesota than they are in, for example, Wayzata. What might be considered basic housing in Minneapolis, St. Paul or their suburbs usually rated as above average in rural areas. A great number of homes in outstate areas are built board by board, nail by nail, by those who plan to live in them. The graded lumber requirement included in the state building code, as one instance, would have precluded that approach, or at least made it extremely expensive.

The state building code is but one of a series of laws and regulations handed down from both the state and federal levels where there is no distinction made between metropolitan and rural areas. Federal and state regulators have generally been unable or unwilling to recognize the economic and social differences that exist between heavily populated, usually rich areas and sparsely populated, usually poorer rural communities.

The state building code just happens to be one of the very few regulations that was made optional, where outstate people had a chance to express their views at the ballot box.

The results thus far should tell the Minnesota Legislature something.

Discipline Needs Cooperation

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Cigarette smoking is rated by St. Cloud school administrators as one of the biggest discipline problems in area schools. A considerable number of students are suspended or otherwise disciplined for the offense each year.

School administrators around the state say they will crack down on student smoking. But St. Cloud school officials say they have always had a tough anti-smoking policy and plan to keep applying pressure on students who practice the habit during school.

Also high on the discipline problems list is drug abuse and class cutting, both major problems for local schools, and both problems which are very difficult to solve at school.

Many observers of the educational scene believe student smoking is only symbolic of much greater discipline problems. Although uncommon in St. Cloud, teachers and administrators in many schools are victims of violent personal attacks, property destruction and continued verbal abuse. Smoking of course does not cause such problems, but is representative of student rebellion against school authority.

Events which occur in the classroom often result in problems after school hours, and problems originating outside school also are carried over into the classroom. A school official may discipline a student in the morning for example, and have his property damaged that evening as a result. Or, a student may be allowed to smoke at home and then carry his habit to school where he applies pressure on his peers to do likewise.

Such problems are difficult for school officials to handle because the problem is not exclusively based at school. Whatever action is taken at school can be only partially successful.

But that doesn't mean problems of this type, such as smoking, are beyond solutions. In fact, we find the solutions quite simple, given one important first step — very close cooperation between parents and school officials.

Contrary to what some parents seem to believe, a parent's responsibility for the behavior of his children does not end when the first school bell sounds each morning. It covers every minute of every day. And if parents, teachers and administrators work together, all forms of school discipline problems can be drastically reduced.

Double Standard

Following editorial is from the Pope County Tribune:

One reason that some people have become disillusioned with our system of government is there appears to be at times a double standard of justice.

And to find glaring examples of that double standard of justice you have to look no further than the congress of the United States.

Congressman Clarence Diggs of Michigan was found guilty by his peers in the house of misappropriation of government funds. The result? Diggs is still serving in the house at his same salary, less what he had to pay back, and still retains his seniority.

Powerful U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia was officially "denounced" by the Senate Ethics committee for financial misconduct.

The committee called Talmadge's conduct "reprehensible" and guilty of "gross neglect" of his duty to faithfully and carefully administer the affairs of his office," and that his actions in handling government funds "tends to bring the senate into dishonor, disrepute and is hereby denounced."

Pretty strong words, but the upshot of the entire affair is that the Talmadge case will now go to the full senate, which will decide whether to accept the committee's recommendation for penalty. The pelanty, which is that he must pay back a relatively small amount, also includes no loss of seniority or privilege.

The senate is called the "world's most exclusive club" and the penalty accorded Talmadge is proof positive that the senate believes in strong rhetoric, but in reality does little or nothing to really punish the offender.

Talmadge had the audacity to find the committee's decision gratifying, saying, "I think that vindicates me completely of whether I knew of these errors in my office." He said that after the committee voted not to censure him.

Congressmen found guilty of misconduct such as Talmadge and Diggs were should be expelled from office, and a special election called to fill the vacancy. Both Diggs and Talmadge violated their oaths of office, and are no longer entitled to hold their high offices.

But the congress of the United States doesn't operate that way. It maintains a double standard of justice, and as long as they persist in such conduct, people will continue to be disillusioned not only by congress per se but about our entire system of ethics in government.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The first grader came home from his first day at school, burst through the door and asked his mother, "What's sex?" Properly prepared for the inevitable question, Mom dug out the child guidance book and provided a lengthy explanation. "Now," she sighed, "do you have any questions?" "Yeah," the somewhat bewildered youngster said, digging a registration form out of his pocket, "how am I gonna get all that in this little square?"

The realtor was showing a prospective buyer an Arkansas farm. In a strip of bottomland the prospect noticed mud six feet up on the tree trunks. "Does this land flood?" he asked. "Never," assured the realtor. "Then how did the mud get on the tree," the prospect asked. "Oh, that," the salesman replied. "That's from the hogs rubbing themselves. Now let's look at the rest of the farm." "Forget the rest of the farm," the buyer said. "I'd rather you show me those hogs!"

Some like it cold, some like it hot,
Some freeze while others smother,
And by some fiendish, fatal plot . . .
They marry one another.

Lund named to succeed him. — Morris Bye, president of the Northern Minnesota Education Association, presided at its convention in this city.

1939 — 40 YEARS AGO

Eighty NYA youths, provided under a federal program, were at work in the recently acquired park area adjoining highway 32 in the southwest part of the city. — Carl R. Anderson of Sanders was elected Pennington county AAA chairman, succeeding Hans Anton. — Phil Larson, manager of the Rex Cafe, announced that the cafe would shortly occupy the L.H. Chris Rinkel was named chairman of the Community Chest campaign for 1950. — The TRF school board was authorized by the state department of education to open an area vocational school here, with classes starting Nov. 1. — U.S. Senator Paul Douglass of Illinois will address the convention of the Northern Minnesota Education Association here Oct. 20. — The Elks lodge was granted a permit to remodel its quarters at an estimated cost of $25,000.

1959 — 20 YEARS AGO

A chart was published in the Times telling the story of population growth in TRF from the time in 1890 when the Inland settlement had an official population of 191. By the year 1900, following the introduction of the Great Northern and Soo Line railways, the population had grown to 1,853. It dropped by almost a thousand during the depression in the 1920's but sprang up again in the mid-thirties and has continued to grow since, with an estimated population for 1960 set at 8,000. — Members of the First Baptist church will hold a cornerstone ceremony this Sunday. — Max Jensen is the latest candidate to file for council post from the third ward.

Lannoye, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Stigen of TRF, died Oct. 10 in Vietnam.

Parents Prime Example For Non-Smoking

In a statewide effort to raise a generation of non-smokers, the Minnesota lung Christmas seal association is intensifying its work this fall to reach as many children as possible in Minnesota before they get hooked on a habit that can cripple their lungs and lives.

"Parents are the prime example for their children. By kicking the cigarette habit, mothers and fathers can help start off a smoke-free generation of children," says R. Paul Marvin, Ph.D., lung association president.

"This state (and the nation as a whole) is now suffering the tragic health consequences resulting from the decisions of people to smoke. Approximately 5,000 Minnesotans die prematurely each year from smoking-related causes. Many more develop diseases and disabilities. Emotional and physical hurt is incalculable," he adds.

Programs in Minnesota schools are a central part of the lung association's commitment to creating a non-smoking generation. Kindergarten through third grade boys and girls will benefit this fall from a comprehensive health curriculum sponsored by the lung association. "We're trying to teach children as early as we can that staying healthy is one of their responsibilities, not something that just happens by itself," says Dr. Marvin.

Also this fall, the Minnesota lung association will inaugurate a smoking deterrence program (entitled "Butt Out!") in sixty elementary schools which utilizes creative dramatic performances by professional actors to impact on young audiences.

Dr. Marvin emphasizes, "Our attempts to foster development of a smoke-free generation need the support of parents, teachers, and others who are influential models for children. It's a matter of life and breath."

Seek Repeal Of Davis-Bacon Project Act

Many taxpayers have learned to grin and bear it whenever they run across a news item reporting on Sen. William Proxmire's golden fleece awards. These have been awarded for some time to bureaucrats responsible for wasteful expenditure of taxpayers' money.

The idea has been borrowed by two other members of Congress who think an occasional brickbat may help repeal a highly inflationary federal law known as the Davis-Bacon act. It regulates wages on federally funded construction projects and, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, inflates construction costs — both private and public — by almost $3 billion yearly.

New award is called "The Davis-Bacon Fatback Award," and the first one was awarded to labor secretary Ray Marshall to memorialize a cost overrun of almost $300,000 on a public works project in Oklahoma.

According to Rep. Tom Hagedorn of Minnesota who wants to repeal the act, the contractor for a sewer and pumping station and retention pond to serve the city of Oklahoma City figures wage rates fixed under the Davis-Bacon act as administered by Marshall's department raised the cost from $3.5 million to $4.3 million — a 24 per cent boost overall.

"Of that $820,900 difference, the contractor attributed $214,500 directly to the increase in wage rates, a 63 per cent rise," Hagedorn said. "The remainder of the $820,900 difference was assessed to increased costs of materials and other expenses arising from construction delays while Oklahoma City was appealing the Davis-Bacon rates."

Rep. Hagedorn and John Erlenborn of Illinois are cosponsors of the new award.

Hagedorn explained the origin of the fanciful "fatback" title. "When I worked on a farm in Minnesota," he said, "I knew one kind of bacon — the type you get from a trim, fat-free pig. When I came to Washington, I soon learned about another type of bacon that is not so fat free."

Substitute Fuel For Autos Has Many Problems

Current gasoline situation has resulted in increased interest in natural gas and propane as alternative fuels for automobiles, says the Automotive Information council (AIC).

Propane, a liquid petroleum gas, is in world-wide surplus and sells for considerably less than gasoline. Most abundant supply of natural gas comes from underground wells, which are non-renewable, but gas can also be derived from an almost endless supply of waste materials such as garbage. City of Modesto in California runs many of its fleet vehicles on gas produced from its sewage treatment plant.

Both fuels burn clean and for this reason lead to long engine life with fewer emissions.

However, industry experts don't see either propane or natural gas becoming the immediate answer to our fuel problems. Any surplus of propane could disappear if sizeable numbers of vehicles were converted. Since there are only 25,000 propane dealers in the U.S., as compared to 171,000 gas stations, and these are usually located in rural areas, finding a place to fill-up isn't an easy task. Natural-gas refueling stations are now generally only available to government and privately owned fleets.

Propane conversions can cost anywhere from $1,000 to $1,800. Natural gas conversions have not experienced the same popularity by private individual car owners since the initial cost of the conversions and the need for a base refueling station, priced at over $40,000, make the natural gas conversions cost-effective only for large fleets at this time.

Both fuels contain less energy than a gallon equivalent of gasoline, so there is less fuel mileage than with gasoline. Acceleration is also slower than with a gasoline-powered vehicle. Breakdowns on the road can also cause problems because few mechanics are familiar with the systems.

Improper installations can also be very dangerous. Without proper venting the driver risks asphyxiation or explosion. For this reason insurance companies may ask that the vehicle be certified before insuring.

Vaccination Of Pets Important Aspect In Care

by Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

During my years as a veterinarian, I've explained to many a pet owner why cats and dogs should be vaccinated, and I feel it's a point well worth repeating.

Basically, vaccination is one method of preventing disease. The pet receiving a particular type of vaccination is protected against developing a specific disease for a period of time, and temporarily cannot pass that particular infection to other animals. Vaccination provides some degree of protection to the entire pet population by reducing the numbers of animals that can spread a disease.

There are several major canine diseases — rabies, distemper, hepatitis, leptospirosis and kennel cough — that can be controlled by vaccination. Rabies is the most serious from a public health point of view, because it is a potentially fatal disease that is transmissable to human beings. All warm-blooded pets are susceptible. Your dog can contract rabies from an infected pet or a number of wild animals, including rats, raccoons or skunks.

Direct pet-to-pet contact isn't required for the frasmission of all infectious pet diseases. Some, such as distemper of hepatitis, can be spread by virus particles present in the air or urine. Once established, these two diseases are very difficult to treat. As viral infections, they do not respond to antibiotics, and may open the way for secondary infections.

Cat owners sometimes mistakenly believe that indoor living will protect their pets from contamination. Unfortunately, the organisms that cause major feline diseases can easily float through the air and into the home. Feline distemper virus, for instance, is remarkably resistant, and may survive for as long as a year at room temperature. The recommended method of protecting cats against respiratory infections, rabies and distemper is annual vaccination.

As alternatives to vaccination that protect pets against viral diseases are limited, more pets are being vaccinated each year. Veterinary research has developed combination vaccines to reduce the number of injections a pet must receive during one year. Dogs routinely receive distemper, hepatitis and leptospirosis protection in the same injection. More complete protection is provided by new products that include kennel cough and parainfluenza coverage.

One bonus of a regular vaccination program for your pet is the temporary protection provided to puppies or kittens born of a vaccinated female. If a pregnant pet has an up-to-date vacination at the time of delivery, she transfers her maternal immunity to her offspring, protecting them for approximately six weeks. At that time, the transferred protection against distemper and other diseases begins to fade, and you should discuss an ongoing vaccination program for the puppies or kittens with your veterinarian.

Many U of M Students Need Math Training

Many students are coming to the University of Minnesota with less than the minimum education in mathematics necessary to get them through college.

As a result, there has been an "enormous" increase in the number of university students trying to enroll in remedial math courses, according to Willard Miller, head of the university's school of mathematics.

"Last fall quarter, we taught close to 7,500 students in math," Miller said. "About a third of those students were enrolled in remeidal math."

Remedial math, in this case, is defined as math that is offered in high school, such as algebra, plane and analytic geometry and trigonometry.

"Many students are arriving at the university with the mistaken impression that they can get along with only elementary school mathematics," Miller said.

Problem is partly a result of the fact that courses of study traditionally requiring little or no math are now beefing up their math requirements. Many departments in the Colleges of agriculture, biological sciences, liberal arts, home economics, business, and education and in the health sciences require more math now than they did in the past, Miller said.

"This increase in math requirements is due primarily to a greatly increased need for mathematics training in a society based on high technology," he said.

Miller feels the answer is more math preparation at the high school level. "Lack of sufficient high school math is impeding the progress of these students toward degrees, and severely draining the resources of the school of mathematics," he said.

Students who take math in high school benefit in other ways, Miller said. More individual attention can be given to the math student in high school classes, and instruction is given at a more leisurely pace.

"Math that may take a year in high school might be covered in one quarter at the university," he said.

Remedial math as taught at the university is mainly concerned with rapid development of computational skills, which, according to Miller, makes the classes dull for the students.

Using college level instructors to teach high school mathematics to large numbers of students is a poor use of the math department's talents, he said. "We are not especially trained to teach high school math, and yet my colleagues and I are required to teach it at the expense of programs more appropriate to a university math department," Miller said.

Miller is currently trying to communite with high school teachers, counselors, and students about the need for more math instruction in the high school curriculum, and is organizing a math advisory council, made up of representatives from local industry and math-related institutions, to push for greater public awareness of the growing need for mathematics education, he said.

Millions Unclaimed . . .

Students Lose Money For College By Not Asking!

10-Second QUIZ Qualifies Students For College Funds

NEW YORK — Each year over $500,000,000 in scholarships, grants and other aid is available to students. Yet millions of dollars aren't "claimed" because parents just don't know where to look for funds. They think all scholarships are based on financial need . . . or class standing . . . or test scores. Yet millions of dollars in aid are available to people regardless of need or academic excellence. In fact, a YES answer to just one of the following questions would make a student eligible to apply for many financial aid sources.

Yes ☐ No ☐ Have you participated in extra-curricular activities in school . . . or outside of school?

Yes ☐ No ☐ Have you decided on a particular career or occupation? (Many scholarships are based on the student's interest in a major course of study or future occupation.)

Yes ☐ No ☐ Are you or your parents affiliated with any union, religious or fraternal organization, community or professional group?

Yes ☐ No ☐ Were either of your parents in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines or Coast Guard?

The Student Assistance Council of America has developed a unique Student Profile Application Form, which provides the "keys" to finding multiple sources of financial aid. You can get a copy of this form plus a "How to" 5-part Scholarship Search Information Kit by writing directly to the Council. Enclose $1.00 to help pay for First Class postage and handling. Most States Potential Sites For Hazardous Waste Disaster

A toxic waste disaster could "happen tomorrow almost anywhere in the United States," according to a study conducted by the National Wildlife Federation. This conclusion is based on a survey in which environmental officials of all 50 states and the District of Columbia participated.

An analysis of the survey, which asked detailed questions about each state's toxic substances program, reveals that the ten jurisdictions which best safeguard their citizens "in light of the severity of their hazardous waste problems" are Vermont, Oregon, Wyoming, Delaware, Maryland, Washington, the District of Columbia, North Dakota, Montana and Connecticut.

Ten states whose toxic substances programs do the poorest job of protecting their citizens are Georgia, Missouri, West Virginia, Kentucky, Michigan, Mississippi, Massachusetts, Indiana, Illinois and Arizona.

According to Kenneth Kemlet, an NWF attorney and manager of its toxic substances project, each state was initially given a ranking based on its response to the NWF survey questionnaire. "That ranking doesn't adequately reflect how good a state's toxic waste program is, however, until we compare it to the level of hazardous waste generated in that state," explained Kamlet.

NWF then studied hazardous waste generation estimates for each state provided by the U.S. environmental protection agency, which funded the federation's study, and developed a "need-response index" which ranks each state as to how well it has responded to needs based on the amount of hazardous waste it generates.

So although California, for example, placed first in the initial NWF rankings, it is the fourth highest hazardous waste generating state. As a result, it ranks only 23rd in the need response index.

The survey found wide variations in the adequacy of the programs of the ten biggest hazardous waste generating states — New Jersey, Ohio, Illinois, California, Pennsylvania, Texas, New York, Michigan, Tennessee and Indiana. These states are responsible for 60 per cent of all the hazardous waste produced in the U.S., the survey notes.

The EPA estimates that American industry generates 35 million tons of hazardous wastes — acids, toxic chemicals, corrosive metals and other dangerous substances — annually. It has also estimated that 51,000 dumping sites in the U.S. contain some hazardous wastes.

Among the "big ten" hazardous waste generators, NWF found that only one state, Tennessee, ranked in the top 20 in the need-response index. Seven of the big ten — New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan — ranked within the bottom 20 in meeting their states' needs.

The survey questionnaire was mailed in January, 1979, and all questionnaires were returned by May. "A number of states have upgraded their laws and regulations since the NWF survey was done," Kamlet noted. "Some states would fare better if reevaluated today, but most programs still need drastic improvements."

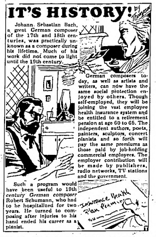
What were some of the most serious problems uncovered in the survey? Less than a quarter of the states regulate hazardous waste landfills either by segregating toxic from non-toxic wastes or by specifying areas where hazardous waste landfills may not be established, the NWF researchers found. Nearly half the states require no assessment of the toxic chemical content of wastes proposed for landfilling and less than a quarter of the states require content labels on disposed hazardous waste containers. "The risk of contamination of human water and food remains very high in most states," says the study.

Control of abandoned dumps is also poor in the jurisdictions surveyed. Without adequate controls — which most states are lacking — on the future uses of such land, these abandoned dumps can serve as "ticking time bombs ready to explode into serious problems," concludes the study.

Other areas covered in the survey include the handling of toxic waste emergencies, pesticide disposal, oil recycling, water pollution prevention and surface and ground water monitoring and protection. The study, which also covered Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, includes results and detailed analysis of responses to each question asked in the survey.

"Toxic Substances Programs in the U.S. States and Territories: How Well Do They Work?" will be published in booklet form, in late September and is available free for the first copy, and 60 cents for each additional copy, by writing: The National Wildlife Federation, Dept. KK, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

A table showing the ranking of the states by amounts of hazardous waste generated, by their initial responses to the NWF questionnaire, and by their need-response indices showed Minnesota ranking 25th by the hazardous waste generation, 32nd in the survey questionnaire and 30th by the need-response index.



Johann Sebastian Bach, a great German composer of the 17th and 18th centuries, was practically unknown as a composer during his lifetime. Much of his work did not come to light until the 19th century.

German composers today, as well as artists and writers, can now have the same social protection enjoyed by others. Though self-employed, they will be joining the vast employee health insurance system and be entitled to a retirement pension at age 60 to 65. The independent authors, poets, painters, sculptors, concert pianists and so forth will pay the same premiums as those paid by job-holding commercial employees. The employer contribution will be made by publishers, radio networks, TV stations and the government.

Such a program would have been useful to 19th century German composer Robert Schumann, who had to be hospitalized for two years. He turned to composing after injuries to his hand ended his career as a pianist.

Inheritance Touchy Topic Among Family

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

Maybe the Caribs have the answer. When someone dies, this Guatamalan tribe destroys virtually all of the person's possessions.

This may seem drastic, but so is the family conflict that can follow a death and division of property in our culture. "Family inheritance is the touchiest topic I've ever studied," said Paul Rosenblatt, University of Minnesota professor of family social science.

More anger and bitterness result from inheritance battles then from sexual problems or even from spouse beating, Rosenblatt said. "After all," he said, "you can't divorce your siblings." Conflicts over inheritance will become even more common as divorce and remarriage create ornate family structures.

The problem, Rosenblatt said, is that there are so many legitimate considerations in dividing property fairly after a death. The following list was compiled by Rosenblatt in interviews with 14 families. Most people agree with most of these "fairness principles." Trouble is that they can be used to support conflicting claims.

— Divide everything equally. (But what happens to that antique clock? And are some people more equal than others?)

— Blood relationship creates the greatest right (But what about conflicts between siblings?)

— Kinship creates the greatest right. (But this can put the spouse against children)

— You have the greater right to property if you've lived in it, or if you've worked on it (a farm or business), or if you're poorer or sicker than the others.

—You have an advantage if you have the same last name as the deceased, or if you lived with him or her, or if you associated with him or her more often, or if you ever supported the deceased financially, or if you helped to build his or her estate.

— You are at a disadvantage if you were especially favored in a previous inheritance conflict, or if you didn't get along well with the deceased.

Adult children of the deceased are the most common combatants over inheritance, Rosenblatt said. Second spouses and siblings of the deceased come in second. "Cliques, cleavages and shifting boundaries easily develop," he said.

Families probably fight most over real estate and other indivisible property — a farm, an antique desk, the family Bible, a special ring or even a collection of duck decoys.

One man, whose brother felt shortened after the father's property was divided, is quoted in the Rosenblatt study as saying, "I got more or everything, but I worked 20 years with Dad on the farm. My brother isn't farming his own land. His corn crop is still standing, half covered with snow." Their sister feels she didn't get her share, either, and said, "I'm hurt that Dad treated me this way. He was from the old school where they valued sons more than daughter, but he went against my mother's wishes."

The three still don't see each other, even on holidays, although they live only five miles apart, Rosenblatt said.

And rifts can go even deeper than that: He's read about accusations of murder, fears of reprisal and thefts among siblings. Only one brother interviewed was optimistic about regaining his old relationship with his sister. One family still held deep anger over an inheritance battle that took place 30 years ago.

Some of the bitterness comes from submerged grief, Rosenblatt said, though this is not often recognized. Dying person can prevent future conflicts by not making secret agreements and not trying to punish a son or daughter for a marriage the person disapproved of. Survivors can help by not sneaking into the house to grab possessions first.

Rosenblatt also recommends wills. Families without them have about four times as much trouble, he said. Without a will, the law decides how to divide up the property, and this method is not tailored to the individual family. But it's very hard for people to think about their own death, he said.

More open discussion is probably the most helpful, Rosenblatt said, though it is difficult to discuss such a taboo subject. In family conversations, reasons for allocations can be explained and preferences expressed, and the same story will be heard by everybody. A trusted outsider such as a clergy person, family lawyer or family counselor might also be useful. Wisconsin now has county agents who discuss inheritance conflicts in sessions on family estate planning.

But Rosenblatt feels that some conflict over inheritance is virtually built into the species. "Most people will not avoid it," he said.

SPICED DREAM BARS SAY MOM'S COOKING!

What is most appreciated by kids away at school? Money, you say. Perhaps. But what they really crave is food. Mom's cooking. Something sweet. Spiced Dream Bars fill the bill perfectly. The all-natural ingredients start with coconut, nuts and brown sugar. The flavorful difference is the warm, rich aroma of allspice—the single spice that tastes like a blend of flavors with cloves the top note. Dream bars don't need any refrigeration—provided they're wrapped tightly in foil—and they travel beautifully.

SPICED DREAM BARS

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1-1/4 cups firmly-packed light brown sugar, divided
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 eggs, well beaten
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 F. In a large bowl combine 1 cup flour with 1/2 cup of the brown sugar. Cut in the butter. Mix to form a ball. Turn into an ungreased 9-x 9-x 2-inch baking pan. Pat uniformly over the bottom. Bake for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, combine remaining 3/4 cup sugar with eggs, 1 tablespoon flour, allspice, baking powder and salt. Stir in coconut and nuts. Spread over the baked layer. Return to oven and bake until brown, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool in pans. Cut into bars. Yield: 24 bars.

Milk Production Value Exceeds $709 Million

Farm value of Minnesota milk production during the first eight months of 1979 exceeded an estimated $709 million, 16 per cent above last year, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin said recently.

Milk production this January through August totaled an estimated 745.1 million gallons, within one per cent of equaling Minnesota's production for the same period last year, 749.8 million gallons. Minnesota continues to be the fourth leading milk producing state.

Average Minnesota farm milk prices this year through August were 95.2 cents per gallon, compared to 81.3 cents per gallon last year. Commissioner Seetin noted that while the increase over last year was nearly 14 cents a gallon it actually represents less than two cents more per pound—a gallon of milk weighs 8.6 pounds.

August milk production statistics continued to reflect stabilization of Minnesota's important dairy farming industry, financially and physically withered during the first six years of this decade by adverse farm and international trade policies and weather disasters.

Minnesota's 830,000 milk cows in production, the average of 820 pounds of milk (95.4 gallons), per cow, and the month's total production of 79.2 million gallons this August matched that month last year on all three items. This was the first time in 15 years that Minnesota's August dairy farming measures did not reflect the long term reduction in that leading economic segment of Minnesota agriculture.

PCB Product Is Discovered In U.S. Fish

Little-known contaminants called polychlorinated dibenzofurans (PCDF's) have been detected in fish from U.S. waters for the first time, an international team of scientists report in papers presented September 11.

PCDF's are chemical byproducts of widespread, toxic industrial chemicals known as polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB's). They were detected by Dr. David Stalling of the U.S Fish and Wildlife Service's national fisheries research laboratory in Columbia, Missouir, and Dr. Ralph Dougherty of Florida State University, Tallahassee. Dr. Christopher Rappe of the University of Umea, Sweden, and Dr. Douglas Kuehl of the environmental protection agency are also collaborating in the investigation.

Although the occurrence of PCDF's in the aquatic environment in the United States has been suspected previously, this is the first time it has been confirmed. PCDF's were detected in carp, catfish, lake trout and coho salmon collected in areas of the north central and northeastern United States where PCB pollution historically has been a problem. The detection was possible now only through the scientists' use of sophisticated new techniques of negative-ion high resolution mass spectrometry.

Drs. Stalling and Rappe emphasized that they are not yet certain whether the contaminants in their samples are hazardous to fish or other aquatic organisms. Some PCDF compounds are considered far more toxic than the parents PCB's — a few up to 500 times more toxic than the most potent PCB's. Studies at the National institutes of environmental health sciences and several universities have shown certain PCDF's to be highly toxic to guinea pigs and rats.

"There are 135 possible PCDF compounds," Dr. Stalling said. "We have not yet identified the individual chemical structures of the PCDF's in our samples, so we cannot be sure which of the 135 are present or whether they might have toxic effects."

Extent of PCDF's presence in the environment is not known. It is known, however, that the parent PCB compounds have been used in a wide variety of industrial equipment and products over the past 50 years. Use of PCB's is now tightly controlled by the environmental protection agency through the toxic substances coltrol act of 1976.

PCDF's are known to be produced by oxidation of PCB's and thus can be formed when materials containing PCB's are burned, especially at low temperatures.

"We know that very high temperature burning, if done for long enough, will completely destroy PCB's," Dr. Stalling said. "However, Dr. Rappe has demonstrated that low temperature combustion in the 400 degree to 600 degree C range can convert 25 per cent of PCB's to PCDF's."

Stalling and Rappe are currently working to identify the chemical structures of the PCDF's in their samples. "Once specific PCDF's in fish are identified," Stalling said, "laboratory scientists will have a better idea how they are formed and which structures should be tested for possible toxic effects in fish and other aquatic organisms."

In 1978 America's trucking industry conserved 1,212,000,000 gallons of fuel. That's almost enough to run every car in America for about three days, and would fill more than 40 oil tankers.

Since 1973 the industry has saved 2.671 billion gallons, or enough to heat the homes of almost a million American citizens, nearly the population of Nevada and Delaware combined.

The industry has been able to do this, reports the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, because of a voluntary conservation program that includes purchasing new and fuel efficient diesel engines, aerodynamic devices, variable fan drives and radial tires on new trucks.

Milsap Family Cooks Country Style

It's hard to get good food on the road, especially when you travel as much as country music star Ronnie Milsap. Ronnie, winner of the Country Music Association's 1978 "Album of the Year" award, spends much of his time touring the nation to play concerts. He roams the country with an entourage: two buses, three back-up singers, an entire five person band and a refrigerator that's always stocked with fresh fruits, vegetables and nuts. Ronnie says fresh food gives him the stamina to keep up with his hectic schedule.

The Milsaps grow many of their own vegetables when they're home in Nashville. They use many of these vegetables in two of Ronnie's favorite recipes, Milsap Moonshine and Milsap's Stir-Fry American Style. Milsap Moonshine is a non-alcoholic fruit and vegetable beverage that contains ten quartered apples, two bunches of carrots, and one stalk of celery, all blended in a juice extractor.

Milsap's Stir-Fry American Style is a Yankee version of a popular Oriental dish. It calls for the stir-fry method of cooking which helps vegetables retain many of their nutrients and can be done as easily in a frying pan as in a Chinese wok. This dish can be served with meat, or made entirely with vegetables for a tempting side dish.

Ronnie Milsap

Where will Ronnie Milsap go from here? For the moment, he plans to keep concentrating on country music. He will also appear on the 13th Annual Country Music Association's Awards Show sponsored by Kraft. The awards special will be telecast live from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry on October 8, 9:30-11:00 pm, eastern time, over the CBS Television Network.

INVEST FOR A CHILD AND SAVE TAXES TOO

Looking for a special gift that a child won't outgrow in a month? How about a gift that may help you save on taxes—and give a child a financial headstart in the future?

If all this appeals to you, find out about "gifts to minors" laws in your state. People often don't know about them. But they're one type of tax shelter you may be able to afford.

The whole procedure isn't complicated. Basically, you may invest for the child in mutual funds of all kinds, in a savings account or other securities. The investment is registered in the child's name. When the child becomes of age (either at 18 or 21, depending upon the state), he or she will receive the funds you've invested over the years. There are no restrictions whatsoever—it's the child's money. It can be spent on higher education. Or as a down payment on a house. Or even to start a business. It's the child's own nest egg.

If you take advantage of these laws, your gift can help you save on taxes. Since the child "owns" the investment, any income it earns, such as dividends, capital-gains or interest, will be income to the child. But the child's tax rate is probably much smaller than yours, perhaps even zero. This will lower your taxes—especially if you had been putting money away for the child in your own savings account, collecting interest on it, and paying taxes on the interest.

You can give up to $3,000 yearly to anyone without paying a gift tax. If your spouse agrees, together you can give up to $6,000 annually to a person. And you can make these gifts to as many people as you like.

Parents, aunts, uncles, grandparents—in fact, any adult—can invest for children under these gifts to minors laws.

Questions? Talk to a stockbroker, mutual fund representative or financial planner. They'll tell you how to set up this type of gift and inform you of any other requirements. They'll also explain the benefits of different investments—like mutual funds. If you'd like to read about gifts to minors laws first, try a booklet called "Invest Today ... For a Child's Tomorrow." It's free from the Investment Company Institute, Dept. C, 1775 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Use Of Peatland Meeting Subject

Interest in large scale mining of Minnesota peatlands as an energy source was exhibited to only a small degree Thursday afternoon at a meeting held in the city council rooms of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Only half a dozen people attended to listen to an introduction by Rebecca Judge of the University of Minnesota Duluth and ask questions or express concerns about peatland resources. Despite the small number in attendance, however, the questions asked were many and the concerns expressed were farreaching.

Judge explained that there are 7.2 million acres classified as peatland in Minnesota and that the state owns approximately 50 per cent of those. The department of natural resources has been charged with handling requests for peatland utilization on a large scale and has undertaken the responsibility on a case by case basis. There are presently 27 studies authorized.

Of greatest interest at this time is a Minnegasco proposal to mine 100,000 acres of peatland for gasification purposes in northeast Minnesota.

Judge said that it is her proposal under a grant from a "Science for Citizens" program to conduct smaller hearings such as the one Thursday, publish material collected at those hearings, then hold larger scale hearings utilizing experts on the topic to answer questions and present ideas. It will all lead up to the Minnesota legislative session beginning in January.

She said that the legislature did not commission the study or hearings and may choose to accept or reject the findings and materials accumulated. The purpose is to have as many people as possible involved in making informed decisions when the time to make decisions arrives, she said.

Information from the soil survey now being conducted in Pennington county indicates that peatlands in this county total about 56,000 acres. Of this total, 42,000 acres involve peat from six to 16 inches in depth. There are about 13,000 acres with peat from 17 to 51 inches deep and only about 1,000 acres where peat runs deeper than 51 inches.

Concerns expressed Thursday were environmental and economic in nature. It was noted by Judge that of the animals and birds which use the peatland ecosystem, 16 are on the endangered species list. Use of peatlands for agriculture, a common practice in this area, tends to change the nature of the land over a relatively short period of time so that in effect it is no longer peatland, several people pointed out at the meeting.

In addition to mining of peat for energy creation, wide-

TAKING NOTES on questions asked at a meeting on peatland utilization in Thief River Falls Thursday afternoon was Rebecca Judge of the University of Minnesota Duluth. Only half a dozen people attended the meeting but many questions were posed and opinions expressed. A meeting with people more directly involved with intensive study of peatlands is also planned for this area in the next month or so.

Pork Producers To Hear Leman At Banquet

Dr. Al Leman

Dr. Al Leman, extension veterinarian at the University of Minnesota, will be guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Northern Minnesota Pork Producers association Thursday, November 1, at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls. Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Herd health program for feeder pig producers will be the topic of Dr. Leman's talk and he will answer questions from those in attendance following his presentation. As associate professor at the university, Dr. Leman's research interest is swine reproduction and he has authored 40 manuscripts and written two publications of swine diseases and herd health.

A membership drive by the pork producers association will end at the dinner and memberships will be sold at the session. All pork producers are invited to the free dinner, but it is requested that reservations be made by calling Virginia at 681-1204. Goal of the association is 150 members by meeting time and 300 members by the end of 1980.

The association plans to sponsor workshops for pork producers on feed and nutrition, herd health, housing, hog equipment and other topics and to conduct barrow, feeder pig and carcass shows.

Other goals of the association are to organize an October promotion, elect a pork queen, organize a Porkettes group for women involved in hog production,

Stromberg Is MNA Diamond Jubilee Nurse

Frances Stromberg, Thief River Falls, has been named Minnesota nurses association (MNA) Diamond Jubilee nurse for October. Professional nurses association is celebrating its 75th anniversary year, beginning now and will name one winner each month through October of 1980.

Mrs. Stromberg was selected for distinguished contributions to MNA and the profession in the areas of legislation and stimulating involvement in legislation in others. She has been an MNA member for 20 years, the last four of which she has served on the state Legislative committee. She keeps in close contact with MNA lobbyists, contacts area legislators in regard to bills the nurses are interested in, and gets other 1st district MNA nurses involved, too (1st district is made up of the eight northwest counties of Minnesota).

Stromberg holds caucus training sessions and program on the legislative process for 1st district members. She has been instrumental in legislation passed, notably funding for off-campus University of Minnesota nursing education this past session.

According to Annette McBeth, St. Paul, chairperson of MNA's 75th anniversary committee, "It's truly fitting that Fran is the first Jubilee nurse of the month. MNA was founded in 1905 by nurses who wanted to get a licensure law passed; they understood the importance of legislation in health care and in consumer protection. Fran Stromberg is truly in the mainstream of the MNA tradition."

In addition to her MNA involvement, she has campaigned for a state legislator, and she is currently DFL county chair for Pennington county. She wants to be a delegate to the 1980 Democratic national convention.

Lulu Jean Nelson, Crookston, President of 1st district MNA, stated "All of us are proud of Fran. We are by no means the largest district in numbers but we believe that we make up for it in enthusiasm and involvement. Fran certainly exemplifies those qualities."

MNA is the largest organization of health professionals in Minnesota. Founded in October of 1905, the association will celebrate its diamond anniversary throughout the coming year, culminating in October of 1980.

Interest High In Northland Office Seminar

Pre-registration for the "How To Improve Your Office Operations", seminar that will be held at Northland community college on Saturday, November 3 from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. shows great interest, according to Barbara Hauger of Northland's business department.

"All indications point to another successful business seminar conducted by Northland", she said.

Agenda topics include human relations in the office, reducing paperwork, organizing records more effectively, effective content and efficient production of correspondence, ways to improve business forms and new technology for the office.

Conducting the seminar will be Dr. Mark Langemo of Grand Forks, N.D.

Persons interested in attending this professional development seminar for one college credit at a cost of $12.75 should contact Northland college (681-2181) for a brochure and a registration form. Those who wish to register on the day of the siminar may do so, but for better planning pre-registration is encouraged.

Rural People Vote On Building Code

Pennington county residents outside the city of Thief River Falls will vote Tuesday, October 30, in a referendum to determine if the county will operate under the Minnesota state building code. Cities of Goodridge and St. Hilaire will be included in the election, as well as all of the townships.

Session laws of 1979 provide that non-metropolitan counties may, by a negative referendum, rescind the Minnesota state building code in areas that had not adopted the code prior to Jan. 1, 1977.

The code was adopted by the 1977 legislature to go into effect July 1, 1978. In 1978 the legislature deferred the effective date to Jan. 1, 1979. Last year the legislature adopted the provision that would permit non-metropolitan jurisdictions to back out of such participation.

The department of administration's building code division has adopted the policy that the code is in effect statewide and remains in effect in all jurisdictions until rescinded. Whether or not a county rescinds the code, those portions that apply to facilities for the handicapped will remain in effect.

Voters will be asked to vote on the question: "Shall the state building code be adopted in Pennington county?" If the majority of votes cast is in the negative, the building code will not apply to the county.

Thief River Falls has operated under the code for years, according to Bob Bregler, city building inspector. He agrees with Don Pates of the state building code office that the code protects life and property investment.

"What the code does," Pates told the Times when contacted by telephone in St. Paul, "is provide a minimum standard for life safety in whatever is being built." He qualified that statement by noting that the code covers all types of buildings except agricultural buildings. Rural housing is covered by the code, however.

Pates said the code also creates a guide to competitive building, since developers promoting residential construction must meet minimum standards in the housing they are offering for sale. The code sets forth many requirements, such as window size in bedrooms for an example, which may seem arbitrary but which are intended to permit people to escape in the event of fire, he added.

Primary opposition to the application of the code is that adherence to minimum construction standards could increase costs of construction and that the regulations provide yet another layer of government intrusion on private citizens.

The latter two arguments have apparently been the most impressive with voters in the past. Pates said that 18 or 19 elections have been held in counties to date and all have rejected the code by huge majorities.

DURING CONSTRUCTION, the dike and water control structure of the Baird-Beyer project about eight miles northwest of Red Lake Falls looked like this. The 48-inch reinforced concrete pipe was in place and concrete was being poured to stabilize it. The inlet control structure is covered by forms at the far left. This view is taken looking toward the east from the top of the dike.

NOW COMPLETED, the dike of the Baird-Beyer project in Red Lake county stretches about 400 feet across the Little Black river channel. The project involved 36,000 cubic yards of fill in the design prepared by engineers of the soil conservation service in Thief River Falls. Pipe visible in the above photo is buried under the dike with the inlet control at left and the outlet pipe barely visible at right.

Red Lake County Dike To Help Flood Control

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Completion of a project similar to the type many people believe would be a major benefit to areas subject to flooding along the Red Lake and Red rivers was accomplished late this summer about eight miles northwest of Red Lake Falls.

Referred to as the Baird-Beyer project, the multi-agency cooperative effort included the placement of a dike and water control structure on the Little Black river. The dike will create a permanent pool of water covering approximately 14 acres with an average depth of 12 feet maximum.

Principal land-owners in the project area are Felix Baird and his sons Jim and Richard and Mrs. Jean Beyer. The Little Black river — which could also be called the little known river because of the normal obscurity of the stream — empties into the Black river, which in turn delivers its waters into the Red Lake river near Huot.

While the rivers themselves (the Black and Little Black) are not really major tributaries, they are among many which contribute to peak flows during spring run-off and during periods of heavy rain. The watershed which will have its run-off collected behind or flowing through the new control structure totals about 14,500 acres. There are 15 to 20 principal land owners in that watershed, including private individuals and the state of Minnesota. The watershed area includes the Goose Lake wildlife management area.

Allan Gustafson, work unit conservationist for the Pennington and Red Lake soil and water conservation districts, said the project involved the cooperation of a number of agencies, four of which provided a part of the funding for the approximately $165,000 contract. Red Lake watershed district and the Lower Red River management board each provided $45,000; Red Lake county agricultural stabilization and conservation service allocated $50,000 and the Red Lake soil and water conservation district chipped in with $25,000.

Gustafson said the project had its origin in the early 1960's but was abandoned for lack of interest and lack of funding. Interest was revived and the participating agencies organized for funding in 1978. Advertising for bids took place in August of last year with the contract let in September of last year to Den-Mar Construction company of Frazee.

Work actually got underway in July of this year with the digging of a core trench four to six feet deep beneath the dam site to prevent seepage. Base was prepared and a two-stage concrete riser installed, connected to 168 feet of 48-inch steel reinforced concrete pipe. A distilling basin (large depression in the stream bed below the outlet and lined with rock) was created to handle the discharge from the pipe with a minimum of erosion.

When water reaches sufficient depth in the permanent pool above the dam, it will flow into the riser opening, drop a few feet and be carried through the pipe into the river channel to continue its journey. The project is designed so that it will reduce peak flow of water at that point from 900 to 300 cubic feet per second.

A second stage is provided in the impoundment design. Should water ever reach that second stage, which is doubtful, the pool behind the dam would spread out over 29 acres and have a maximum depth of 19 feet. The project was designed by engineers of the soil conservation service in Thief River Falls.

Because of its scope and impact, the project had to clear state and regional soil conservation service offices and receive a permit from the state department of natural resources due to work in the bed of public waters.

Some idea of the size of the project can be obtained by noting that there are 36,000 cubic yards or fill in the dike which is about 400 feet long. There are 9,000 pounds of steel reinforcement in the control structure.

Gustafson pointed out that while the primary objective of the project is flood control and that is the main reason for financial involvement by the agencies participating, there are other purposes built into that type of project. Erosion control would be one benefit and irrigation potential would be another. The permanent pool is expected to be of some benefit to wildlife and there could be some recreational value as a picnic area.

The conservationist added that he hopes the impoundment will be only one of a number of conservation efforts to receive emphasis within the watershed. Planting of field windbreaks,

CONTROL STRUCTURE at the Baird-Beyer project northwest of Red Lake Falls presently sits high and dry on the side of the dike built across the Little Black river. When the pool in the background fills, however, it will provide a reservoir covering approximately 14 acres to a depth of about 12 feet. An opening in the other side of the structure allows water to enter and be carried through a 48-inch reinforced concrete pipe, effectively reducing the flow from 900 to 300 cubic feet per second.

Virginia Knutson Weds Mark Swanson at Zion

Zion Lutheran church, Thief River Falls, was the scene of the recent wedding of Miss Virginia Knutson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Knutson, rural Thief River Falls, and Mark Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swanson, also of Thief River Falls.

Rev. James Mattson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organist was Medlodee Rupprecht, who played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional. She also accompanied Diane Mosbeck as she sang "Wedding Song," "If," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting were candelabra graced with greenery and pastel colored bows. Arrangements of carnations in matching shades complemented the altar and pastel colored bows marked the front pews reserved for the families and honor guests.

The couple was given in marriage by their parents. For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of white polyester organza lined with taffeta. Cotton Venice lace enhanced the bodice and trimmed the full sheer sleeves. A matching narrow lace edging outlined the scooped neckline and flowing A-line skirt which curved into a sweeping chapel train. Her princess styled headpiece held a triple tiered veil of nylon sheer. She carried a bouquet of silk roses in pastel shades of pink, yellow, blue and green, accented with greenery, netting, and white ribbon streamers. All the flowers at the wedding were made by the bride.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Val Knutson. She wore a sleeveless gown of pink qiana topped by a sheer floral cape. She carried a bouquet of pastel colored carnations. Tucked in her hair was a pink carnation.

Other attendants were Pattie Erickson, Janet Brinkman and Sandy Johnson, friends of the couple. Their gowns and bouquets, similar to the maid of honor's, were in pastel yellow, blue and green.

The bride's personal attendants were Sue Brekke and Paula Newton, friends of the couple. They also served as flower hostesses.

Dan Hallstrom, Red Lake Falls, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Lyle and Larry Swanson, brothers of the groom, and Barry Newton, a friend of the couple. Serving as ushers were Jim Swanson, brother of the groom; Gene Knutson, cousin of the bride; and Ricky Peterson and DelRay Sparby, friends of the couple. The groom, together with the fathers of the couple, wore silver gray tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and peek-a-boo white carnation boutonniere centered with a pink rose. The groomsmen wore similar tuxedos with ruffled shirts and carnation boutonnieres corresponding with the gowns worn by the bridesmaids.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Knutson wore a baby-blue gown fashioned with a high-rounded neckline and sheer sleeves. Her corsage was of pink carnations and baby-pink roses and pink ribbon. The mother of the groom wore a sleeveless mint green dress with a pleated skirt and a matching sheer cape. Her corsage was of yellow carnations with baby pink roses and yellow ribbons.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kees, Mrs. Ella Knutson, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Naomi Althoff and Herbert Grinde, grandparents of the groom; Glenn Knutson, godparents of the bride; and Mrs. Margie Carlson, godparent of the groom.

A reception for about 200 guests followed in the church parlor. Highlighting the serving table was a pillared, three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with miniature flowers in pink, blue and yellow with green leaves. Between the tall Grecian pillars was a lighted, flowing water fountain and stairways extenting to heart-shaped cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. On the steps were miniature replicas of the wedding party. A bride and groom ornament topped the cake.

Hosts and hostesses at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Curt Swanson, city, brother and sister-in-law of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Sorenson, Evensville, uncle and aunt of the bride. Mrs. Harold Kees, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest book as Mr. and Mrs. David Larson, friends of the couple, served the punch.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Godfred Svir, city, sister of the groom, and Miss Dorothy Kees, Grafton, N.D., great-aunt of the bride. At the coffee service were Mrs. Dale Schantzen, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Otto Rehm, aunt of the bride.

Waitresses were Wendy Rupprecht, Candi Rupprecht, Sue Spengler, and Julie Peterson, friends of the couple. The rice packets were distributed by Wade Sorenson, Evansville, a cousin of the bride, and Jason Svir, city, a nephew of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Yellowstone National park, the couple is now at home in this city at Greendale Manor, lot 19. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Northwestern hospital. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school and the local AVTI, is employed by Hydra-Mac, Inc. Photo, R. Four-part workshop is scheduled for the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls on November 13, 19 and 20 and December 11. November 13 session will deal mostly with financial and management decisions and the November 19 meeting with stall barn operations. Topics on November 20 will deal with free stall and parlor systems.

A wrap-up on December 11 deals with herd nutrition, business arrangements and a dairymen's panel consisting of three dairymen who have recently experienced some type of herd expansion or addition of new facilities. Time will also be allowed after each session for discussion of specific problems with the various specialists.

Enrollment is limited to sixty participants. This will cover a nineteen-county area around Thief River Falls. Advance registration is required. Registration fees are $40 per farm operator for three sessions or $45 per farm operator for four sessions. Each additional farm member participating will be charged $20 for three sessions or $25 for four sessions. This will cover the cost of meals, materials and other miscellaneous items.

This meeting is sponsored by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service. Anyone interested in attending the sessions is urged to contact their county extension office as soon as possible.

October 29 Is Deadline For ASC Candidates

Only a few days remain to nominate farmers as candidates in the upcoming ASC community committee elections, according to Alton Nybladh, chairman of the Marshall County agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee.

First duty of the newly elected community committee members will be to serve as delegates to elect new members of the county ASC committee. Nybladh reminded producers that this is an important occasion for the responsible, farmer-chosen team of ASC community committee members who will help administer government programs.

ASC community committee elections will be conducted by mail from November 23 to December 3. By turning in a total of six or more petitions, farmers in each ASC community have the opportunity to prepare the slate of nominees themselves, according to Nybladh.

Shortly after October 29 all petitions will be reviewed. If six or more valid petitions have been received for an ASC community, the county ASCS office will prepare a slate containing the names of all eligible nominees. If less than six valid petitions are received for any ASC community, the incumbent community committee will add nominees needed to complete the slate.

To submit a valid petition, three or more ASC farm voters must sign a statement endorsing an eligible candidate. Statement must include certification that the nominee will serve if elected. Petitions must be dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the county ASC office no later than October 29.

Opportunity to nominate, vote, and be elected to office in the upcoming ASC committee election is guaranteed to all farmers regardless of race, religion, sex, color or national origin.

Caper In Light Colored Garb On Halloween

Making Halloween a happy and safe occasion for all young trick-or-treaters only takes a few extra minutes of planning ahead by parents according to commissioner John P. Sopsic, department of public safety.

"Before sending children out on their rounds, remind them of the dangers of darkness and motor vehicles," said Sopsic. "With daylight savings time ending Sunday, October 28, darkness will fall early Halloween night."

Commissioner Sopsic suggests taking the following safety precautions:

"One of the best protections a child can have is to wear light colored costumes or costumes accented by reflectorized tape. A battery-powered flashlight or lantern can also make the difference between being seen and not being seen.

"Remind children to cross streets only at corners, to stay away from stray animals and strangers, and to stay within their immediate neighborhood. Make sure children make their rounds with friends, an adult or an older brother or sister.

"Have children try on their costumes before Halloween night. Avoid loose, flowing costumes that might tangle and cause a child to fall while crossing a street, and make certain that masks do not interfere with the child's vision.

"Before buying a Halloween costume, beard, wig or mask, check to make sure that they are fire resistant. If the costume is homemade and you wish to make it flameproof, soak the garment in a solution of seven ounces borax, three ounces of boric acid, and two quarts of warm water.

"Caution children against eating their treats until they return home so parents will have a chance to inspect everything."

The commissioner urges all motorists to drive with special caution on Halloween night, and reminds all parents that "for your children to be safe, they must be easily seen."

U of M Board Delays Tuition Changes

Ten students who came to the University of Minnesota board of regents meeting September 13 to argue against "hasty action" on proposed changes in tuition policy found their arguments unnecessary when board members announced they had no plans to take immediate action.

Major concern of the students, all representatives of student organizations, was that no changes in tuition policy be considered until students have returned to campus this fall and have had a chance to study the proposal. First day of classes is September 24.

Under the proposal, which has been the subject of discussion for about two years, tuition would be charged by the credit rather than by the quarter, and all first- and second-year students would pay tuition at the same rate.

Written by an 18-member committee of students and faculty members, the tuition plan also recommends more uniformity in the amount of tuition charged students from outside Minnesota.

Changes in tuition policy would give a break to part-time students, who now pay more for their total education than do full-time students by the time they earn their degrees.

"There is no decision the regents will vote on that is more important than per-credit tuition, because it might change the quality of education here," said Minneapolis regent, David Lebedoff.

Current structure encourages students to take "full loads," with the underlying assumption that full-time college work is the best approach, Lebedoff said. "Moving to a per-credit tuition policy could change that by encouraging people to go to school part time," he said.

Lebedoff was careful to point out that the does not feel a shift from full-time to part-time study is inherently bad. Rather, he said, the shift could cause fundamental changes in the institution that should be studied, especially by students themselves.

Jim Clark, one of the student leaders who spoke on the issue, said a shift to more part-time enrollment could put pressure on small departments. Proposed policy could slow down the rate at which students complete degrees, he said, thus leaving smaller departments with fewer students taking their courses at a given time, and subjecting them to budget pressure as a result.

Dianne Thomas, chairman of the student representatives to the board of regents, said the fact that tuition would rise for students after their first two years might force students to complete high-cost courses during their first two years in school.

Most of the students who spoke voiced similar sentiments — that school is not now in session, that returning students need time to study the proposal, and that the majority of students are not aware of the proposal's existence.

According to Frank Wilderson, vice president for student affairs, however, the plan has been under consideration for at least two years, and has been up before the regents for discussion several times. In addition, Wilderson said, he has personally discussed the plan with student leaders several times, and has held meetings on the plan at each of the campuses.

"Apparently the fact that students have participated in this discussion right from the start has no bearing on the average student," Lebedoff said. "If that's true, then something's wrong with the process. If the student leaders see their representation as a chimera, maybe they should abolish it and hold public meetings instead."

Student body president Sue Gjemse recommended that the regents somehow come up with "an official student opinion," since there is no single student organization that represents all students. She proposed that the regents seek an opinion from the tuition task force, a group of students organized around one issue that pulls its membership from the other student governance groups.

In other action, the regents held over until next month a resolution to grant a certain amount of University business to small- and minority-owned businesses. The proposed procedure would grant a 2 per cent bid advantage to small businesses and a 5 per cent advantage to minority-owned businesses, according to Don Brown, vice president for finance.

Outcome of granting bid advantages would be to send 20 per cent of all eligible bids small businessmen's way, Brown said. Fifteen percent of that 20 per cent would go to culturally and economically disadvantaged business people.

Proposal is the University's attempt to comply with state legislation passed in May, requiring public institutions to set aside a certain number of bids for which only small- and minority-owned businesses could compete. The university proposal would achieve the same end as the state law, but would arrive at that end in a way that is compatible with existing university purchasing procedures, Brown said.

St. Paul regent Mary Schertler, however, disagreed. "What we have now is not going to implement the intent of that legislation," she said.

The board also voted to purchase the mutual services building, 1919 University Ave., St. Paul, for $3,675,000, and "liquidate" three other buildings the University owns. Purchase of the building will allow the University to consolidate support units now strung out along University ave.

Black Widow Spider Bites Fatal To Mates

Even its name sounds dangerous — black widow spider. But it's a good name for the dominating female of this poisonous spider species, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. For unless he is very careful in his courting procedures, the male spider may be eaten alive by an angry female black "widow."

Female black widow should be avoided by humans, too, reports the National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children. For while her bite is seldom fatal to humans, it can be very painful, producing symptoms not unlike those of appendicitis.

Luckily, the female black widow would "much rather avoid people than bite them." Even when disturbed in her nest, she will usually try to escape rather than attack.

And she's also easy to recognize. The female, which can grow up to two inches in length (twice the size of the male), has a tiny yellow, or sometimes red patch, often in the shape of an hourglass, on her abdomen. Her abdomen can swell to half an inch in diameter when it's full of eggs.

Found throughout the U.S. and other parts of the world, but mostly in warm climates, the female spins her sticky, untidy web in dark, dry places — under stones, in holes in the ground, around tree stumps, in log piles, garages and basements.

In the U.S. and Canada, fatalities from wasp and bee stings far outnumber those from spider bites. While her venom sacks are small, the female's poison is up to 15 times more potent than that of a rattlesnake. A black widow bite often causes nausea, swelling and mild paralysis of the diaphragm, but most bite victims recover without serious complications.

Male black widow's poison is weak and ineffectual, so no wonder he's such a careful suitor. He approaches the female's web, and, explains Ranger Rick, "taps out a kind of Morse code on its threads to find out if she's ready for him." If she's not, she may turn on him "in a fit of black widow anger. Or she may mate with him and eat him later."

More often, the female black widow, like most spiders, feasts on insects. When a victim gets caught in her web, she "wraps it tightly in silk then swiftly bites it with two tiny fangs which deliver her potent poison," explains Ranger Rick.

Male black widows don't feed. In fact, they're very seldom seen at all. They spend most of their time wandering in search of females — which for them, is a hazardous occupation.

Coast Guard Academy Takes Applications

United States coast guard academy has announced that it is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as Cadet, U.S. Coast Guard, Class of 1984. Applications are being accepted from both men and women. Appointments as coast guard cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas. Applications for appointment must be submitted to the Director of Admissions, U.S. Coast Guard Academy, prior to December 15, 1979. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the college board scholastic aptitude test (SAT) or american college testing assessment (ACT) prior to or including the December 8, 1979 administration for the ACT and the December 1, 1979 administration for the Sat. The competition for appointment as cadet is based on the candidate's high school rank, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school extracurricular activities, community affairs and-or part-time employment. Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and demonstrate proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

To qualify for the competition, an applicant must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1980. All applicants must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1980. Applicants must have completed three units in English, and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane or coordinate geometry or their equivalents, and must fulfill basic physical and moral requirements.

Coast guard cadets obtain an excellent undergraduate education at no personal expense. In addition, they receive pay and allowances fully adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses. The constantly updated academy curriculum offers nine majors which include: electrical, civil, ocean and marine engineering; marine, mathematical and physical sciences; management and government. These areas of academic interest, combined with varied elective courses, establish a solid foundation for a challenging career. Graduates of the academy are awarded a Bachelor of Science degree and are commissioned as ensigns in the United States coast guard. Selected officers may pursue further postgraudate education and specialized training at many leading civilian and military graduate or professional schools in such fields as aviation, business administration, electronics, engineering, law and oceanography.

Young academy graduates can look forward to a varied, exciting, and demanding career as a regular coast guard officer. The coast guard performs essential humanitarian missions vital to the safety and saving of lives at sea. Under the auspices of the department of transportation, the coast guard establishes and coordinates search and rescue operations by ship and plane, maintains advanced electronic and other aids to navigation scattered around the globe, operates the icebreakers which clear the way for all polar expeditions, and enforces marine law and all aspects of Merchant Marine safety. In addition, the Coast Guard has responsibility for boating safety and marine environmental protection.

Applications and additional information may be obtained by writing to: Director of Admissions, United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut 06320.

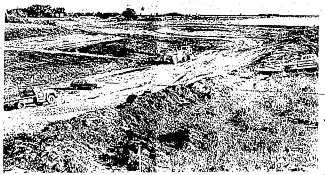
BURYING THE PIPE used as an outlet for water of the Little Black river are crews from the Den-Mar construction company of Frazee. The control structure for the Baird-Beyer project is shown at right with the forms still in place from concrete pouring. Dirt carried to and dumped around the pipe was packed with a pneumatic packer to assure stability.



HEAVY SCRAPERS worked in the reservoir area of the Baird-Beyer project northwest of Red Lake Falls, bringing material from the basin to use as fill on the dike. When filled to average capacity, the reservoir will contain 14 acres of water to a depth of about 12 feet.

Peatland Use Is Subject Of Thurs. Meeting

scale uses of peat for agriculture and horticulture were mentioned. Economic questions involved employment as a result of mining, revenue from taxation to the state and the counties in which mining might be done, and effect on people already living in the area. Questions were also asked on use of the area after peat has been mined, particularly regarding land reclamation and ownership.

Concern about the water table was also expressed since peatland is generally considered to have extremely high water-holding capacity.

Next meeting on the subject in this area will be publicized in advance of the session, Judge said, and she expressed the hope that a larger turn-out of people would result. An evening meeting was suggested by those in attendance as a better meeting time for more people.

Slow Market Cuts Gain In Farm Income

Weather and transportation problems that helped slow the marketing of Minnesota's record carry over inventories of grains and oilseed held the gain in gross income from farm marketings during the first half of 1979 well below regional and national averages, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin said recently.

Minnesota's January through June cash receipts from farm marketings have been estimated at $2,442 million, a gain of $291 million or 13.5 per cent above the first half of 1978. Nationally, farm marketing receipts were 18.6 per cent higher than a year ago.

Gross income from Minnesota farm marketings of crops was estimated at $1,030 million, up $132 million or 14.7 per cent. Marketing receipts from livestock and livestock products totaled $1,412 million, up by $159 million or 12.7 per cent above the first half of 1978.

Minnesota maintained its seventh leading position among all states in livestock marketing receipts, but dropped from sixth to ninth in crops receipts and from sixth to eighth in total marketing receipts for the first six months this year.

National farm marketing receipts for the January through June period this year totaled $57,293 million and were 18.6 per cent above 1978. Minnesota cash receipts represented 4.3 per cent of the national total.

Other states in the midwest region posted collective marketing receipts of $24,752 million for the first half of 1979 — a 25 per cent increase over last year, and almost double Minnesota's gain. Kansas topped the midwest gainers with an increase of over $1 billion or nearly 58 per cent greater than a year ago.

Road System A Top Priority For 1979-80

Minnesota legislators and media representatives rated maintaining the quality of Minnesota's road system a top priority for 1979-80 in two independent surveys conducted recently by Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. (MGRI).

In both surveys, an increase in the gasoline tax was the preferred choice for providing additional road funding in Minnesota. Sixty-two per cent of the media and 55 per cent of the legislators called for increases in the gas tax. Legislators and media also gave support to supplying additional road funding by allocating sales taxes on cars and trucks to the highway user fund. These dollars now go into the general fund.

Robert M. Johnson, MGRI executive director, said that these surveys substantiate the rising concern over Minnesota's transportation needs. "The recent deferral of 61 major highway improvements, due to lack of funds, literally has driven the point home for many Minnesotans," Johnson said. "Our roads are going to continue to deteriorate and cause problems throughout the state unless road funds are provided soon."

In one survey, 89 state senators and representatives responded from 45 rural, 17 urban and 27 suburban districts. Urban and suburban legislators listed the need to improve mass transit as their highest concern while rural legislators' major concern was the state's trunk highway system and the ability to move agricultural products to market.

Media representatives listed rural, local and city streets as being in the worst condition, with interstate and state trunk highways in the best condition, though no roads in the state received a perfect rating. There were 53 responses from members of the media with 19 from radio stations and 34 from the press. Of these, 36 were from rural areas and 17 from urban or suburban areas.

In considering the most urgent transportation need in their area, approximately half of the media listed specific local projects. Of the rest, highway maintenance, better mass transit, and upgraded railroads were cited as urgent needs. Sixty percent felt that rebuilding the rail lines was the best solution to the problem of getting agricultural products from the farm to the markets. Upgrading roads to nine tons year around came in with 32 per cent support.

Rural legislators indicated a high concern for the county road systems, two-lane roads, 9-ton roads and specific local projects. Suburban legislators expressed concern for the state trunk highway system, the county road system, 4-lane roads and specific local projects. Urban legislators' major concerns were mass transit, city streets and potholes.

"The problems are widespread," said Johnson, "and they differ from one area of the state to the next. In all cases, however, the solution carries a price tag. If we want good roads, we have to be willing to pay for them."

Minnesota Good Roads is an association of 15,000 concerned citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

MINUTES SEEM LIKE hours sometimes, especially when you're waiting to make something good to eat. Tim Nelson waited for his turn in line to dip his apple in caramel during the celebration of "Apple Week" at Northrop elementary school.

MMMMMM! MMMMMM! GOOD! More than ready for her turn in line to dip her apple in caramel, was Jennifer Johnson, second grade student at Northrop elementary school. Students at the school celebrated Apple Week to "honor the nutritious food," according to Jean Buhl, second grade teacher at the school.

WATCHING IS ALMOST as much fun as eating, according to Kent Westlin, second grade student at Northrop elementary school. Students gathered Wednesday to celebrate Apple Week by making carameled apples.

Enrollment At U of M Hits A Record High

Record numbers of students have enrolled at the University of Minnesota, making this year's fall quarter enrollment the highest in history. Total enrollment is 56,290, an increase of 1,087 students over last fall's figures.

Statistics were released Friday (Oct. 12) at the meeting of the Board of Regents in Crookston.

All-time high enrollments were reported for the Duluth campus, up 0.7 per cent to 6,855; at Morris, up 1.2 per cent to 1,450; at Waseca, up 5.8 per cent to 1,111; and at Crookston, up 2.4 per cent to 1,109. Enrollment on the Twin Cities campus is the second highest ever with 45,765 students, up 2.1 per cent.

Number of women enrolled increased again this year, and women now account for 45 per cent of the student body. While the number of men enrolled increased by less than one per cent, the number of women increased 3.4 per cent.

On the Twin Cities campus, the largest gains for women were reported in Medical School, with a 20.9 per cent increase; dentistry, with a 17.6 per cent increase; and pharmacy, with a 14.7 per cent increase. Enrollment of women in business administration increased by 17.2 per cent and rose 15.1 per cent in the Institute of Technology.

Total enrollment in the College of Liberal Arts, the largest college of the University, increased 1.5 per cent to 17,101; General College enrollment rose 8 per cent to 2,937.

University officials had projected a slight increase in enrollment but were surprised at the all-time high. It is difficult to determine why so many decided to enroll, accordint to Dave Berg, director of management planning and information services. "Institute of Technology enrollment could be attributed to the improving employment market for engineers and General College enrollment to students' fearing the cost of driving some distance to two-year colleges," Berg said.

Also, some of the increase in the College of Liberal Arts enrollment may be the result of a new, easier method of registration for students enrolling for the first time as "adult specials," Berg said. Adult specials are students who are not enrolled in a degree program.

"The record enrollments clearly signal that the human and practical value of education continues to be appreciated as much as ever and that each of the University's five campuses represents a valuable state resource," said University President C. Peter Magrath.

"Unfortunately, what the figures fail to indicate are the serious financial challenges that the University faces regardless of the size of our student body," Magrath said. "The costs of carrying out our state-mandated research and service responsibilities, as well as many of our educational obligations, are simply unrelated to student enrollments." Financial problems will grow as both inflation and demand increase, he said.

Seeks End To EEC Subsidies On Wheat Sale

That subsidies by European nations on wheat exports be brought to a halt is the intent of legislation co-sponsored by Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"The European economic community (EEC) is currently subsidizing sales of wheat to Egypt and this practice is unfair and disruptive to the American agricultural economy since it prevents the U.S. from competing on the international market for Egypt's wheat requirements. The subsidy per bushel of wheat supplied by EEC is up to $1.92. Last year this subsidy cost the American wheat grower $885 million in export earnings," Rep. Stangeland said.

The Seventh District congressman adds that the U.S. is providing Egypt with about $3 billion in economic and military aid in fiscal years 1979 and 1980, and even though this may not guarantee the U.S. the sale of any wheat they purchase, "it should allow us to compete on an equal basis.

"Fairness is all we're asking, and by passing this legislation Congress can strengthen the ability of our negotiators to deal with representatives from the EEC, and bring an end to this discriminatory trade practice," Stangeland said.

Choking Most Common Form Of Child Death

Cited as the most common cause of accidental death for children under age five in the home is inhalation of foreign objects. The Christmas seal people of the Minnesota Lung association say this kind of tragedy is largely preventable and they are offering a free brochure to help "Keep Your Child from Choking."

Trick-or-treat gifts present the first of holiday season health threat to pre-school children, the lung association warns. Small hard candies, peanuts and sunflower seeds can be inhaled (aspirated) into the lungs of little boys and girls. Youngsters out on Halloween are likely to laugh or run while eating treats, and this increases chances of the food "going down the wrong way."

From Halloween through the New Year, Minnesota homes will be filled with objects which increase this danger to young lungs, bits of carrot, crayon, corn, safety pins, buttons, nails and removable parts of toys are all likely to find their way into tiny hands, and from there into the mouth.

The Minnesota Lung association urges parents, baby sitters and older brothers and sisters to keep such objects out of young children's reach.

For the free leaflet, "Keep Your Child from Choking," contact your Minnesota Lung-Christmas Seal Association, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102 (612-227-8014). It's a matter of life and breath.

Roger Kardinal To Perform At Plummer H.S.

Folk and popular song stylist Roger Kardinal will present a concert at the Plummer public school, on Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

In high school Roger played professionally as a lead guitarist for a rock band. In 1969 he traded his electric guitar for a 12-string model and developed a repertoire of country, folk and easy rock songs. For the past several years he has played engagements in the schools and supper clubs of California, Oregon and the Midwest.

Two From TRF At Eau Claire

Fall enrollment at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire has increased to 10,629 students, a growth of 1.3 per cent from last year.

Students attending UW-EC from Thief River Falls this fall are Todd Trickle and Mario Erickson.

Driving On The Freeway Takes Special Skills

Today's freeways have shortened travel time and made both long and short distance trips easier and more pleasant. Freeway driving, however, demands special skills and knowledge of special hazards, notes the Minnesota safety council.

Fatigue is a hazard of driving mile after mile at constant speeds. If you drive the freeway, you need to be especially alert, so try to plan a rest stop at least once every 100 miles. Get out of the car, walk around, have a cup of coffee. You'll feel better when you arrive at your destination and you'll perform better as a driver on the way.

If you have car trouble, pull entirely off the traffic lanes of the raodway and stay with your vehicle if possible. Open the trunk, raise the hood and tie a white cloth to a door handle to indicate that you have a problem. Then, get back in your car and wait for a law enforcement officer to assist you.

The safety council urges special caution when entering and leaving the freeways. Use the acceleration lane of an entrance ramp to increase speed to match that of vehicles travelling the freeway, if possible. Watch for an opening in the traffic. Remember that you must yield to traffic already on the freeway when emerging from an entrance ramp if that traffic does not make room for your car.

When leaving the freeway, prepare ahead of time for your interchange by getting into the proper lane. Most freeway exits are right lane exits. Signal your turn, prepare to adjust your speed to posted exit limits and maneuver your car smoothly onto the ramp.

The Minnesota safety council points out that following too closely is a major cause of freeway accidents. A good rule to follow is to allow one car length for every 10 miles of speed under ideal driving conditions. If the weather or the road is unfavorable, allow more space.

You can check to see if you're maintaining proper following distance by watching the vehicle ahead pass some definite point on the freeway, such as a signpost, etc; count to yourself "one thousand and one, one thousand and two"; and if you reach the mark before you finish saying those words, increase the distance between the two autos — you're following too closely to stop safely in an emergency.

Freeway driving requires you to keep pace with the flow of traffic. Slow moving traffic is required by law to travel to the right. Avoid changing lanes unnecessarily. Find the lane where traffic is travelling the pace you prefer and stay in that lane. If you do change lanes, check traffic carefully and signal well in advance of the lane change. Obey posted speed limits — both maximum and minimum. Maximum speed limit on interstate freeways is 55 mph — a speed that is comfortable to drive and will save gas and lives.

For a free pamphelt on driving the freeways, write to the Minnesota safety council, 145 Hamm building, St. Paul 55102 or its northern area service office at 318 Missabe building, Duluth, 55802.

Insulation Measures Help Cut Fuel Waste

Fuel prices are rising sharply, and recent Minnesota winters have been colder than we would like. Both factors seem to indicate this is the year to set up a battle plan against heating fuel waste. Even if you're already saving fuel, chances are your budget will benefit from doing more.

Insulation reduces heat movement within your walls and attic, and keeps heat inside. Because insulation can cover such a large part of your total house surface area, it can have a large effect. There is no "best" kind of insulation. Some have higher R values per inch, but they may cost more. Some may be easy to put in yourself; others might require a contractor or special equipment. If you already have one kind of insulation, you may want to stick with that kind. No matter which type you choose, make sure the R value is clear on the packaging and that resistance to vermin and fire is noted.

Insulation works by increasing the resistance to the flow of heat. Higher the R value, the greater the resistance. To evaluate insulating materials and to figure how thick your insulation should be, compare R values. If you're adding insulation, make sure each R you add pays for itself in fuel savings in a reasonable amount of time. For instance, you can save up to $130 on your heating bill this winter by increasing your attic insulation from 3½ to 10 inches.

Standards for new buildings in Minnesota require an approximate R value of 30 in the ceiling. This should be considered a minimum. Over the long run, R values of 38 for a home heated by natural gas, and R 48 if heated by fuel oil, electricity of propane are good economic investments.

There are four main types of insulation from which to choose. Loose fill is one of the most commonly used types of insulation. It can be poured or blown into unfinished attic floors, or blown under finished attic floors and in walls. Materials available are fiberglass, mineral wool, cellulose and vermiculite.

Batts and blankets are best suited for standard joist or rafter spacing of 16" and 24" and when the space between the joists is relatively free of obstructions. Batts and blankets of fiberglass or mineral wool come with or without a vapor barrier backing. Do not use a vapor barrier when installing over old insulation.

Rigid board insulation is not normally used in attic floors. But for added insulation in cathedral-type ceilings and in mobile homes, rigid boards can be added. Be sure to cover the boards with ½" gypsum or sheetrock for fire safety.

Ureaformaldehyde foam should not be used in attics or slanted roof application, but is used to advantage in walls. Foam is fire resistant, and it has a higher R value per inch than more conventional insulation materials. It does not form its own vapor barrier, and foam can only be contractor installed.

More detailed information on insulation is available from the Minnesota energy agency. Call 296-5175 in the Twin Cities metropolitan area or if you live outstate, call toll-free 800-652-9747. The agency has a pamphlet available entitled, Conservation guide 2 — ceiling reinsulation.

Discovery Place Sponsors Child Food Program

Discovery place announces the sponsorship of the child care food program. Meals are available, at no separate charge, to all enrolled children without regard to race, color, or national origin at 305 East Nora, Thief River Falls.

Although UNICEF helps children in more than 100 developing countries, most of its assistance is concentrated in those nations with a per capita Gross National Income (GNP; below $600 (often as low as $200) 15 per cent less than the comparable U.S. figure of $8600. Small wonder that Americans respond generously to our own children's cries of "Trick or Treat for UNICEF" at Halloween.

A Substitute Mirror

Following editorial is from the Milbank (S.D.) Herald Advance:

An article by Marcia Nilles in the August 29 issue of the Des Moines Register says parents who abdicate their responsibility in helping teach their children are asking for problems.

She scolds parents who clamor for teacher accountability or parents who sue schools for failing to educate their children.

"What if teachers and schools could sue parents for failure to instill in their children positive attitudes toward school and education?" she asks.

She goes on to question who is to blame for students who are disruptive and interrupt teachers, etc., because they have not learned respect for others, do not have any manners and have negative attitudes about school. "Whose job is it to teach children basic concepts of behavior? Who has the most influence in helping a child determine his or her own values?" continues Nilles.

She is persuasive when she contends that a child learns and gets feelings at home that are more influential that what he or she learns in school. "Children emulate their parents," she argues. "If Father is loud and boisterous in public, odds are the children will be too. If a parent thinks it is clever to break the law and belittle authority, the child will probably have the same attitude. . .If a parent thinks school is a waste, so will the child. . .If a child comes from a home where regular study is not encouraged, where TV replaces family sharing, where children see little use for reading. . .a teacher probably won't be able to turn that child into a successful reader.

"Most successful students are those from homes where parents have a respect for rules and authority, are considerate of others and value education as a means of being a successful citizen. . .

"One must care from the moment the child is born. People who become parents must be willing to sacrifice most of their waking hours in order to provide positive atmosphere in which their children can grow physically and intellectually. . ." claims this writer.

You can look in a mirror, parents, to see if any of what Nilles says applies to you. But if you don't have a mirror, you can just take a look at your children. The reflection of yourself might be pretty good.

Junk Mail Blues

Following editorial is from the Montevideo American News:

Some people get frustrated when they don't get any mail. I am among those increasingly large group of folks who get frustrated when they receive too much mail.

At my post office the problem is junk mail, naturally. For years I've spent hours poring over sweepstakes contest rules and prizes, checking through book and record and Christmas card catalogs, weighing the amount of emotion a heart-rendering letter of appeal for money had elicited against the meager coffers of my checking account, and deciding which magazines would keep filling my mind with provocative ideas when they weren't collecting dust in the "To Be Read" piles at home.

Now, a victim of too much junk mail, I simply chuck it all.

At the office the problem is similar but more complex. Some days it seems the only mail you look at is from government agencies explaining new programs, announcing new grants, preparing comprehensive plans or holding vital workshops. Other days, women and other disadvantaged souls keep the postal business booming with notices about "The Work & Roles of Women in West Central Minnesota," or "It's Willmar Area Marriage Encounter" time again, or announcing conferences for widowed persons or assertiveness training sessions — and these are just the ones that didn't go immediately into the circular file. . .

Having never taken a master's degree course in journalism, I don't know what the good professors have to say about drawing lines at what informative articles you probably should publish and what informative articles you don't really need to publish. If we published all the news items sent to us by Senators Durenberger and Boschwitz, we'd use up a good page to two pages every week and who would read it? If we published every notice Secretary of State Joan Growe sends out about vacancies in state appointive positions, we'd be forced to leave out local stories — and who would apply for the state positions, anyway? If we printed items on every course offered for adults in our area's colleges and vo-techs, we'd probably get a plaque from some educational association; but who would apply to and drive to all those courses? We know how many local adult education courses are cancelled because of lack of participants.

We have to assume that people know where to go for certain information. Often you can go to the newspaper and find out what you're looking for. More often you can call or write the agency you think can help with your request and find the answer more quickly.

It's a city government's job to find out which grants it can apply for. It's a school's job to tell seniors where they can apply for scholarships. It's my job to throw away half to three-quarters of the news releases we get in order that (1) our paper can be filled with more interesting things, and (2) our country might save a few bucks by saving a portion of grant monies not spent because not enough people applied for them, or by eventually holding fewer nonessential workshops that few people attend, and by cutting printing bills by publishing fewer boring news releases that no one pays attention to anyway.

And this week, that's the way it is.

Ashbach No Respecter

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

Minnesota Senate Minority Leader Robert Ashbach, IR-Arden Hills, is no respecter of political party when it comes to disagreeing with projections of surplus in the Minnesota treasury.

For the past three bienniums, Republican Ashbach has disagreed with DFL administrations on surplus projections. Ashbach has consistently been closer to the mark, projecting surpluses in excess of DFL finance commissioners.

Last week, Ashbach said he expects the state will have a surplus of more than $200 million at the end of the current biennium, while the Republican administration of Gov. Albert Quie has estimated a $66.2 million surplus.

However, Quie's finance commissioner, Wayne Burggraaf, indicated that Ashbach might be jumping the gun on him. Burggraaf said his department expects to revise its projections in December. He said that Minnesota has not been affected by the business recession that has hit other parts of the nation, and that revisions by his agency could increase estimates of surplus in $50 million to $100 million increments.

With Ashbach's track record of accuracy, we expect that the finance commissioner will take an extremely close look at the figures and resist what might be a natural tendency of administrations to estimate on the conservative side.

Ashbach's differences with previous administrations reached a heated point in 1978 when DFL Gov. Rudy Perpich grew weary of defending his finance commissioner's projections and agreed to the appointment of a bipartisan committee to make a projection. Ashbach had estimated a surplus of $341 million by last June 30. Perpich's administration had projected $70 million.

The three-member committee failed to agree on a figure. The actual surplus, about $300 million, was close to the Ashbach projection.

Over several years Ashbach had been fighting for tax cuts which would come out of the surplus. The tax cuts did come in the 1979 session.

This year, Ashbach has been opposing suggestions by some DFLers that a proposed emergency heating assistance program be financed at the expense of some of the tax relief. House DFLers last month were suggesting that the Legislature could delay the effective date of some of the tax cut bill in order to free up $50 million to finance a state program of heating assistance to the needy.

Ashbach and Gov. Quie have been vocal in opposing any delays in tax relief.

We agree with the stand of the governor: If subsidization of heating costs is necessary, it is primarily a national problem.

If state matching funds are needed, they can come out of the surplus in the treasury, or by cutting spending programs. Tax relief has been too long coming for Minnesotans and should not be threatened by the fuel oil cost problem.

Interesting Opinions:

"In the last 20 years we have lost one million acres of cropland annually. At this rate, by the year 2000, we will have lost enough farmland to annually feed the combined populations of Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark and Belgium."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

A key challenge Americans must urgently face is whether we can reduce environmental regulatory costs without sacrificing basic environmental goals. The problem is not so much the air and water pollution standards themselves. After all, business people do live here, too! So while some standards are neither reasonable nor cost-effective, the real problem is the rigid and costly way they are enforced. Regulators want to dictate both what industry must do and how it must do it. That does not make sense.

By one estimate, the air and water pollution control regulations issued by the environmental protection agency account for 77 per cent of all the added costs industrial firms incur in complying with federal, state and local regulations of all types. So when you take all these costly regulations, then blend in the dangerous brew of excessive federal spending, taxation and printing of money, it's clear what you're going to create: Higher inflation, lost jobs, wasted energy, lower productivity and a weakening of America's ability to compete in world markets.

The recent economic distress signals that we've seen dominating the news — wild increases in the prices of gold and silver, the dollar under siege, and panic-selling on Wall Street — all provide dramatic proof that Washington must stop this abuse of our economy.

In the regulatory area, the business community should be given the opportunity to provide leadership and use its expertise to reduce both costs and pollution. Take a look at a case in point: Armco, Inc., a steel company in Middletown, Ohio. Today's environmental protection regulations spell out detailed requirements for control systems on each separate smokestack or device. Armco already effectively controls all primary sources of air pollution, having spent more than $188 million since 1955 on various air pollution controls. But under current regulations, it must do still more. It must attempt to capture those last few wisps of smoke — fugitive emissions — which occur only sporadically. To do so would cost more than everything the company has spent so far.

Armco has proposed a better alternative, the bubble concept, which could allow the company to produce cleaner air than today's rules, yet save vast sums of money. This concept would replace stack-by-stack regulations by establishing an imaginary bubble over the entire facility. EPA and the state would then decide total allowable emissions coming from that site. In return, plant managers would be permitted to decide which mix of pollution controls for the entire plant would be most cost effective — in other words, the company could determine how to get what EPA says must be obtained.

Obviously, the key to the success of the bubble concept lies in not limiting its application. For example, Armco's own testing revealed that 49 per cent of all the plant's particle emissions came from raw materials, storage piles, unpaved roads, dusty paved roads and open areas. By spraying water on storage piles of iron ore, Armco estimates it could control about 284 tons of iron oxide and dust particles each year at a cost of $704 a ton. By contrast, it would cost the company $8,500 a ton to recapture some of the 309 tons of iron oxide emitted from its blast furnaces, and mind-boggling $35,700 a ton to dig into the 140 tons emitted from its open-health furnaces.

The savings could be tremendous, and not just in terms of capital expenditures. With the bubble concept in place, the steel industry alone could save 4.3 million barrels of oil a year. And by applying the concept throughout American industry the potential for increased energy conservation would be enormous.

Business has come up with a better idea. . .will government listen? Business' leaders are not asking for special favors; they're asking for common sense, for the basic recognition that they are the employers and providers of America, and finally, for the understanding that they can only meet those responsibilities if their firms are not pushed over the financial brink by runaway regulations?

There are indications that EPA is moving in this direction and would like to help industry find more intelligent ways to regulate. We intend to follow up and will keep you informed.

Citizens living alone, particularly the elderly and physically handicapped, are often confronted with the question: "What happens if I am alone and something happens to me? How do I summon help?"

An increasing number of firms are selling services which utilize dialing devices or transmitters linked to central computer rooms to enable citizens to send emergency medical messages to appropriate officials from home.

While there are many reputable companies offering the services, it is a field which can attract "con men" who prey on loneliness.

An unscrupulous operator may charge an unreasonably high price for a service or employ advertising which takes advantage of your inability to summon help in an emergency. He also may attempt to sell you a device which will not work with your telephone system.

If you are considering purchase of a medical alert device, here are some things you should ask about:

—Find out how long the company has been in business.

—Find out where some successful operations are and check them out.

—Ask your doctor, fire department and police department whether the company has contacted them and whether the system works and is compatible with their operations.

—If a transmitter device is used, find out its range, where you are in relation to the receiver and whether it will work in other places. For example, some transmitters will not transmit from a basement laundry.

—Find out where the communications center is located and ask to inspect it.

—Determine what the maintenance costs of the device are.

—Find out whether there is a warranty on the device and what the warranty covers.

—Check around to see whether similar devices are available at less cost. Check with your doctor, fire department and police department.

—Determine whether other methods of protection are available to you.

Various senior citizen and handicapped interest groups will be able to assist you in making a decision.

The computer age has created many electronic wonders. If you are considering purchasing an electronic alert device, make sure you are buying something that will work for you at the lowest possible cost.

If you check everything out and things still do not look right or if you have questions on any consumer matter, write the Consumer Protection Division, Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Prairie Island Accident Tests Nuclear Plan

The incident that occurred at the Prairie Island nuclear power plant October 2 unexpectedly tested Minnesota's new nuclear power plant accident response plan, according to Commissioner John P. Sopsic, department of public safety.

According to the commissioner, the emergency services division of the department of public safety was directed by Governor Quie last April to develop a state response plan that would provide assistance to the cities and counties within the vicinity of nuclear power plants in the event of a nuclear accident.

Department of public safety gave high priority to the development and completion of the state nuclear power plant accident response plan. Kenneth Parsch from the commissioner's office helped coordinate and expedite the completion of the plan.

August 30, 1979, the completed plan was submitted to the nuclear regulatory commission (NCR) for concurrence. NCR has indicated that the concurrence procedure should be completed by January 1980.

"The Division learned more from this real incident than from any exercise we could have planned," said Deidre Krause, emergency services plans and operations officer. "We believe that Minnesota has one of the best response plans in the nation, and the division is pledged to continually upgrade the plan to keep it so."

Prairie Island incident occurred at approximately 2:14 p.m. October 2. By roughly 2:32 p.m. an emergency services duty officer received a call from the Prairie Island control room that it appeared a pipe in the primary cooling system had ruptured.

"This set the response plan into action," said Krause. "The duty officer immediately notified the health department, and other division personnel began notifying all state agencies involved under the plan, the State of Wisconsin, the NRC, the U.S. Department of energy, and the federal emergency management agency of the situation.

"For additional protection, Goodhue county and the City of Red Wing were called to confirm that they had been notified by NSP as specified in the plan," she added.

According to Krause, all notifications were completed within 15 minutes of the initial notification from the Prairie Island plant, and within 30 minutes the State emergency operations center, located in the basement of the State Capitol, was fully operational.

Situation appeared to be under control at this time, but the State and Goodhue county were prepared to provide information to the public if an evacuation was needed.

"If an evacuation was necessary because of radiation fallout, the public would have been instructed to leave the city and travel a minimum of 25 miles away to a relative's or friend's home," said Krause. "If this was impossible, people would have been instructed to go to designated cities where emergency housing was available."

Health department dispatched teams with the cooperation of the state patrol to perform radiological monitoring. Results of Health department's testing confirmed the information provided by NSP and NRC.

"There will be a planned exercise as part of the NRC concurrance sometime in November," said Krause. "The public and the media will be notified of the event and any changes indicated during the exercise will receive immediate attention. Every Minnesotan can be confident that the State of Minnesota will provide the best possible assistance in the event of a nuclear power plant accident."

Senator Urges IRS To Allow Tree Losses

A bill to be introduced in the Senate by Senator Dave Durenberger will ease the financial burden for property owners who must remove diseased trees. Durenberger's bill will change the Internal Revenue service code so that trees lost to Dutch elm disease will be considered casualty losses.

The IRS has ruled that in order to qualify for a deduction on federal taxes, a casualty must meet a "suddenness test." The U.S. Circuit Court for Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has held that the disease is progressive and is not a sudden loss.

"Minnesota has appropriated more than $50 million since 1977 to help municipalities and individuals meet the cost of removing and replacing trees," said Durenberger. "Even with that help the financial burden for many property owners, especially those with fixed or low incomes, is substantial. This bill will give them some relief by at least allowing the loss to be tax deductible."

Last year almost 100,000 elms on private perperty were marked for removal. With an average removal cost of $175 per tree, Minnesotans in 1978 incurred a total loss of up to $17.5 million.

"Although researchers have had some success in slowing the spread of the disease, a cure has not been found," Sen. Durenberger said. "One of the best ways to fight the spread is early detection and removal. The effectiveness of this program depends mostly on private citizens. They must bear the financial burden of saving their trees and those of their neighbors. Every incentive for action must be provided. In most cases the disease isn't caused by owner neglect. It's like the storm loss which is already eligible for a casulaty loss deduction."

Critic Praises Bohemian Folk Ballet At LHS

by Carmen Henderson

Thief River Falls was very fortunate to have had the Bohemian Folk Ballet from Prague, Czechoslovakia perform on Monday night at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

The program started with the introduction of the company by Inka Vostrezova, choreographer and interpreter. The charming blonde woman in fluent English let the audience know of the principal areas in Czechoslovakia such as Moravia, Bohemia and Slovakia which the dancers would represent im their dances and music.

The orchestra was outstanding, the cymbalon being a unique attraction among all the instruments.

In all we saw dances, colorful costuming, vocal soloists and musical numbers. The girl dancers were radiant in their beautiful and attractive costumes; the men very masculine and athletic looking.

Dance selections included "Vlashiko", an exotic gypsy dance from East Slovakia. "The Poppy Dance" was very well done as their graceful movements depicted the work in the fields in the cultivation of the puppy, red being the predominant color of their outfits. "Zeardas", was a very lively dance from Slovakia, in which the men wore spurs on their boots; and a favorite — especially of the children — was "South Bohemian Carnival", depicting a traditional carnival at some of the villages and towns.

The audience was very responsive and seemed to have enjoyed the performance immensely just as I did. I hope in the near future we'll be able to bring many such attractions to our town to show that we are interested in the performing arts, not only from our country but also from our good foreign neighbors.

Area Students Enroll At Oak Hills Institute

Debra Nygaard and Rolland Roseland are members of the 30-voice Oak Hills choir which presents musical concerts in churches throughout the school year, and a special Christmas cantata at Oak Hills during the Christmas season. The choir's activities are climaxed with a two-week tour in a five-state area presenting sacred concerts.

Jonson Takes Part In Small Business Meet

Don Jonson, small business management instructor from Thief River Falls AVTI, joined a select group of 11 other SBM instructors from throughout the United States in a week-long curriculum workshop. Purpose of the workshop, sponsored by the University of Minnesota, the Duluth school system and the state departments of education of participating states, and held in St. Paul, was to update and revise the curriculum used in adult small business management programs.

Model SBM program, developed by the University of Minnesota in 1972, has been adopted by about 60 schools in seven states as part of their adult outreach effort. A chief concern of this workship was to insure that the curriculum represented the current concerns of adult enrollees and addressed the concepts essential for success as a small business operator.

Results of the workshop will be made available for use by small business management instructors throughout the country.

While discotheque dancing is growing in popularity, participants should exercise care to insure they are not exposed to excessively loud sounds for prolonged periods of time. Such exposure could lead to a serious, and even permanent, hearing loss.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My mother had breast cancer. Am I likely to get it too?

Susan

Dear Susan:

Current evidence indicates that daughters and sisters of patients with cancer of the breast are at slightly higher risk than the general population for developing breast cancer.

A history of Breast cancer on the maternal side of the family is connected with a somewhat greater risk of developing breast cancer than is a history of breast cancer on the paternal side of the family. However, any history of breast cancer on either side of the family is an increased risk factor. Anyone with such a history should practice regular breast self-examination and have a breast examination by a physician at least once a year.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My father has cancer and needs to pay his medical bills. Do you know who can help us?

R.W.

Dear R.W.:

Does your father have any insurance now? If so, contact the insurance company to find out what is covered. If your father is 65 or older, inquire at your county's Social Security office about Medicare. Medicare can usually cover about 80 per cent of the cost on inpatient hospital care.

If he is under 65 and is severely disabled, check with the Social Security office about applying for the Supplemental Security Income Program. This program assures a basic cash income and covers medical expenses for people under 65 who are severely disabled.

You should also contact your county's Social Service Department and ask about applying for Medicaid. Medicaid is an assistance program that provides medical services to people who have enough income for basic living expenses but not enough to meet the costs of medical care. The Department of Social Services will determine if your father is eligible for the Medicaid program. The people at the department will explain the requirements and details of the program and will assess your father's income level, financial reserve level and his medical expenses.

If you live in Minnesota, there is a program to help people who have had very high expenses for health care which no insurance company or other plan of health coverage will pay. This Catastrophic Health Expense Protection Program ("CHEPP") will pay 90 per cent of the reasonable cost of covered services over and above an annual deductible. You can receive additional information about this program or apply for benefits at your county welfare or social service office.

You should also contact your local chapter of the American Cancer Society. Although the ACS usually can't provide money for medical bills, they might be able to provide some funds for transportation to treatment centers, health care equipment and other services. To obtain the name of the volunteer ACS Service Chairman in your County, write to the American Cancer Society office in your state: Minnesota Division, 2750 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55407.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My doctor recently did some tests and told me I had an overactive thyroid. He said it would be best to treat it with radioactive iodine. I am supposed to drink something with radioactive iodine in it. Could you explain how this works? Isn't it dangerous to swallow something radioactive?

Also do you think it might cause cancer in the future?

Mrs. K.P.R.

Dear Mrs. K.P.R.:

An overactive thyroid can be treated in several ways. Radioactive iodine is considered in many cases to be an ideal method. It is effective because the radioactive substance swallowed by the patient is quickly absorbed by the bloodstream and taken directly to the thyroid gland. This is why no damage is done to other tissues. It remains in the thyroid gland just long enough to do its work — seldom more than two or three days. Then it is excreted.

Here is why radioactive iodine works so effectively. Normally, the thyroid gland picks up iodine from the bloodstream to make thyroid hormones. (Iodine is present in small quantities in the food we eat.) Since the thyroid gland doesn't distinguish between normal iodine and radioactive iodine, both are taken up in the same way.

The radiation from the radioactive iodine damages the thyroid cells so that they become less active. Radioactive iodine does not remain in the body for a long period of time. It is excreted in the urine, usually within a few days. An overactive thyroid will absorb radioactive iodine from the bloodstream and excrete it more quickly — sometimes even three times faster than a normal thyroid would.

After being treated with radioactive iodine, the patient may eventually become hypothyroid, which means that the thyroid is now underactive. But this may happen after any kind of treatment for an overactive thyroid. When the thyroid becomes underactive, it is treated simply by giving the patient a thyroid tablet daily, that will be equal to the amount of thyroid hormone normally produced in the thyroid gland.

No evidence indicates that the use of radioactive iodine in the amount administered today can later cause cancer of the thyroid. In fact, some statistics suggest that people treated with radioactive iodine may have less chance of developing cancer of the thyroid than those who have had normal thyroids all their lives.

These findings contrast with the statistics on patients who have received radiation therapy of their thyroid glands from an x-ray machine. Such persons seem to have an increased risk of getting thyroid tumors.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Early this year, my husband died of cancer. Someone told me that if I had intercourse with him while he had cancer that I too would be likely to have this disease. Is that true?

J.F.D.

Dear J.F.D.:

No, that statement is not true. Although cancer has many characteristics which scientists do not yet understand, they are certain that the disease is not passed from one person to another by sexual relations or physical intimacy of any kind. Therefore, you have no reason to worry about this.

Golden Valley Club Here Saturday

That Golden Valley Lutheran football team scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Saturday to play Northland community college in a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game features the premiere tight end in the MJCAA in Dan "Bomber" Johnson, a 6-3, 255-pounder from suburban Crystal.

Major colleges, including Big Ten schools, are taking a close look at Johnson who caught 19 passes for 333 yards and five touchdowns as the Royals won their first six games en route to a No. 8 ranking in the national junior college football pool. One of his touchdowns was on an end-around rushing play which he's run a half-dozen times.

"Bomber doesn't run away from people," Golden Valley Lutheran athletic director Bill Lundquist told Greg Carlson of the North Hennepin Post. "He runs over them."

Golden Valley head coach Dave Skrien noted, "Bomber's big enough. He can run and he's got good hands. Maybe he lacks a lot of technique because we don't play spring ball, but he's got a chance to play major college football."

Skrien isn't sure how good his division-leading ball club is. The Royals haven't been tested very seriously in rolling over-out-classed division opponents. "I'd like to have tougher competition," said Skrien in a Northern Division put-down. "Not that I don't like to win. We've probably only had two tough games."

It's obviously going to be a big challenge Saturday for the Northmen who have been outscored 137-0 in losing three times to the Royals since joining the MJCAA in 1976. Golden Valley Lutheran beat Northland 62-0 in 1976 in the Twin Cities, won 28-0 here in 1978 and breezed to a 47-0 triumph last year at Golden Valley.

Miscellaneous

+Last Tuesday, Lincoln high school football coach Gene Jurgens, looking back on a 28-22 loss to Fergus Falls when the Prowlers fumbled six times, losing five of them, and looking ahead to Wednesday's game at East Grand Forks, said his team had to eliminate that kind of mistake. "Fumble the ball six times again this week and I'm sure the outcome will be the same," he said. What happened? The Prowlers fumbled exactly six times the next night, losing four, and lost a 20-18 decision to the Green Wave.

+Northwest Athletic Conference champion Crookston will not know until after Tues., Oct. 30, who its first round Class A state football playoff opponent will be. Champions from the Mid-State and Seaway conferences will meet that day in a state playoff qualifying game to determine a quarterfinal opponent for the Pirates. Two Harbors has clinched the Seaway Conference title, but Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton and Park Rapids are involved in a three-way first place tie in the Mid-State Conference where final regular season games will be played Thursday when Staples will be at Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton at Wadena and Aitkin at Park Rapids. If the three schools wind up in a tie for the championship, a vote of the conference coaches will determine which team will advance to the post-season playoffs.

+ Detroit Lakes' 1979 Region 8AA champion girls high school tennis team has just one senior — No. 1 singles player Ann Pettit — in its line-up heading into this week's state tournament. No. 2 singles player Bonnie Berenz, No. 1 doubles teammates Jane Ries and Val Schaleben, along with Chris Kunz of the Lakers' No. 2 doubles team are all sophomores. Lori Berenz, who teammed with Kunz, is a ninth grader and Kjersten Hanson and LeAnn Johnson, who have alternated at No. 3 singles, are eighth graders.

+ Two key high school football games in northwestern Minnesota this week will decide conference titles and state playoff entries when unbeaten Gonvick and once-beaten McIntosh-Winger clash in a nine-man North Tri County Conference game at McIntosh Tuesday night, followed by a long-awaited battle of Pine-to-Prairie Conference unbeatens Fertile-Beltrami and Mahnomen Thursday night at Mahnomen.

+Dale Smedsmo and Earl Anderson, a pair of former Roseau high school hockey stars who went on to play professional hockey, have joined together to form the D & E Sports Shop in Roseau. Smedsmo played 2½ years at Bemidji State University before joining the Toronto Maple Leafs organization and was with Cincinnati in the WHA. Anderson played four years at the University of North Dakota, spent a year in England and then played with the Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins of the NHL. Smedsmo and Anderson will both play for the Roseau Leafs senior amateur hockey team this winter.

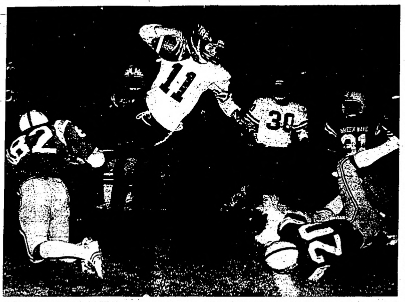
THIEF RIVER FALLS



THIEF RIVER FALLS quarterback Jeff Ulrich was airborne when he scored a go-ahead touchdown from the East Grand Forks four-yard line in the fourth quarter of Wednesday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played at East Grand Forks. Dave Swanberg (82) of the Green Wave came up to make the stop, but Ulrich went to the air and managed to land on the goal line to put the Prowlers ahead 18-14 with 8:58 remaining. John Dillon of the Prowlers (30), along with Dave Jerome (81) of the Green Wave matched the action, with Paul Hjelle (20) already blocked out of the play. East Grand Forks came back to score with just 22 seconds remaining, taking a 20-18 decision away from the Prowlers and eliminating them from the NWAC championship race. Thief River Falls will close out its 1979 season Friday, hosting rival Crookston. Game time is 7:30 p.m. on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Green Wave Pulls Out NWAC Win In Final Seconds . . .

EGF Ends TRF Title Hopes 20-18

It's all over. Thief River Falls' bid for a Northwest Athletic Conference football championship, seemingly so bright after a stunning 22-21 upset victory over No. 2 ranked Bemidji three weeks ago, was rejected Wednesday when the Prowlers blew an 18-14 lead in the final seconds to come up a 20-18 loser at East Grand Forks.

The demoralizing defeat was costly for the Prowlers. It cost them a shot at an NWAC title; it cost them a spot in the post-season Class A state playoffs; and it cost them a chance for their first winning season since 1974.

Thief River Falls will carry a 3-5 record, 1-2 in the NWAC, into the final game of the 1979 season Friday against Crookston. The 7:30 p.m. game here should have been for a chance to realize all three of those before-mentioned dreams for the Prowlers who appeared headed for a come-from-behind 18-14 win in the MEA mid-week game at East Grand Forks.

But the gutsy Green Wave, trailing by four, overcame a pair of fourth-and-eight situations in the final two minutes of the fourth quarter to sustain what wound up as a 13-play, 67-yard game-winning touchdown drive.

Senior Todd Selk and junior Jeff Strandell, who alternated as quarterbacks in coach Gary Berg's unorthodox play-calling system, both had a hand in the late game East Grand Forks comeback. Selk turned that first fourth down play from the East Grand Forks 35 into a first down at the Thief River Falls 44 with a 21-yard screen pass to John Roche as an unofficial two-minute warning showed on the scoreboard.

Three plays later Strandell turned a fourth down at the Thief River Falls 42 into a first down at the 15 when he found Dave Jerome standing all alone in the Thief River Falls secondary with 1:34 left.

"We know we can throw the ball. We've been having trouble catching it," mentioned Berg.

The Strandell-to-Jerome pass, after Thief River Falls safety Bill Jury had slipped on the slick East Grand Forks turf, gave the Green Wave enough time to call five running plays that led to a one-yard Rob Sorenson touchdown dive through the middle with just 22 seconds left.

"I'm very pleased with that last drive," smiled Berg a few minutes later. "It was pretty basic football."

Thief River Fall, rallying from a 14-6 deficit with two touchdowns in a two-minute span to start the wild fourth quarter, tried to come back at the end when a Tom Bjorkman halfback option pass on a reverse ended up as a 40-yard completion to quarterback Jeff Ulrich at the East Grand Forks 36 — but with only eight seconds on the clock. A long Ulrich desperation pass was picked off by Selk on the game's final play.

It was the inovative Thief River Falls passing game that made it close. That Bjorkman-to-Ulrich thing produced a touchdown at the end of the first half after a Jury interception of a Strandell pass at the East Grand Forks 31 with 2:44 remaining. Ulrich was wide open on the left side on the six-yard scoring play with 21 seconds left that brought Thief River Falls to within 7-6.

"Then after falling behind 14-6, Thief River Falls got back in it when Ulrich tossed a screen pass over the middle to fullback John Dillon who rambled 34 yards to reach the corner of the end zone on the third play of the fourth quarter.

"We practiced against the screen all week, but we didn't react to it today," admitted Berg.

Defensive back Brian Culkins came up with a Sorenson fumble recovery at the East Grand Forks 40-yard line on the first Green Wave snap after the Thief River Fall touchdown and the Prowlers scored in four plays. Ulrich went 14 yards around the left side, Jury was brilliant on a spinning 18-yard burst through the middle and Ulrich picked up a pair of four-yard gains, sailing into the end zone on the right side with a 8:58 to go for an 18-14 lead.

But for the third time the Prowlers failed to add the conversion points as Ulrich missed a swing pass to Bjorkman. East Grand Forks defended an Ulrich pass attempt to Dillon well after the second Thief River Falls touchdown and Ulrich slipped on the first two-point try, an aborted option run.

"The field was really slick," complained Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens. "There was no footing. We were slipping all over the place out there."

The conversions — or rather, the missed conversion — were the obvious tell-tale factors. "If we convert the extra points. . .," sighed Jurgens, his voice trailing off on the uncompleted sentence.

Officiating wasn't a very happy subject either for Jurgens who wasn't too keen on their spots (ball placement after a completed play) and their decisions dealing with fumbles.

East Grand Forks was given a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when officials said Culkins touched a John Roche punt that he tried to receive ala Willie Mays with his back turned to the line of scrimmage. It appeared Culkins did not touch the ball, and in fact made no motion to go after it once it sailed over his head. He was shocked when the officials ruled it a fumble and gave the ball to East Grand Forks when two Green Wave players fell on it at the Thief River Falls four-yard line.

Sorenson scored on the next play.

"The refs gave them one; we gave them one; and they scored one," was the way Jurgens described the East Grand Forks touchdowns.

Crookston Is NWAC Football Champion, 15-6

Crookston, after dominating play, settled for a 15-6 final spread Friday as the Pirates humbled Bemidji in a title-deciding Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game played at Crookston.

The victory clinched the 1979 NWAC pennant for the Pirates who close out their regular season schedule Friday at Thief River Falls. Crookston, 5-3 for the year and 3-0 in the NWAC, will appear in the Class A state football playoffs Sat., Nov. 3, when the Pirates' quarterfinal round opponent will be the winner between a qualifying game matching the champions from the Mid-State and Seaway Conferences.

Although they had trouble scoring, Crookston carried the play in Friday's long-awaited clash against Bemidji, the defending NWAC champion and a preseason choice to repeat its 1978 title. The Pirates rattled off 79 offensive plays to the Lumberjacks' 45; held at 33:21 to 14:39 edge in time of possession; ran up 19 first downs and 252 yards while limiting Bemidji to just six first downs and 115 yards.

Crookston scored first when quarterback Tim Knotek, who directed the Pirates' option offense and picked up 76 yards in 14 carried himself, covered 18 yards in the first quarter to complete an 82-yard, 13-play drive. Bob Paluson added the conversion kick.

A fumble recovery at the Crookston 29-yard line in the second quarter set up Nelson Rotto's 23-yard touchdown. The extra point try failed, though, and the Lumberjacks never again had a chance to lead in the title showdown.

Crookston's domination but failure to score scheme was underlined in the fourth quarter when the Pirates ate up over eight minutes on an 18-play, 59-yard drive that produced a first-and-goal situation inside the Bemidji one-yard line. Remarkably, the Pirates never scored, turning the ball over on downs, but with just 1:30 remaining.

Moments later defensive back Steve Johnson intercepted a Bemidji pass at the Lumberjacks' 18-yard line and ran it back for a game-clinching touchdown.

Trent Weiss led Crookston with 81 yards, with Johnson adding 75. Bemidji star Dale Leonard, who rushed for 250 yards a week earlier in a 33-8 win over East Grand Forks, was held in to a mere 26 yards by the Crookston defense.

Bemidji, now 6-2 and 2-2 in the NWAC, will end the year at Grand Rapids Friday.

COMING UP TO make a key stop in the fourth quarter of Wednesday's Thief River Falls vs. East Grand Forks high school football game was defensive back Bill Jury (44) of the Prowlers who forced quarterback Todd Selk of the Green Wave out of bounds at the Thief River Falls 30-yard line, just inches short of a first down on a fourth-and-four rollout with 4:35 remaining in the game. Brian Culkins (90) of the Prowlers trailed Jury. East Grand Forks trailed 18-14 at the time and it looked like the play would be a game-winner. But the Green Wave held the Prowlers on downs, forced a punt and marched 67 yards in 13 plays to score with just 22 seconds left for a 20-18 victory. The Prowlers, 3-5, host Crookston Friday.

Four plays later the Prowlers went ahead on a four-yard Jeff Ulrich touchdown run, 18-14, but ended up losing a 20-18 decision in the final seconds.

Bismarck Defense Shuts Down Northland Offense To Win 29-12

Bismarck junior college of the NDCAC limited Mike Cowart and the Northland community college running game to a net eight yards Saturday en route to a 29-12 nonconference football win over the visiting Northmen.

"They are really strong against the run," confirmed coach Irv Smith whose Northmen ran up 255 and 312 yards in their last two MJCAA starts when Cowart, their outstanding tailback, rushed for 193 yards in a 14-13 loss to Itasca and followed with 162 yards in a 32-28 defeat at Brainerd. "Nobody has been able to run inside on Bismarck all year," added Smith. "And they did a great job defending the option, too."

The loss and current three-game losing streak drops Northland's record to 2-5 for the year. The Northmen draw unbeaten MJCAA Northern Division leader Golden Valley Lutheran Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Thief River Falls before ending the year Sat., Nov. 3, at Crookston.

A strong wind played a big role in Saturday's game. With the wind, Bismarck jumped out to a 14-0 first quarter lead on a pair of one-yard quarterback dives by Don Short.

A quick slant-in pass pattern by Northland's Ray Barnett would up as a 42-yard touchdown play on a pass from quarterback Tony Smith in the second quarter.

Northland missed an opportunity to pull even at halftime when the Northmen failed to score from the Bismarck one-yard line as the second quarter ended. Two pass plays, one of which was an interference call against Bismarck, put Northland at the one with 25 seconds remaining, but without any time-outs left. Two running plays failed to dent the Bismarck defense.

With the wind to start the second half, Northland cut the deficit to 14-12 when Tony Smith passed 38 yards to a wide open Jeff Olson.

But the Northmen fumbled at the Northland 22 late in the third quarter, a costly mistake that set up a four-yard Twinton Harvard touchdown and a 21-12 spread.

"That was the turning point of the game," was the way Smith described the fumble.

A four-yard Short to Terry Howitz touchdown pass later in the quarter opened up the game even more.

"We dropped a pass in the end zone, fumbled at our own 22 and couldn't score from the one. You don't do those things and win," mentioned Smith. "We didn't play very well; we're playing well enough to lose. We just can't seem to put it together."

UND Basketball Clinic Slated This Weekend

First annual University of North Dakota basketball clinic, designed for high school coaches, has been scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday, according to Sioux head basketball coach Dave Gunther, who is beginning his 10th season at UND.

Gunther said the clinic staff includes high school coaches Gary Addington, Hibbing; Ken Demester, Mayville-Portland; Gary Schuler, Warren; and Dick Vinger, Grand Forks Central.

All clinic sessions will be at the Westward Ho Motel. Registration fee if submitted before clinic begins is $17. Registration fee on day of clinic is $20. The fee includes all clinic sessions, a ticket to the UND-Morningside football game in Grand Forks Saturday and other events, including social hours.

Clinic registrants also will attend a UND basketball practice session Friday and a Sioux intra-squad varsity scrimmage prior to the football game.

Gunther said "this clinic is designed for high school coaches. We've tried to keep balance with a large and small head coach from North Dakota and the same with the Minnesota coaches."

Sioux assistant coach Darryl Lehnus is assisting Gunther with clinic details.

Bulldogs, Scots Clash Tuesday

North Tri County Conference will complete its 1979 football schedule Tuesday, but two teams — Gonvick and McIntosh-Winger — are hoping to extend their season into the state nine-man playoffs. The Bulldogs (8-0) and Scots (7-1) will clash in a season-ending championship showdown tomorrow night at McIntosh.

The winner gets the post-season berth, facing the Northern Lights champion Saturday if a Minnesota team wins that conference, which features both Minnesota and North Dakota schools. If a North Dakota team wins the Northern Lights title, the North Tri County champion will receive a first round state playoff bye, meeting the winner of the Agassiz Valley North vs. Agassiz Valley South conference playoff game late next week.

In other final North Tri County Conference games Tuesday, Goodridge will be at Mentor, Clearbrook at Middle River, Erskine at Plummer and Grygla at Oklee.

Results from last week's games played on Tuesday because of the MEA break found Gonvick beating Mentor 30-12, McIntosh-Winger handled Clearbrook 49-28, Oklee defeated Middle River 26-6, Plummer shut out Grygla 28-0 and Erskine downed Goodridge 50-26.

Top of the State Conference will divide its final week games. On Tuesday, Warroad will be at Argyle looking to wrap up a conference title and a post-season playoff berth, and Marshall County Central will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. On Friday, Lake of the Woods will be at Roseau, Hallock at Stephen and Karlstad at Greenbush in a nonconference game.

Last week, Warroad beat Stephen 18-0 in the meeting of the conference leaders, Karlstad got by Lake of the Woods 22-14, Roseau blanked Marshall County Central 20-0 and Hallock outlasted East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 3-0 in overtime.

DNR Meetings Planned For Trail Program

Changes in the Department of Natural Resources program for recreational trails will be explained in a series of meetings to be held around the state, it was announced recently.

Changes involve the "grants in aid program", said officials, and all governmental agencies and clubs participating in the program are asked to send representatives to the meetings.

DNR Region 1 meeting for north-central and northwestern Minnesota will be held Thurs., Oct. 25, 7:30-9:30 p.m. at Bemidji State University, Hagg-Sauer Hall, Room 107.

Pheasant Hunting

Open season on Minnesota pheasants is October 27 through December 2. Daily limit is two cocks and the possession limit is four cocks. Shooting hours are from 9 a.m. to sunset.

Le Sueur County

Glenn P. Flicek of Montgomery, sent us this report: Saturday about 8 a.m. I drove south, out of Monty, cross country, on gravel to make a farm call near Kilkenny. Last winter we had flocks, large flocks of pheasants in this area, but I counted or saw only two birds. There has been a lot of rain, and corn and soybeans are still standing. We know more as the harvesting starts.

I have watched pheasants, hunted and winter fed birds in this area for 30 years. I now believe that when you see dead skunk on the road they are up and pheasants are down. We see more dead skunk on our country roads than pheasants today. Generally speaking then, 1979 hunting will not be as good as 1978.

Pike Family

Muskellunge is the largest member of the pike family. Other family members are the northern pike and the chain pickerel.

Muskellunge spawning takes place in the spring of the year, usually in April and May, after the northern pike is finished, although there is some overlap according to the "Wise Fishermen's Encyclopedia."

The muskie is artificially propagated in some states and Muskies Inc. is doing excellent work in this department in Minnesota.

Tiger Muskie

Until recently, the muskellunge was the only member of that family to be listed in the state record book. But the DNR recently announced that it has a tiger muskie champion — a hybrid, a cross between a northern pike and a muskellunge.

The fish was caught in Deer Lake in Itasca county by Stephen Friberg of Northbrook, Ill. It weighed 30-pounds, four-ounces and was caught on a 20-pound test line.

State record muskellunge was caught back in 1931. It weighed 56-pounds, eight-ounces. J. W. Collins of Baudette caught it in Piers Lake in Cook county.

In 1957 Art Lyons of Bena caught a 54-pound muskellunge in Leech Lake.

Spellbinders

We'd like to talk to you about a conservationist-hunter, who is also a "desk-joe" and one of our favorite authors who is an avid hunter and fisherman. He is a spellbinding yarn-spinner.

Outdoorsmen love to travel along with him on one of his exciting hunting trips. Believe me, it's an education. There's no phoney-baloney about this man. "He's been there and he's for real." He is a successful book author about the out-of-doors on many subjects.

Grits Gresham wrote "The Complete Wildfowler," which is about ducks and geese. Grits has been noted as the best duck-shot in America. He has been a long-time member of O.W.A.A. (Outdoor Writers Association of America) and is its former president.

Grits has a master's degree in game management and a wealth of experience in first-hand knowledge as an outdoorsman hunter who knows more about the out-of-doors than anyone in the business. He has proved this time and time again with his "American Sportsmen" television shows.

The book has practical values for hunters. It is the nuts and bolts of gunning education necessary to hunt waterfowl in north America today. It is of value historically and ecologically.

Easy to read, it explains shotguns and shells, boats, blinds, calls, decoys and dogs, adding sage advice to the already know-it-all hunters as well as to the neophyte hunters equally anxious to get into the marshes and blinds.

The book, released by Winchester Press of New York, costs about $9. Or, look for it at the public library.

The book contains numerous photographs taken by Grits Gresham who has also authored many other well known books, including "The Sportsman and His Family Outdoors," and the "Complete Book of Bass Fishing."

DNR Schedules Land Sale In No. Minnesota

Department of Natural Resources announced that it will be offering various tracts of state land for sale during October and November in several northern Minnesota counties.

Lands will be sold at public auction at the county seat in which the land is located.

The policy of the department is to sell only lands which are best suited for agriculture and are well located with regard to roads, schools and settlements.

No lands bordering meandered lakes or public waters are offered for sale.

Land will be sold at the auction to the party making the highest bid over the appraised value. Purchasers are required to pay in cash 15 per cent of the purchase price of the land plus the full value of any timber or improvements.

A sales list describing the lands to be sold, their appraised value and other details may be obtained by contacting the Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Land, Box 31, Centennial building, St. Paul 55155.

Employee Theft Is Common Problem

By Jeanne Hanson
University News Service

In the first large-scale, systematic study of employee theft ever conducted, about half the employees admitted to stealing from their employers. Most of them are young, white unmarried professional or skilled workers. Very few steal money.

Degree of employee theft varies considerably among the 4,985 employees of the 35 retail organizations, hospitals and manufacturing companies studied. Even within an industry, some organizations have five times as much theft as others, University of Minnesota researchers report.

Results come from a Midwestern city with an average overall property crime rate. A high-and a low-rate city will be studied next, according to the researchers.

"Employee theft is finally coming out of the closet, though it is hard for organizations to admit it exists in their own 'families,' " said John Clark, sociologist on the Twin Cities campus and principal investigator for the national law enforcement assistance administration study.

"The problem seems more important to companies in a time of recession," he said, "but it exists all the time, and is largely a consequence of dissatisfied workers in poorly managed companies where the atmosphere is conducive to stealing." It is a more serious level of employee "deviance" that may begin with cheating the employer out of a little time or doing sloppy work or minor vandalism.

"This is everyday, garden variety employee theft, the kind the thieves think of as a fringe benefit. We didn't study the professional thieves who drive a truck up to the warehouse and get help loading it," Clark said.

When a nurse or an engineer takes a carton of thermometers or some scrap platinum, it is rarely discovered until year-end inventory, he said. Even then the audit trail ends in a lump sum that also includes loss by shoplifting, normal accidents, and the like.

So the research concentrated on what is being stolen by whom and what organizations can do about it, said Richard Hollinger, another University sociologist who worked on the study. Their report profiled theft in the three industries.

In retail companies, more than 60 per cent of the employees admit to stealing at least yearly, most often by misusing their discount privilege. Sales clerks, especially, buy excessive amounts of merchandise for relatives and friends, and continue to use their discount cards after they quit. Taking store merchandise is the next most common theft. Managers and buyers accept "gifts" and pad their expense accounts too. Young, white, unmarried part-time employees, usually from families with a total income of more than $20,000 a year, are the most likely to steal from retail stores.

In the hospitals surveyed, about 45 per cent of the employees steal at some point during a year, usually by taking supplies such as thermometers, cups, toilet paper, stethoscopes, bandages and the like. Stealing medicine is much less common. Again, the younger employees, especially nurses in larger hospitals — dissatisfied with their career opportunities and finances — are the most likely to steal. Young technologists who also have contact with supplies steal them, too, Clark said.

In the manufacturing companies — mostly electronics in the city studied — about 40 per cent of the employees steal, usually by taking small amounts of raw materials such as platnum, silver, and gold used to make circuit boards. "Borrowing" tools is less common.

Young engineers, especially those who are considering a job change, are the worst offenders. Computer specialists and technical workers at the professional and administrative levels were also overrepresented among the thieves, according to Hollinger.

In all three industrial sectors, the organizations where management was seen as unethical had the greatest problems with employee theft, Clark said. "If top managers use company cars for personal trips, lower level people feel they can take tools home to use for a while, too," he said.

Organizations that want to reduce employee theft can take several steps, Hollinger said. Most important is for supervisors and top management to be concerned with employee satisfaction and career aspirations. "Profit sharing, stock options and some participatory management probably would reduce employee theft considerably," Clark said.

And companies should communicate a clear, fair and strict policy against theft, focusing on how the organization is being hurt and using newsletters and bulletin boards regularly.

Social pressure from other employees not to steal is the most effective deterrent of all, Clark said. The study showed that fear of being caught by co-workers reduced theft by one half. "But the work place must police itself informally," he said. "Bounties of a thousand dollars for finding co-worker thieves would destroy morale and be completely unproductive."

Ripe Olive Salad News Comes In Puffs

It's the bold, dark flair of the California ripe olive that makes salad news this season. These curried flavored puffs, filled with a tuna-ripe olive mixture, have a jaunty pitted ripe olive topping.

The puffs, made from a basic cream puff mixture, are seasoned with curry — just enough to be intriguing and blend well with the filling. The tuna salad contains a hint of ginger and the eye catching accent of the ripe olive. Put together, this handsome entree is perfect for luncheon or an outdoor supper. Marinated cooked vegetables and sliced tomatoes could complete the salad plate.

One of the most versatile of the canned foods, ripe olives fit into many situations with many different foods. For a snack, their low calorie count, only 6 calories for a large size olive, make them popular. For a relish tray, ripe olives can be served as they come from the can, or marinated in sherry, in garlic and oil, or in a spicy mixture. For ingredient use, they are canned as whole pitted and unpitted, and sliced and chopped. Their versatility makes it possible to enjoy such foods as oliveburgers, ripe olive stew, cheese and egg ripe olive sandwich fillings and ripe olive cheese omelets.

Ripe Olive Tuna Salad Puffs

2 (7 ounce) cans tuna
1 1/4 cups canned pitted California ripe olives
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon powdered ginger
1 cup mayonnaise
6 baked curry puffs
6 small lettuce leaves

Drain tuna and flake coarsely. Set aside 6 ripe olives for garnish. Chop remaining olives coarsely. Mix together tuna, chopped ripe olives and celery. Add lemon juice, mustard, onion powder and ginger to mayonnaise. Stir mayonnaise into tuna ripe olive mixture and mix lightly but thoroughly. Cut each cream puff, about one-third from top, across, leaving a hinge attached. Pull out filaments of dough inside. Line each puff with a small lettuce leaf. Spoon tuna-ripe olive mixture into each puff. Place tops on puffs and top each with a pitted whole ripe olive. Makes 6 servings.

Curry Puffs

3/4 cup water
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1/8 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour
3 eggs

Preheat oven 400 degrees F. Lightly grease a baking sheet. Mix together water, butter, curry powder and salt, in saucepan. Heat until butter melts, and mixture boils. Add flour all at once, and stir over moderate heat until mixture forms a ball that follows spoon around the saucepan. Remove from heat; beat in eggs, one at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Spoon in 6 mounds on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake for 40 minutes, until puffs are high and golden brown. Quickly pierce each in several places around base of puff with point of small sharp knife. Reduce heat to 300 degrees F. Return puffs to oven and bake for 15 minutes longer, until firm to touch. Cool before filling.

Scientist Says Earthquakes Do Occur In State

by Mark E. Canney
University News Service

Tornadoes? Hardly a summer goes by without a few. Mosquitoes? You bet. Blizzards? You have to see them to believe them. Earthquakes? Minnesotans take their share of knocks from Mother Nature, but one thing they don't have to put up with is earthquakes.

No so, according to University of Minnesota geophysicist Harold Mooney. There have been 10 recorded earthquakes in the state in the past century, and probably a few more that went unrecorded, Mooney said.

Mooney and members of the Minnesota geological survey have been monitoring earthquakes in the state so that guidelines can be set up for the location and construction of nuclear power plants and standards can be set for building codes in areas prone to tremors.

Monitoring stations have been set up near Mora, Minneapolis and Morris. Seismometers are buried several feet down, and their signals are sent by telephone to the university campuses in Morris and the Twin Cities.

Minneapolis station consists of one seismometer in a mine south of the campus in Minneapolis. Morris station also has one monitoring device. Station near Mora, with six-seismometer system, is called the Central Minnesota siesmic array. All the monitors are sensitive enough to pick up vibrations from tremors around the world.

But the monitors are not the only method used by Mooney and his colleagues for documenting earthquake activity in the state.

Through the cooperation of newspapers in areas where it is suspected that quakes have occurred, Mooney asked for — and got — witnesses to the effects of the tremors. He also checked back issues of the newspapers for reports of quakes that occurred before the monitoring program began.

"We use two methods for characterizing an earthquake: the data from the monitors, which gives us the Richter magnitude, and the date received from witnesses, which enables us to determine the felt zone," Mooney said. Felt zone is just what it sounds like — the area where persons have felt tremors.

Morris earthquake of 1975 may have been the most severe earthquake recorded in Minnesota. Its felt zone spanned parts of five states, and its seismic waves were recroded on monitors throughout North America and as far away as the Arctic Ocean.

Earthquake at Morris occurred along a major fault — there are thousands in the state — appropriately named the Morris Fault. Another major fault, known as the Douglas fault, runs along the western edge of the state.

Faults result where different types of rock formations meet. At the Douglas fault, for example, vocanic rock meets sandstone. Quakes are a result of slippage along the line that separates the two different geologies.

No quakes along the Douglas fault have been recorded, Mooney said. Those recorded at Long Prairie around 1860, Staples in 1971, Alexandria in 1950, Morris in 1975, and Sauk Centre on March 5, 1979, were caused by slippage along the Morris fault. The quake at Sauk Centre was weak — there was no evidence of a felt zone — but it was recorded by seismometers as a genuine earthquake.

Although Minnesota is one of the least seismatically active states, this does not mean that it has escaped earthquake damage, Mooney said.

Staples quake in 1917 resulted in toppled chimneys, cracked concrete walkways and broken windows. The Morris quake of 1975 was responsible for cracked buildings, damaged chimneys, falling objects and possibly some small earth cracks.

Two reports of slight injuries resulted from the Morris Tremor, including those suffered by one man who fell off a hayrack in the excitement.

New Eyes For The Needy Use Old Eyeglasses

Recycle old eyeglasses to bring sight to the poor? Why not? Recycling may seem like a new conservationist idea, but a group of volunteers in Short Hills, N.J., many of them housewives, have been doing it for years, ever since 1932.

As a non-profit organization called New Eyes For The Needy, Inc., this group of volunteers has helped over one million persons to see.

Last year over one million pairs of old glasses were sent to New Eyes For the Needy, Inc., Short Hills, N.D. 07078, where groups of volunteers have been taught to sort and classify them.

Simple non-astigmatic lenses go to medical missions abroad since federal law now prohibits their redistribution in this country. Simple sunglasses are prized in bright, hot countries, even leper colonies where the burning rays of the sun are too much to tolerate.

Metal frames go to a refiner to be melted down, along with other scraps of precious metal, such as gold from dentures and tooth inlays, old watches, broken jewelry, spare cufflinks, earrings and old silver.

The money realized from refining goes to establish special eye funds for hospitals and welfare agencies throughout 48 of the United States, to purchase new prescription glasses for those who can't afford them.

New Eyes holds periodic sales of antique jewelry and silver along with resalable costume jewelry, which adds significantly to these funds.

Since its inception 47 years ago, New Eyes has asked only for old eyeglasses and precious metal articles, never for a cent in donations.

Not only individuals but many church groups and service organizations such as the Lions and Kiwanis have made New Eyes' collections their project.

Collection boxes are placed in banks, shopping centers and libraries where local publicity through newspapers, TV and radio stations soon has them full to overflowing. Upon request, New Eyes will send a pamphlet of background information and helpful ideas to groups interested in starting community projects.

Hundreds of packages arrive each day by mail from all over the country. The address is New Eyes for the Needy, Millburn Avenue, Short Hills, N.J. 07078.

Seaway Season Only Long As Weather Allows

Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz have received indications from Canadian officials that grain-hauling ships will be able to use the St. Lawrence seaway only as long as weather permits.

Paul Normandeau, who directs seaway operations for Canada, told the senators at a meeting Wednesday that shippers would have to use the seaway at their own risk. Normandeau said neither Canada nor the U.S. has the equipment necessary to aid lake vessels that become blocked by ice or weather conditions.

The senators have been negotiating with Canadian and U.S. officials for an extended shipping season on the seaway. The grain millers' strike in Duluth and other transportation problems have slowed the movement of agricultural products from Minnesota farms to markets.

Last year the Duluth port shipped 10 million tons of grain and grain products. A five to 10 per cent increase was expected this year. The strike in Duluth, however, may cause a shortfall of up to 3.3 million tons.

"The backlog of agricultural products is a serious problem," said the senators in a joint statement. "We explored every option with Canadian and U.S. officials to keep the seaway open.

"Even though we can't guarantee passage on the seaway past the official closing date of December 15, we did make some gains. And we're working to assure the availability of rail cars and every other means to move our farm products," said the senators.

Cutting Back On Fuel Use Is Not Disabling

While the nation faces a petroleum shortage, some Minnesota residents find cutting back, coping and conserving to be far from disabling. An informal random survey of Minnesota drivers, revealed people are finding ways to circumvent the problem by altering, rather than giving up, lifestyles, says the Minnesota energy agency.

Use of the public transportation in those metropolitan areas that offer serivce is up considerably over the last month. In the Twin Cities, bus ridership is up 5.6 per cent, according to the Metropolitan Transit commission.

One bus rider commented he'd forgotten how much work he could accomplish while riding the bus, something he could not do while driving.

Carpooling and vanpooling also head the list of alternatives Minnesota Drivers are utilizing. A recent recruit to carpooling wonders why he didn't do this before. . . the increasing guilt of being one person in a car driving ten miles one way to work, strengthened his resolve to "do my part to cut down on gas."

A suburban metropolitan man said he took an informal survey of his own and watched how long cars sat idling at drive-up windows at fast food restaurants and banks. "What a waste of gas," he said. "It isn't that difficult to find a parking place and walk in, and it really doesn't take much longer."

An outstate Minnesota women has modified her daily schedule so that when most drive to meetings, church activities and the store, she allows extra time to get there, and usually drives about 50 miles per hour. She comments, "I know as one driver I don't save volumes of gas by driving 55 or slower, but I feel if everyone did the result would be dramatic."

An enterprising cub scout troop, recently headed for a day camp in Wisconsin, decided to charter a bus for the trip instead of putting approximately 30 or more cars on the road for the 60-mile round trip.

Old fashioned walking is regaining some of its lost popularity, too. While the country has turned to jogging and other forms of exercise to gain physical fitness, it wasn't until the recent gasoline crisis that people rose to their feet in growing numbers and began walking to the drug store, post office, doctor's office and library.

One young women on a bicycle stopped at a traffic light said decided to ride six miles each way to work when gasoline became so expensive. "I drive an average of one day a week, but I don't drive unless I have some errands to combine with the trip to or from work."

Another survey participant said she found that cutting out unnecessary trips with her car not only saved gasoline, and wear and tear on the car, but she has a lot more time available to accomplish things at home. "I found it enlightening to look at my day and see how I could be more efficient just by not driving so much. It really hasn't meant major changes in my lifestyle, but the minor adjustments I've made have been very productive."

Still another individual cited use of the telephone as an important method of conserving gasoline. She is able to save many trips by using her rural home telephone.

Webster's new world dictionary defines coping as "fighting or contending (with) successfully or on equal terms," but some Minnesota residents seem to prefer the less-awesome language of the second definition, "dealing with problems or troubles, etc." So, as the gasoline and petroleum shortage continues, many Minnesotans are finding innovative ways to cope and conserve.

For further information on conservation tips, call the Minnesota Energy Agency at 296-5175 or toll-free 800-652-9747.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

October 22, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
October 9, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 9:00 A.M., October 9, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Viola Rud, Administrator, Quin County Board of Health presented final Plan for Services in the 5 Counties in the Quin County group and reviewed briefly the budgets. Moved by Stenberg that the following resolution be adopted:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Quin County Community Health Services Plan for the years 1980 and 1981, including the Plan for Pennington County, be approved according to Plan before the Board. The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and declared unanimously adopted.

The Pennington County Soil & Water Conservation District Board presented their proposed budget for the year 1980 indicating a total budget of $28,920.00 and requesting an appropriation from the County of $16,420.00. The Board appropriated $9,600.00 for the year 1979. The progress of the State program for Soil Sampling and the annual cost of the ongoing contracts were referred to. After discussion — Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that the sum of $13,000.00 be appropriated and set aside to be paid in 1980 for assistance to the budget for the Pennington County Soil Conservation District. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Merle Lundeen, representing the 4-H Leaders Council, with agreement of the Extension Committee, appeared and asked that the Board consider the employment of Beattie Mickelson as a special Youth Agent to continue with the work she had been doing under the CETA program over the past years. Matter taken under advisement.

Mr. Lundeen also requested permission to install a display case some place in the Courthouse to display awards that the County has received and hopefully will receive. A portion of the cost for building this display case is available from individual interested individuals so the cost to the County would be minor. The Courthouse Committee would work with the Leaders Council in locating an acceptable spot for the case.

Roy Waters, Program Director for the Northwestern Mental Health Center in Crookston was present to present a budget proposal to include Pennington County for the year 1980. Because of the Legislative change to a Block Grant to Counties the makeup of the budget is greatly changed from the past years. The 7 participating Counties will receive the Block grants and forward the funds to the contracting Units which according to the proposed budget is the Northwestern Mental Health Center. The total budget is $1,094,627.75 — 7 per cent over last year with the Pennington County share suggested as being $161,490.27. The matter was taken under consideration.

Ray Oen appeared and indicated that he had a problem because of the Airport Zoning Ordinance which restricts the type of construction that can be built on a tract of land owned by Mr. Oen to the North and East of the Airport. Mr. Oen was referred to the Airport Zoning Commission.

Sheriff Richards requested an adjustment in the rate of the Board & Care of Prisoners from $4.50 per day to a $5.50 per day rate. Moved by Koop seconded by Grabanski that the Board & Care Prisoner rate paid Sheriff Richards for meals for prisoners be set at $5.50 per day effective October 1, 1979. Motion unanimously carried.

Sheriff then requested that the Board provide for purchase of a new squad car in the 1980 budget. Sheriff Richards also reviewed a project that is being undertaken by the Sheriff's Office and the City Police Dept. for completion of the area set aside for a firing range in the new Law Enforcement Building. The Board was asked for $2,000.00 from the 1979 budget and a set aside of $2,000.00 from the 1980 budget. The Board will consider these matters when considering the County budget.

The development of the Park on the river East of the Oakland Park Nursing Home known as Oakland Park was reviewed with Terry Courneya who is co-ordinating the LAWCON programs for the County. The County received a 50-50 participation rating on the proposed additions to the Park and it was agreed to proceed with the project rather than put it off and hope for a 75-25 participation as the hoped for 25 per cent may be equal to the 50 per cent if it was completed now.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that Contract with Northern Culvert Co. (St. Regis Paper) be accepted as complete and payment of the Contract in the amount of $15,213.40 be made. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Grabanski that Contract for completion of Bridge known as the Golf Club Bridge under SAP 57-618-01 with Swingen Construction Co. be accepted as complete and final payment of $1,803.20 be paid. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Koop seconded by Grabanski that the County appropriate the sum of $15,000.00 to the Northwest Regional Library to be paid in 1980 toward the Library budget. Motion declared unanimously carried. (Revenue Sharing)

Moved by Tasa seconded by Koop that the Road Committee and the bridges and culvert committee inspect roads; bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M., October 30, 1979. Motion carried.

The scene is ever changing. The new house on the Alberg farm is the fourth house on that land. The first was a sod house built by the homesteader, Simon Alberg. In this house his three children, Hilda, Anna and Carl, were born. Then Simon built a frame house which was later made bigger. Here after their marriage, Carl brought his wife, Louise Finstad Alberg. Here their eight children were born. This house was destroyed by fire in May of 1955 and in its place a modern two bedroom house was built that year. This summer a new larger house was built by the present landowner, Myles Alberg, who is a great-grandson of Simon Alberg. The Myles Albergs moved into their new home on Saturday and on Wednesday the white frame house was moved to a new location in St. Hilaire. Such is progress!

Library Plans Film Showings For Children

Northwest regional library will sponsor a vacation film festival tomorrow and Friday, from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the library's meeting room. It is open and free of charge to children of all ages. There is no school Thursday and Friday due to teacher conventions.

Films to be featured Thursday include: "Braverman's Condensed Cream of Beatles," the music and career of the Beatles. This non-narrative film lets the visuals speak for themselves and serves to reinforce the emotions which these young artists inspired. "Burn On" was filmed at the New England Dragway where drivers and their crews are shown working on engines and cars. Several well-known drivers comment on their attraction to the sport and explain why they race. "Fable of He and She" presents the animated fable of Eliot Noyes Jr. which challenges stereotyped and sexist thinking and celebrates the joys of individual self-expression. "Skating Rink," based on a book by Mildred Lee, is the story of Tuck Faraday, a withdrawn teenager who stammers and expresses himself hesitantly. Pete Dagley, a former champion ice-skater, offers friendship and skating lessons.

Friday, the following films will be shown: "Leopold the See-through Crumbpicker", an entertaining story for youngsters about an invisible creature who loves to eat anything crumbly. The imaginative solution to his identity will delight as well as stimulate imagination. Cast in "Night Out" with Charlie Chaplin are Ben Turpin, Charlie's pal; Leo White, Frenchman in the restaurant; Bud Jamison, head waiter; and Edna Purviance, head waiter's wife. Music track added. "Peewee's Pianola" shows how the magnificent Six-and-a-Half Gang stumbles upon a player piano in the country and encounters many adventures trying to get it back to the city.

"Screentest" is a candid look at an unusually gifted group of avant-garde artists coming together to experience and share each other's art. They have made more than 75 8mm films themselves. Then, as now, they did all the costumes, sets and make-up, and created and acted all the rules.

Horsemanship Class Oct. 24 At Crookston

Beginning hunt seat equitation will be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning October 24, in the Red River Valley winter shows stable. Course is offered through the office of continuing education at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC).

Instruction will be given in grooming, mounting and dismounting, walk, trot, canter, showing and other horsemanship techniques and exercises. Course is tailored to individual needs and ability. Participants are asked to wear appropriate clothing — boots or shoes with a heel and close fitting clothing of a type that won't split when mounting.

Donna Jenson, a 1978 graduate of the Meradith Manor school of horsemanship, Waverly, West Virginia, is the instructor.

Fee for the course is $35, and one credit may be earned through UMC. A young adult, age 12 to 16, may attend for half price if accompanied by a full paying adult. For more information interested persons may call UMC, 281-6510, extension 241.

Chore Service Available For Area Seniors

Valley chore service, offered through the Tri-Valley opportunity council at Crookston, has been expanded to include Pennington county on a one-year trial basis.

The service provides in-home services for the elderly to help them remain in their homes for a greater period of time. Provided through the program are spring and fall house-cleaning, changing of storm and screen doors and windows, snow removal, lawn care, grocery shopping, washing of floors and walls, laundry and minor home repairs.

Eligible are people 60 years of age or older who are unable to do the work themselves, regardless of income. Recipients of service contribute in accordance with their ability to pay, based on income. They are asked to pay all or as much of the total cost as they can afford.

The program is funded in part through a grant from the area agency on aging under Title III of the federal older Americans act. Remaining funding is received through contributions from area sources, including counties and program participants.

Services are now available in the Thief River Falls area. People in need of such service or who would like more information may contact Laura at the craft shop in Thief River Falls (681-6760) between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

End Of DST Sunday Boosts Driver Hazard

End of daylight savings time on October 28 at 2 a.m. spells the beginning of increased hazards for pedestrains and motorists, according to the Minnesota safety council. Most fatal motor vehicle accidents and fatal pedestrian crashes in Minnesota occur after daylight hours when visibility is greatly reduced.

Drivers are reminded that state law requires headlights to be used from sunset to sunrise. Those headlights not only increase a driver's visibility but increase the opportunity for approaching traffic to see them. According to the safety council, the average headlights illuminate the roadway ahead for about 350 feet. That means obeying the 55 mph speed limit is critical to visibility at night under ideal conditions.

If visibility is reduced due to weather or other conditions, drivers should travel at less than posted speed limits for safety's sake. For maximum illumination, be sure headlights are clean and in working order.

The safety council urges pedestrians to be especially alert to motor vehicle traffic; to use sidewalks when they are available and to cross only at corners or at marked crosswalks if possible. Parents should be aware that it may be darker when the little ones walk to school or wait for buses — it's a good idea to reflectorize the children's outer garments so they can be seen by passing motorists. Pedestrians walking after dark should also carry a flashlight to increase their chances of being seen by oncoming traffic.

ESTIMATED DAMAGES of $3,000 resulted to the Kenneth Berg home on 1218 Edgewood drive when a farm implement trailer unhooked from a pickup and went backward into the house. Gary Boughton, Thief River Falls, driver of the truck, was traveling south on Edgewood when the trailer came loose, went over a curb, struck a tree in the Berg yard, and hit the side of the house. An estimated $100 in damages was done to the tree, and none to the implement trailer.

Bread Cost Reviewed By USDA Economist

With another short Soviet grain crop almost a certainty this year, prospects look good for increased U.S. wheat exports to Russia in the months to come. Which means that American farmers will soon be hearing that old saw about bread prices going to $1 a loaf — all because of increased wheat prices to farmers, according to Ed Curran of the U.S. department of agriculture.

"Now, make no mistake about it, bread just might go to $1 a loaf. But, the argument that it will be because of higher wheat prices to farmers just doesn't hold water. Mainly, because there is very little connection between the price farmers get for their wheat and the price consumers pay for bread, Curran said.

"Let's look at the facts. First, keep in mind that a bushel of wheat provides flour for about 69 one-pound loaves of white bread. And, that a change of $1 per bushel in the price of wheat affects the net farm value of wheat ingredients in a one-pound loaf of bread about 1.2 cents a loaf.

"That means if the farm price of wheat increases $1 per bushel, the net cost of the wheat ingredients in a one-pound loaf of bread increases about 1.2 cents," he said.

"Now, let's look back a few years. In June of 1972, just one month before the famous sale of wheat to the Soviet Union, bread prices in the U.S. averaged just 24.7 cents for the one-pound loaf, and the net farm value of the wheat ingredients in the loaf was 2.6 cents. This was based on the average price of $1.33 per bushel received by U.S. farmers.

"Just this past June, bread prices averaged 41.2 cents a pound (while farmers were getting an average of $3.72 per bushel for wheat) and the net farm value of the wheat ingredients in the bread was 4.5 cents," Curran added.

"In other words, while the price of bread increased 16.5 cents a loaf during the period, the farm price of the wheat in the bread went up only 1.9 cents. Looking at it another way, if you took the wheat out of the bread, you'd still pay 36.7 cents for the empty bag!

"If wheat isn't the culprit, what is? A 1977 study — back when the fabled one-pound loaf of bread cost consumers 35.5 cents — showed that wheat represented about 2.7 cents (or about 7½ per cent) of the total cost. The net farm value of other food ingredients in the bread was 1.8 cents — or five per cent of the total. Retailing costs accounted for 3.1 cents — or nearly nine per cent of the total. Baking and costs of distributing the bread to the stores accounted for 26 cents — 73 per cent of the total," Curran said.

A breakdown of those baking and distribution costs shows labor took 12.7 cents — nearly 36 per cent of the overall total; packaging 2.5 cents — seven per cent of the total. Depreciation, business taxes, rent, energy, interest and repairs combined took only 1.9 cents — another 5.4 per cent. Miscellaneous costs accounted for 6.4 cents — 18 per cent of the total.

"Putting it another way," Curran said, "labor costs accounted for nearly five times as much as the farmer received for the wheat; packaging, alone, nearly as much as the farmer received. And, so-called miscellaneous or "other" costs — items too small to categorize — took nearly 2½ times as much as the farmer received for the wheat in the bread.

"Summing it all up, a 25 per cent increase in the prices farmers receive for wheat would add less to the cost of a loaf of bread than would a four per cent increase in the processing and distribution costs in a loaf of bread."

AAA Suggests Safety Ideas For Halloween

On the last day of October this year, scores of miniature "monsters" will once again skitter through the neighborhoods of Minnesota. For many of them, trick or treat may well turn into tragedy. Minnesota State Automobile Association (AAA) suggests that a few extra precautions on the part of motorists, parents and children could forestall such disasters this Halloween.

Of utmost importance if children are to walk near traffic is adequate visibility, according to Barbara Mittelstadt, Traffic Safety Coordinator. Use of retro-reflective material is an easy, effective and inexpensive way to make sure trick or treaters can readily be seen, Mittelstadt suggests.

An American optometric association study, she said, indicates that pedestrians wearing retro-reflective materials are safely visible to drivers even at speeds of 70 and 80 mph, whereas white is safely visible only at speeds up to 50 mph.

Pedestrian Reflector Kits are available in limited quantities from the Minnesota Safety Council. For purchase information, write Minnesota Safety Council, 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, MN 55102 or call 612-291-9150.

So that youngsters may see as well as be seen, Mittelstadt agreed with suggestions provided by the doctors of optometry: substitute makeup for masks, floppy hats, beards and veils, all of which interfere with a child's vision. In addition, provide costumed youngsters with flashlights which can serve a dual purpose of lighting their path and warning any oncoming motorist or cyclist of their proximity.

Minnesota AAA also reminds parents to review basic pedestrian safety rules when preparing youngsters for their night of fun. Importance of crosswalks and traffic signals should not be overlooked in the excitement of rushing from house to house.

Adults may also help by providing adequate lighting on porches and sidewalks, where possible. And carefulparents will want to warn children of potential fire hazards such as candlelit jack-o-lanterns and to inspect edible treats for potentially lethal "doctoring."

Ready Car Now For Oncoming Cold Weather

With colder weather approaching, vehicle owners are advised by the Automotive Information council (AIC) that now is a good time to get the vehicle in shape for the more difficult operating conditions which are coming.

Cold weather takes a strong toll on the electrical system, which has to work harder for starting and for use of lights and the heater, so special attention should be paid to all of those components, especially the battery, spark plugs and wiring.

A car which now growls at starting or which sputters probably would not function in colder weather, so listen to those clues and you'll probably realize it's time for a seasonal tune-up.

Slow cranking of the starter, lights that dim at idle, and slow-blinking turn signals are indicators that the battery needs attention and might have to be replaced.

Time to handle these potential problems is now, not when it develops into a no-go situation, suggests AIC, which adds that marginal parts probably won't last through the cold weather. In the way of Murphy's Law, the worst will happen at the most inconvenient time.

Similarly, every other component of the car undergoes greater stress and strain in the winter than in warmer months, so the wise motorist should consider giving his car a front-to-rear and top-to-bottom inspection, says AIC.

Checking the vehicle's maintenance manual can be of valuable assistance because it provides a chart showing when the various components should be serviced or replaced.

Special attention should be paid to radiator anti-freeze, engine belts, tires, brakes and the exhaust system.

Spending some time and some dollars now will provide the car owner with, in effect, an insurance policy of some assurance that when he asks the car to start and run properly that it will do just that, says AIC.

Seek Military Personnel In Atomic Tests

For over a year the department of defense has been attempting to identify former military and civilian defense personnel who participated in the atmospheric nuclear tests conducted from 1945 to 1962. Defense nuclear agency is the executive agent for this program.

If you participated in these tests, which were held largely in Nevada and at Bikini and Enewetak atolls in the Pacific, you are urged to contact the defense nuclear agency if you have not done so in 1978-1979.

Defense nuclear agency is attempting to reconstruct a complete history of the atmospheric nuclear test program, including names of participants and any radiation doses they received. One of the purposes of this effort is to enable the National Academy of Sciences and other scientific organizations to determine if there are health hazards resulting from participation in the tests.

Based upon research to date, it is believed that radiation exposures were low. While medical science has no proof that exposure to radiation levels as low as these are hazardous to health, it is generally assumed by scientists that even low levels of exposure carry some slight risk. There is, however, some disagreement within the scientific community about the magnitude of this risk.

If you were a participant in the atmospheric nuclear tests program, and you have not already done so, you are urged to contact the defense nuclear agency at toll-free number 800-336-3068, or write to Defense nuclear agency, Washington, D.C. 20305.

If you are concerned that your possible exposure may have adversely affected your health, you are urged either to consult your doctor, or, if you are a former serviceman, contact the nearest Veterans administration hospital, where you may obtain a physical examination at government expense.

Welfare Plan Guaranteed To Increase Costs

Social planners have been pushing for a guaranteed-income welfare plan for years. They are still at it, reports the chamber of commerce of the United States.

After the defeat of such a plan in the Nixon period known as the family assistance plan (FAP), they embarked on a study in Seattle and Denver to learn if people on welfare would work less or more under a guaranteed income. Much to their surprise, people worked less.

This is opposite from the way it was expected to work. Under the guaranteed income plan, the government guarantee provides basic needs but a family may earn more by working. As earnings rise, welfare benefits are reduced on a sliding scale while at the same time assuring a guaranteed income. When given a choice, the study showed, husbands reduced their work effort by 11.4 per cent and wives by 25 per cent rather than opt for additional income. Young men getting married chose to work 55 per cent less.

Chamber of Commerce of the United States adamantly opposes a current White House welfare bill which would give the federal government the power, in effect, to set a guaranteed minimum income for welfare families. House of Representatives is expected to act on the proposal before the year is out.

Currently, the states determine the amount of benefits. But under the White House bill, there would be a federal mandate that all welfare families receive a minimum amount.

Such a plan would amount to an income-redistribution scheme. Moreover, Congress would be pressured year after year to raise the benefit levels. By its estimates, the administration plan would cost taxpayers $5.7 billion more a year.

Chamber has helped draft a counterproposal which would dismantle rather than expand federal control. The states, says the Chamber, offer the best opportunity to devise programs based on need.

Based on a survey of top state welfare officials, the Chamber has concluded that "state and local governments have been able to reduce caseloads, costs and error rates in the programs over which they have control while increasing benefit levels."

A sample of survey findings shows:

—In 1976, Arizona started a program of accountability of staff productivity which has enabled the administration to hold the line on increases in staff.

Arkansas is using federal aid dollars to furnish community services rather than institutional care to welfare patients.

—California has pioneered in the use of computers to detect chiselers.

—Florida raised aid-for-dependent children benefits by 100 per cent from 1972 to 1978.

Welfare improvement act (H.R. 4460), which the chamber supports, would replace the federal matching of state funds with a system of block grants, or lump sums, which states could use at their discretion, the chamber says.

Add Monorail To Attractions At State Zoo

Zoo-for-all-seasons theme is now a reality with the opening of the monorail at the Minnesota zoo. Its completion adds five more animal species which visitors can view while being protected from the weather. More than 90 per cent of all exhibits can be seen from weather protected walkways or the ride.

Unique designing of the zoo has already made it one of the most successful zoos in the northern hemisphere. The monorail is one of only a few that have been designed to be operated throughout the year in a northern climate.

The ride, called Sky Trail, provides visitors of all ages a chance for a tree top look at the great natural site of the zoo. Much of the future expansion plans will be focused around this exhibit trail.

Monorail provides a moving picture window overlooking the natural beauty of Minnesota. A narrator is a guide to the discovery of many interesting facts about present Northern trail exhibits of Siberian tigers, musk oxen, Asiatic wild horses, bactrian camels, cinereous vultures and moose. In addition visitors will discover resident wildlife and natural features of Minnesota: hills, ponds, marsh lands and glacial history.

Children under six will be admitted free; those aged six-16 will pay 50 cents, 17 and over with pay $1 and seniors, 62 and over, will be admitted for 50 cents.

The 20-minute ride is 1.8 kilometers, or approximately 1¼ miles. Three trains are planned for the system, although at opening only two trains will be operating. There will be 80 persons per train.

Sky trail will tour at six feet per second. Maximum speed for the monorail trains is 11 feet per second. Monorail system, funded through Minnesota zoo ride, Inc., is a non-profit corporation. MZRI directors are appointed by the Minnesota zoological garden board.

System cost is $8.7 million for the entire monorail system, including rail, trains, station and other direct and indirect costs.

Contractor of the monorail is Universal mobility, Inc., of Salt Lake City, Utah.

ST. HILAIRE BRIDGE replacement was the topic of a hearing held Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the meeting room of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. County engineer Arvid Olson (right) was answering questions posed by attorney Paul Ihle (back to camera at left) when this photo was taken. Others facing the camera are Don Grabanski, Thief River Falls, member of the county board of commissioners; and Roger Hoffman, Goodridge, chairman of the board.

St. Hilaire Bridge Hearing Held Tues.

Testimony regarding replacement of a bridge in St. Hilaire was presented at an official hearing conducted by the Pennington county highway department Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the meeting room of the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

The original bridge was damaged by a motor vehicle in the fall of 1977 and the county board has wrestled with the question of replacement for some time. Hearing held Tuesday was part of an official procedure to be followed by the county in qualifying for state and federal funding for replacement costs.

Testifying in favor of bridge replacement to open the hearing Tuesday was Mayor James Gaven of St. Hilaire. Joining him in testifying for replacement were Jeanette Walseth, Hartz store owner; Dudley Johnson, area resident; Joan Gehrls, manager of the St. Hilaire liquor store; and Karen Young, manager of El Cerrito's restaurant. They testified in relation to business loss due to the bridge loss and fire safety as well as convenience.

Chairing the hearing was Arvid Olson, Pennington county engineer.

Testifying in opposition to bridge replacement were Doug Dehnert, who occupies property adjacent to the bride; Jack Quinlivan, planner for the city of Thief River Falls; and Dave Sorvig, also a resident of the bridge area.

Paul Ihle, attorney representing those opposed to the bridge replacement, questioned the three persons mentioned and also asked questions of the county engineer.

(Editor's Note: Much of the information in Dehnert's testimony is contained in a public opinion letter published in today's issue of the Times. The letter was intended for Monday Times publication and inadvertently omitted in make-up of the Monday edition. Therefore the request in the letter that the public attend the hearing is outdated.)

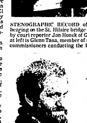
Quinlivan was questioned regarding the feasibility of constructing a bridge in the area as well as safety factors involved. He expressed the opinions that reconstruction was not necessary since there is a large bridge located about a mile to the north, there are no development plans for the area and the number of people to be normally served by such a bridge would be minimal. He also questioned the safety factor of having a bridge with a 32-foot deck on a road with an 18-foot roadway.

Sorvig said that he and his father, David Sorvig Sr., own property in the area and have absolutely no plans for development.

Testimony given at the hearing was recorded by a stenographer and a transcript will be made to be forwarded to the state department of transportation, department of natural resources and U.S. army corps of engineers.

According to the hearing notice, the hearing was scheduled to discuss the route location and major design features and the social, economic and environmental effects of the proposed bridge replacement. Written statements and other exhibits are to be accepted for a 10-day period following the hearing and will be made a part of the official record, the county engineer stated.

STENOGRAPHIC RECORD of testimony given during the hearing on the St. Hilaire bridge replacement Tuesday was kept by court reporter Jan Honek of Grand Forks. In the background at left is Glenn Tasa, member of the Pennington county board of commissioners conducting the hearing.



DOUG DEHNERT, who owns property immediately adjacent to the St. Hilaire bridge, was among those testifying against the replacement of the bridge at Tuesday's hearing. The original bridge was damaged by a vehicle accident and declared unsafe several years ago.

Viet Family In Need Of Clothes

Mrs. Inga Geving of Thief River Falls recently received a letter from Toai Nguyen, one of several Vietnamese who stayed at her home while attending post high school training in Thief River Falls. He has been reunited with his parents who escaped from Vietnam, but is having difficulty in supporting family members who have come to stay with him in California.

The letter appeals for clothing for family members who were robbed of all possessions by pirates before being allowed to land in Thailand. Text of the letter follows as it was written to Mrs. Geving.

DST To End Sunday; Set Clocks Back

Daylight saving time will come to a close throughout the state at 2 a.m. Sunday and area residents are advised to set their clocks back one hour before retiring Saturday night. Late nighters unconcerned about when they regain the hour of sleep lost last spring when clocks were set ahead can wait until 2 a.m. (DST) to set their clocks back to 1 a.m.

City Council Approves Utility Improvements

Predominant item of Tuesday night's city council meeting, the matter of the 1979 utility improvement project, called for extra room to seat concerned citizens who gathered to hear the council's decision on the issue.

The "issue" which both opened and closed the evening meeting, resulted in two motions being made.

Mayor Bob Carlson made those attending aware that bids had been rejected from Moistad excavating of Grand Forks for utility improvements in Thief River Falls. This includes all bids — bids done for paving downtown alleys and for the replacement of sewer and water mains, he said.

"The feeling of the majority of council members seems to be to proceed with the freeze-up problem and work as long as possible, with weather permitting," he said. "But who will foot the bill? And what will the assessment be, if any? These are questions that we will decide tonight," he said.

Comments were made by Alderman Don Goodrich, who inquired whether or not the question was an insulating or replacing matter.

"We're talking about both of these," Doug Stewart, city engineer, said. "If the lines are six feet or deeper, it would be cheaper to insulate. If they are less than six feet, it would be more beneficial to widen or lower the lines."

Alderman Milan Borsheim directed citizens at the meeting when he said, "If there is a freeze-up in your home, it is worth some type of monetary value to have it fixed."

Jim Kremer's opposing comment came in response to alderman Borsheim's when he reminded everyone that, as citizens there are certain responsibilities to meet. He compared the situation to a burning home.

"The city will provide the service to pay for the loss of the house and foot the entire bill," he said.

Alderman Bill Penning addressed council members and guests with statements on the improvement project, before introducing a resolution to have the city take on the responsibility of repairing the freeze-up service problem in Thief River Falls, stressing that "the system (city) should repair itself."

"We have many rules for streets, electricity, wires, sewer and water," he said. "They all carry a thin budget as far as manpower is concerned. City departments are under-manned in help. It is not beyond possibilities to have experts to handle jobs, and we could make full use of more people. We must go to outside forces at this time. We complain of high bills but the bills in Thief River Falls are lower than in other comparable communities."

A minimum of two new employees and a maximum of four employees would be hired if the project was handled by the city.

Alderman Penning's motion, seconded by alderman Milton Reierson, was followed by a roll call vote which resulted in seven "yes" votes by council members

School Board To Air School Site

At a meeting to be held Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the school district service center, the Thief River Falls board of education will discuss site possibilities for potential new school construction. Meeting date and place were set at a meeting of the board last Thursday.

At the Thursday meeting the board held further discussion of building proposals with Ken Skold of the architectural firm retained by the district for school planning. Alternatives were again considered but no definite action was taken.

Prior to the discussion of building proposals, the board met in regular session on a number of other district matters. Resignation of Adeline Vollan was accepted with a pay back schedule to be arranged. Mrs. Vollan has been on Sabbatical leave and is currently working with the Northwest ECSU office.

Employment was approved after satisfactory completion of 20 days of bus driving for Ted Anderson, Alan Koop, Randy Moe, Kirk Oseid, Larry Paulson and Randy Twistol.

Also hired were Margaret Molin, half-time reading instructor and half-time academically able instructor at Mark Twain elementary; Linda LaFave, long-term substitute cosmetology instructor at the AVTI; Patricia Kleinwachter, part-time music instructor at St. Hilaire elementary; Jerald Brown, half-time warehouse worker at the school district service center; Gale Cota, clerical aide at Northrop elementary; Earl Frazer, custodian at St. Hilaire elementary; and Candice Olson, long-term substitute in cosmetology at the AVTI.

Extra-curricular assignments approved for Lincoln high school were Charlie Cornell, head baseball coach; William McGann, head girls' and boys' cross country coach; and Sharon Stauss, head girls' softball coach. Pam Carlson was assigned to be yearbook advisor at Franklin school.

Two nine-passenger station wagons were purchased from Tunberg Motor company with a low bid of $14,338 among three local bidders.

Gasoline allocation priority list was approved with regular route bus runs given top priority, kindergarten bus runs second priority and athletic trips third priority. Lowest priority was given to AVTI and maintenance vehicles and small engines class, followed by outside trips not school related.

Adjustments were made for participation in the small business management program from $180 to $230 per year and the farm management program from a first year no fee to $50, second through sixth year fee from $50 to $100 and fee beyond six years' from $100 to $150.

Named to the committee for academically able students were Ken Wiebolt of the board; Lolell Dyrud, Lincoln; Alan Krause, Franklin; Doone Cerny and Barry Liimatainen, elementary; Tom Bjorkman and Nanci Kezar, Lincoln student; Shawn Fremstad and Dana Torkelson, Franklin students. Four school district adults will be named at the next meeting of the board.

Approval was given for the city of St. Hilaire to designate the St. Hilaire school as an emergency housing center. The city of St. Hilaire made the request following notification that the governor's office suggests each community designate a place where individuals may go to keep warm until social agencies are contacted in the event of lack of heating fuel.

Authorization was also given for the 10th grade at Lincoln to conduct a magazine subscription and renewal campaign and music record sale as a fund raiser to finance a prom and senior banquet. The fund raising event is expected to eliminate several smaller fund raising activities in the future.

SOME A BIT unsure, some enthusiastic, children lined up to talk to Ronald McDonald at McDonald's restaurant in Thief River Falls Friday. "I believe there is a kid in everyone under 94," he said during an interview.

Ronald Proves Truth Exists In McDonald's Land

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Some of us spend a lifetime wearing a mask, fooling ourselves, only to discover later that it is nothing more than a disguise. Even though it takes Ronald McDonald only 40 minutes to put his mask on, it is very much real. And when he appeared in Thief River Falls Friday afternoon, it was for more than to laugh, sign autographs and talk to children.

"I believe there is a sparkle in kids' eyes, a special glow, no matter what age they are," he said.

Ronald McDonald appeared at the Thief River Falls city auditorium Friday for a one-hour performance in which he performed a magic and puppet show. A free McDonald's fry coupon was given to each child, along with a surprise. After his performance at the auditorium, he appeared at the McDonald's restaurant to sign autographs and talk to children. Children lined up waiting to see their "hero" as Ronald answered questions

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Roxane Renae Bakken Weds Steven R. Sorvig

Marriage voews were exchanged recently at a 3:00 p.m. service at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city by Miss Roxane Renae Bakken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bakken of Grygla, and Steven Ross Sorvig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sorvig, of Red Lake Falls.

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 250 relatives and friends. Mrs. Donald Mosbeck, a friend of the couple, played "Jesu, Joy of Man's desiring" for the processional of the attendants. She also accompanied Stuart Peterson, a friend of the couple, as he sang the "Wedding Song" before the ceremony, "The "Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar; and together with Diane Mosbeck, a friend of the couple, he sang "Devoted to You". Miss Mosbeck played the guitar and together with the groom sang "Let It Be Me," before the entrance of the bride. She also sang "Through the Eyes of Love" as the couple lit the unity candle, and "You Light Up My Life," during the recessional. The traditional "Wedding March" was played for the bride's processional.

The bride given in marriage by her parents was attired in a Chantilly lace gown featuring a semi-cathedral length train, mandarin neckline, and see-through tulle yoke with an off-the-shoulder effect, edged with a matching lace ruffle. The basque bodice, topped a circular skirt with the hemline bordered in multi-ruffles of matching lace trim, which continued up each side of the skirt giving it a lace godet look. A headpiece of Chantilly lace edged with pearls and irredescents held her mantilla styled veil bordered with matching lace. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, stephanotis, babies' breath, and greenery. In keeping with the "something old and new" tradition, the bride wore a double gold leaf pin which had been worn by her great-grandmother.

Sharine Howland, of International Falls, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Shelly Bakken, sister of the bride, Carol Sorvig, sister of the groom, and Brenda Volk, a friend of the bride. They wore identical empire-styled sundresses with matching sheer jackets in alternating colors of mint-green and yellow. In their hair they wore clusters of daisies and babies' breath. They carried white wicker baskets filled with pastel flowers with engraved charms, gifts of the bride.

Flower girl was Karla Lusignan, niece of the bride. She wore a white lace gown fashioned similar to the bride's. In her hair she wore a headband of yellow and white daisies. She carried a white basket similar to those of the attendants. Her gold identification bracelet was a gift from the bride.

The groom was escorted to the altar by his parents. He wore a white tuxedo with tails, and a white ruffled shirt. A yellow rose boutonniere was pinned on his lapel.

Attending the groom as bestman was R. Scott Sorvig, a brother. Groomsmen were Bryan Steiger, a friend of the couple, Ron Sorvig; brother of the groom, and Scott Bakken, brother of the bride. They wore mint green tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and yellow rose boutonnieres.

Ringbearer was Ryan Bakken, brother of the bride. He wore a white tuxedo and yellow rose bud boutonniere. His gold identification bracelet was a gift from the groom. The fathers of the bride and groom were attired in forest green tuxedos with mint green shirts, and yellow rose boutonnieres.

The guests were seated by Loren Lusignan, brother-in-law of the bride, Greg Harris, cousin of the bride, Joel Sorvig, cousin of the groom, and Brad Steiger, a friend of the couple. Their tuxedos featured mint green jackets and forest green vests and trousers, accented by yellow daisy boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bakken chose a green floor-length gown featuring sheer floral print sleeves, accented by a corsage of yellow roses and babies' breath. An identical corsage was worn by the groom's mother who wore a green print floor-length gown with a sheer cape. They were presented with long stemmed yellow roses by the bride and groom, after the lighting of the unity candle. Special guests at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Howland, maternal grandparents, and Mrs. Hazel Bakken, paternal grandmother.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlor. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Warne, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Doug Toliver, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by four heart-shaped cakes. The cakes were iced in white and decorated with yellow roses. Between the cakes were clusters of buttercups. Topping the cake, which was made by Mrs. Donald Mosbeck and Carol Sorvig, was a cluster of three wedding bells with white carnations and rose bud centers, backed by a lace heart. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Harlan Cleven, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Don Radzak, aunt of the groom. Mrs. John Harris aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Warren Mosbeck, godmother of the groom, poured the coffee.

Vicky Erickson and Verlene Jensen, registered the guests. A bouquet of yellow roses, a gift to the bride from the groom, enhanced the guestbook table. Gary and Tami Hedlund, friends of the couple ladled the punch. Waitresses were Phyllis Trontvet, Tammy Bengtson and Mavis Hagen friends of the bride, and Pam Harris, cousin of the bride. Arranging the gifts were Linda Arnold, cousin of the bride, and Debbie Beal, Barb Lohtka and Doris Cerving, friends of the couple.

Preceding the rehearsal the evening prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a dinner in the church parlors for the wedding party and immediate family.

For traveling on the wedding trip to the Black Hills, the bride wore a mint green jumpsuit topped by a matching jacket trimmed with braid.

The bride is a graduate of Goodridge High school and the Thief River Falls AVTI. She is presently employed by the Northwest Educational Cooperative Service unit. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln High school, and the University of Minnesota, Crookston. He is employed by Mobil Oil. The couple is making their home in this city. Photo, of R.L. Reading Ass'n. Fall Workshop Here Thursday

A special invitation is extended to parents to attend the annual North Star reading association fall workshop Thursday between 4 and 8 p.m. at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls.

"We feel that there are many parents concerned about education and cooperation between parents and teachers makes for better education," states Lee Hoekstra, president of North Star council.

The workshop is made up of 20 mini-sessions. Parents and teachers will be able to select sessions they wish to attend in the four half-hour time blocks.

"We are planning to include sessions that will be of special interest to parents," Hoekstra emphasizes. A light supper is also included.

For anyone wishing to join the North Star reading association, the annual dues are $2, however membership is not required for the fall workshop.

"What we want to do is open up the council to those parents that are interested in what's going on in education," Hoekstra added.

Lady Receives Recompense For Stolen Gas

A letter which Mrs. Helen Bendickson nearly discarded without opening because it contained no return address became the high point of her day recently.

The letter contained a $20 bill and a note explaining it was to repay her for gasoline stolen from her car in 1969. It was postmarked in another city and the note was handwritten on a small scrap of paper.

"I'm grateful for the money and that the person's conscience brought him or her to send it," Mrs. Bendickson told the Times. "With all the stealing and shoplifting in Thief River Falls, I wish more people felt the same way."

She recalls that after the theft 10 years ago she thought she had nearly a full gas tank but was scarcely able to get home from work on the gas that was left. Her neighbor operated a gas station at that time and was able to give her the necessary assistance.

Ed. Committee Meets At Best Western Nov. 8

House education committee of the Minnesota state legislature has scheduled a meeting with the public at 7 p.m. in the Best Western motel at Thief River Falls November 8, to discuss the northwest area educational plan.

This plan covers the period of time through 1983 and has been prepared during the past year and a half by the northwest Minnesota educational planning task force.

Planning legislation passed by the legislature in 1977 established an educational planning task force in each of the nine educational cooperative service unit (ECSU) areas in the state. In northwestern Minnesota 12 counties — Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Clearwater, Beltrami, Norman, Mahnomen and Hubbard — took part in the area planning. Task force membership includes one representative from each of the 52 local school-districts, with terms expiring the end of June 1980.

Each of the local school districts prepared its own local educational plan, which was delivered to the area task force by Dec. 1, 1978. Area plan development was based upon the local plans and this area plan was transmitted for review to the Minnesota department of education June 1, 1979. On Sept. 1, 1979, the plans were submitted to the Minnesota state legislature.

Ronald Proves Truth Exists In His Land

during an interview as best as he could, between each child.

"Where do I live? Well, let me see. . . I live east of the sun and west of the moon in McDonald's land," he said smiling. "But, in more clear terms, I live close to North Dakota and South Dakota because this is the section nearest to McDonald's land."

He has always been involved in education, he said, being involved with children from kindergarten to high school. He became interested in his line of work while working with children in theater. It was a child's parent who got him interested in being a clown, he said.

"I talked to people to see what they expected from me, and evaluated what I expected," he said. "I thought the job would be suitable because I've always wanted to be able to talk to kids."

"Theater is another form of education," he said. "It is a form of life. And, theater becomes life, if it's performed right."

There are few corporations that really care about children, according to Ronald McDonald. He feels that McDonald's does, he said. And he enjoys his job because, besides making money, he gets to be close to kids, and an aspect he believes is important is being receptive to feedback he receives from children, he said.

And what is your age, Ronald? He sits back, smiles and replies, "I believe it was Picasso who once said, 'we get young too late in life.' But in more simple terms, I am moving from the terrific 30s to the fantastic 40s."

How long have you been Ronald McDonald?

"All my life," he said. "Ever since I was born. But in earth years, I guess that would be seven years. In McDonald's land, it would be forever and ever."

There is only one true Ronald McDonald and he believes in kids," he said. "And you can tell when Ronald is real and when he isn't."

Ronald McDonald has been involved with many things since he began his career, he said. He has done safety shows, and shows connected with schools here such as rules for Halloween, the metric system, and pollution.

"My belief as Ronald," he said, "is that we are entering a time in society when we're not asking people to be as responsible as they should. This includes kids, too," he added.

Ronald has visited many places since he became a clown. Two years ago he was in Europe, where he visited various McDonald's restaurants (trying to find as many as he could that spoke English). A week ago he was in Hawaii to visit various McDonald's restaurants. He will be traveling mainly in the Midwest circuit until about the middle of December, he said. He also has been in many of the western states.

"I haven't been to the east very much," he said. "You need a Brooklyn accent for that and I'm not very good at that."

He has encountered various experiences, both good and bad, while touring the United States. His most memorable was three years ago while he was visiting the children's hospital in Minneapolis, he said. He knew a girl there, 4, who was dying of leukemia.

"She was going to die, she knew it, and all she needed was to talk to someone about it," he said. "No one had ever really sat down and talked with her about it before. She told me she was going to die and she did."

Contrary to this, he had a humorous experience in Florida three years ago, he said. He was roller skating, and showing off, thinking he was better than he was, he admitted.

"I started going backwards, went through the gates, and ran into a huge lady seated in the front row of seats. I knocked her off her chair, and she fell on the floor, with me falling on top of her," he said.

There are a few things he dislikes about his job, he said. One thing is pushy mothers. He also dislikes children, 10 or 11, who sometimes try to break down someone's belief in something.

"These kids are just looking for attention," he said.

But Ronald seems to have answers for those who try to disillusion a child's beliefs. For example, in answer to the question, 'Is that a wig?' Ronald answered, "It's been known to come off, if that's what you mean. Your hair comes off too, doesn't it?" And to the question, 'Is that face real?' He simply replied, "It comes with the rest of my body; I don't know about yours."

Ironic as it may seem, he said, his favorite age group of children is seventh and eighth graders — when they're by themselves and not showing off.

He enjoys seeing the sparkle in kids' eyes, he said. And he also enjoys visiting old folks' homes.

"One of the nicest things in life is to be able to fool someone and to get someone to laugh at himself — then he's on the way to success," he said.

Ronald believes there's a kid in everyone under 94, he said. He believes in people who are concerned with their own welfare.

"You need time and patience for this type of work," he said. "You also have to be somewhat of a ham and a showman."

The Ronald McDonald costume originated from the Comedia Del' Art, in the fifteenth century, he said. During that time, performers wore flour on their faces so no one knew who they were. They were then transformed to represent all nationalities.

"The concept of the white face portrays every man," Ronald said. "And the clown costume is meant to represent all attitudes and feelings of every man."

There would not be time to do anything else in his life while living the life of Ronald McDonald, he said.

"I plan to continue for awhile — for as long as I like it," he said. "When I grow tired of it or someone, then I believe it is time to leave."

Ronald's appearance Friday, along with his words and actions, seem to show that the McDonald's slogan IS true: "Nobody can do it like (Ronald) McDonald can."

Meat And Poultry Consumption Highest Among Americans

Americans may have come to assume they're No. 1 when it comes to meat consumption. Truth is, Americans rank behind Uruguayans, Argentines, New Zealanders and Australians in per capita consumption of red meats.

And, they rank behind Israelis and Hungarians in per capita consumption of poultry meats. But, they lead the people of all countries in the per capita consumption of red meats and poultry meats combined.

According to a report by the Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, the average American consumed a total of 244.4 pounds of red meats and poultry last year. In the process, they supplanted the Australians as the world's top meat and poultry eaters. Australians consumed 242.4 pounds of meat and poultry per capita last year, down from 261 pounds in 1977. Weights given in the report are carcass weights, not retail weights.

By way of comparison, the average Soviet citizen consumed 133.8 pounds, the average Japanese, 67.8 pounds per capita of meat and poultry last year. The Soviets ranked 22nd, the Japanese, 24th, among the 49 nations surveyed.

The report showed that per capita beef and veal consumption was generally off in most countries last year.

It was down sharply in Argentina. Per capita consumption there dropped from 202 pounds in 1977 to 189.2 pounds last year—though the Argentines still maintained their position as the world's No. 1 beef and veal consumers.

Uruguayans again ranked 2nd in beef and veal consumption, though per capita consumption there dropped off from 190.1 pounds in 1977 to 187.9 pounds last year. Australians held the No. 3 position with a 126.7 pound average that was down sharply from the 151.4 pounds of 1977.

New Zealanders ranked 4th and Americans were 5th in beef and veal consumption. New Zealanders ate an average of 117.9 pounds last year, down from the 124.0 pound average of 1977. The average American consumed 111.8 pounds of beef and veal last year. That total was off from 123 pounds in 1977.

Beef and veal consumption averaged 60.1 pounds per person in the Soviet Union last year, up from 59.2 pounds in 1977. Japan's per capita beef and veal consumption was 11.0 pounds last year, up from 10.1 pounds in 1977.

West Germans led all peoples in per capita pork consumption last year with a 112.4 pound average that was up from 105.2 pounds the year before. Poland was 2nd with a 105.8 average. Americans ranked 14th with a 69.5 pound average. Russians were 24th with a 44.2 pound average, while the Japanese were 28th with a 28.1 pound average.

New Zealanders, with a 70.8 pound average, led the world in per capita consumption of mutton and goat meat. Australians were 2nd with a 42.9 pound average. Americans were tied (with the Swedes) for 28th position with a 1.54 pound average. Soviets averaged 7.7 pounds; the Japanese, 5.1 pounds per capita.

In over-all red meat consumption, the people of Uruguay ranked 1st with a 221.1 pound average. Argentines were 2nd with a 216.0 pound average. Followed by the New Zealanders (215.6 pounds) and Australians (201.5 pounds).

Americans were 5th with a 182.8 pound average. Soviets averaged 112 pounds; the Japanese, 46 pounds to rank 22nd and 40th, respectively.

The Israelis consumed 66 pounds of poultry meat per capita to lead all peoples in poultry consumption, though the Hungarians followed closely behind with a 64.2 pound average. Americans ranked 3rd, consuming an average of 61.4 pounds per person.

"DOES THAT FACE come off?" one child whispered. "It comes with the rest of my body; I don't know about yours," Ronald replied. Ronald had answers to all questions Friday when he appeared at McDonald's restaurant in Thief River Falls to sign autographs and talk with the children.

Gasohol Meet At Newfolden Hosts Experts

An area-wide gasohol meeting is set for Saturday afternoon at the Newfolden community hall. The meeting will open at 1 p.m. with introduction of speakers and plant operators. Speakers and production personnel will conduct the rest of the four-hour seminar.

Ray J. Anderson, Detroit Lakes, national gasohol board member, will speak on gasohol products and the present and future roles of gasohol in the United States and Canada.

Archie Zeithamer, gasohol engineer and technician, will also speak. Zeithamer and his son, Allan, have spent the past two years setting up gasohol plants for production. The Zeithamer company is presently the Warren Hatje plant at Cavalier, N.D. which is geared for the production of gasohol from waste potatoes.

According to Zeithamer, gasohol can be made from almost any farm product or by-product. Plant costs and production costs are also available on most every kind of product from wheat and corn to waste products. There will also be a slide presentation of plants and the effectiveness of gasohol products in the future agricultural movement which will be shown at the Newfolden meeting.

All area residents, especially farmers or commercial businessmen who are interested in the presentations, are welcome at the meeting. Norval Torkelson of Warren is serving as chairman and will be in charge of the afternoon's activities.

The Marshall County DFL will be serving the lunch during the afternoon.

Two From Area End 12-Week Army Training

Two area men recently completed one station unit training (OSUT) at Fort Benning, GA. They are Pvt. Arthur E. Braun III, Thief River Falls, and Pvt. Paul E. Frazer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Frazer, Goodridge.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

Training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

Early and periodic screening provides simple and efficient methods of screening basically well children. EPS clinics provide the following components: vision and hearing check, height and weight determination, dental assessment and instruction in care of teeth, Denver developmental testing, hematocrit determination and urinalysis, physical assessment and also, immunizations are available. Appointments must be made in advance.

Schedule is as follows: Oklee — November 1 — Zion Lutheran church; Grygla — November 5 — Community center; Newfolden — November 6 — Bethlehem Lutheran church; Hallock — November 7 — Presbyterian church; Red Lake Falls — November 13 — Red Lake Falls city hall; Warren — November 15 — Evangelical Covenant church; Karlstad — November 16 — First Lutheran church; Thief River Falls — November 9 — Redeemer Lutheran church.

WIC is a United States department of agriculture sponsored program which makes nutritional education and certain food supplements available to people who have been certified. Briefly, people who may be eligible for WIC include: pregnant or lactating women who are shown to have a nutritional or medical risk factor; infants from birth to 12 months with shown nutritional or medical risk factor; children from one year to five years with nutritional or medical risk factor. Family income may also be a determining factor. Also, to be eligible, persons must be residents at one of the four counties served by the 4 county WIC program.

Because the participant load is increasing, it is necessary for potential clients to call or write the 4 county EPS service in Warren to make a WIC certification appointment. New clients will be seen by appointment only.

Gas Shortage Expected As Oct. Advances

Although gas supplies around the state appear to be adequate right now, there are definite signs of an impending shortage, according to The Minnesota State Automobile association(AAA).

"There has been a slight tightening of hours, and seven of the 65 stations surveyed reported they were out of some grade of fuel," said Diane Nelsen, spokeswoman for the Minnesota AAA.

"Many of the service stations we surveyed did not know what to expect in the way of fuel supplies for the next few weeks," Nelsen said. "However, according to reports from the petroleum division of the Minnesota department of revenue, there was an 8.7 per cent decrease in the amount of gasoline brought into the state during September. That means there's less gasoline being stored around Minnesota, and we'll be going into November with lower stocks," Nelsen said.

She noted, however, that there was about a 16 per cent increase in the amount of fuel oil brought into Minnesota during September.

Ken Wingard, executive secretary of the Minnesota Independent Retailers association, agreed that the gas situation was tightening up. "Everyone is scrounging for gas, retailers are raising prices in an effort to slow sales and some stations are shortening their hours!" he said.

The sudden shortage was partly due to the October 1 cutoff of approximately 23,000 barrels per day of light crude oil from Canada into Minnesota. A further cutoff of heavy crude is expected next spring.

The severity of the shortage won't be known until the November allocation figures from suppliers to retailers are announced, said Wingard. However, he noted that the four Minnesota-area oil companies are heavily dependent on Canadian crude. In addition, Ahsland, a major refinery and supplier in Minnesota, buys a large percentage of its crude oil from Iran, where oil production has been lowered.

Prices have increased in the past month, but mostly at full-service pumps, where the average price is a penny and a half higher than in mid-September. Premium unleaded jumped 2.4 cents per gallon, and diesel fuel is up 3.1 cents per gallon, Nelsen said.

Currently, the average price per gallon at full-service stations is $1.01.8 for regular, $1.07.4 for premium, $1.05.5 for unleaded, $1.09.5 for premium unleaded and $1.01.1 for diesel fuel.

At self-service pumps, the average price per gallon is 98.3 cents for regular, $1.03.6 for premium, $1.02.5 for unleaded and $1.06.4 for premium unleaded.

"The best way for motorists to cope with the uncertainties of rising prices and uncertain supplies is to conserve as much as possible," Nelsen said. "A good tune-up, proper pressure in your vehicle's tires and careful driving habits(includingstayingwithin the 55 mph speed limit) can increase your mileage up to 69 per cent."

PIONEER TALES

Pennington County Historical Society

by Inga Geving

Summer slipped by so fast, and now we are putting everything away for winter and making plans for next spring at the Pennington Pioneer village.

Moving the Burlington depot into the village was the highlight of this summer, and we want to thank the following people for repairing the roof where the building had been cut in two: Steven Fisher, Paul Cuppett, Al Christopherson and Gordon Gunderson. They spent much time on this project.

We also wish to thank the following men for their work on the foundation for the windmill: Harold Matzke, Gil Sannes, Woody Craik, Quentin Jones and Robert Stroble.

Donations for the depot fund are coming in. The following have donated recently to this fund: Mrs. Charles Bollinger, Crookston, in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bauer; Dr. and Mrs. E.O. Thorsgard; and the Odd Fellows lodge.

Histories are coming in for the second book, and we are extending time for that. This winter people will have more time to write, so please send your histories in. This is important and worthwhile in order to complete our second book.

Meeting Called For Pennington Wheat Growers

Meeting of all Pennington county wheat producers has been called for 8 p.m. Thursday, November 1, at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Meeting has been set to report on state Wheat Growers association activities and to prepare for the annual state convention, which will be Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 28, 29 and 30, according to Wheat Grower officials.

Merv Syverson, field representative for the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers, is handling the meeting. He will report on membership activities throughout the state.

Syverson said several important topics will be discussed at the meeting. "We need to talk about resolutions, including possible strike legislation, to present at the state convention, and we need the input of as many Pennington county wheat farmers as possible," Syverson asserted.

A Pennington county representative to the Wheat Growers third district will also be elected at the meeting, Syverson noted.

Minnesota Wheat Growers association president Jorgen Knuttson emphasized the importance of the meeting. "We can't kid ourselves into thinking we don't have problems this year," Knutson said. "These problems can be resolved if we work on them, and that work has to start at the county level. These county meetings are used to get farmer feedback and to find out just what action needs to be taken," Knutson declared.

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers executive vice president Charles Rhoades is also expected to attend the meeting, and he said "now is the time for wheat producers to get involved in wheat grower activities.

"If the farmers aren't satisfied with present conditions, this is their chance to get their thoughts and ideas heard," Rhoades said. "The Minnesota Wheat Growers association works only for wheat farmers, whose concerns are our only concern," Rhoades added.

The meeting is open to all Pennington County wheat farmers and any other interested parties.

Army's Present Role Explained By Recruiter

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

"I believe we're going to see some form of selective service in a couple of years," stated Benny M. Paulino, captain and area commander for the U.S. army North Dakota recruiting area.

Capt. Paulino, making his quarterly visit to check to the recruiting station in Thief River Falls, commented on the draft, women in the U.S. army today, and on general army concepts.

Capt. Paulino is responsible for the recruiting efforts for active army reserves in western Minnesota and all of North Dakota.

"We maintain the largest recruiting area in the United States," he said. "People in this area are solid citizens. They have a great sense of value and are responsible for property and authority. Few of them we recruit are not high school graduates and this is a big plus in my opinion," he added. "We don't have the volume that metropolitan areas have, but we've got quality."

Going back to the basics, he said, last year there was an availability of men between 17 and 21 as a result of the post war baby boom. In 1985 the availability of men is expected to decline 7 per cent and in 1990, it's expected to decline 25 per cent. And, with the pull of available men declining there has to be competition with the civilian population, he said.

Capt. Paulino commented on various opinions from others concerning the draft. One came from the secretary of the army who stated, "We don't need the draft." On the other hand, Gen. Bernard Rogers, former army chief of staff, stated that he favors the drafting of personnel into various services.

Right now, Paulino said, we have an adequate defense force that stands at 2.05 million.

"If we want to keep that number, we have to trade something off," he said. "and how are we going to do this? For one thing, we are making the army more attractive to people and right now we're trying to appeal to women," he added.

BENNY M. PAULINO, captain and area commander for the U.S. Army North Dakota recruiting area, arrived in Thief River Falls Friday to visit with recruiting station for a quarterly visit check.

According to his courses, 42 per cent of the people involved in the army are women, he said.

"There are many jobs women can do as well as men," he said.

Presently, there are 379 different jobs in the Army and all but 16 of them are available to women, he said. The jobs that are not available to them are those involving hand to hand combat, and the restriction is due to an act taken by Congress. Previously, the only jobs that were available to women were medical and clerical. Now they can become involved in jobs such as communications and aviation. There are more opportunities today, he said.

In 1972, there were 12,000 women in the army, and this year there are 54,000, he said.

"Our goal is to reach 80,000," Capt. Paulino said.

There are still 50 per cent of the women who prefer the "traditional" role in the army, he said. They prefer to perform medical and clerical jobs.

Paulino stressed the equal opportunity factor in the army today. Before, he said, if women got pregnant while they were in the army, they got discharged. Today, there are maternity leaves. Women can also find a responsible individual to care for their child, and still remain in the army if they wish, he said.

There are the same mental, physical and moral qualifications for both men and women today, he said. The Women's Army Corps, (WAC) policies were abolished about a year and a half ago. The organization previously was segregated and now is it integrated, with women competing with other women instead of being totally independent of each other.

"The army led the way for integration of women," he said. "We're proud of that. It also had the first woman general, and there are three of them now. It had the first woman to command a large unit, and the first woman to become a helicopter pilot. The women do everything the man is expected to do as a helicopter pilot except take part in attack missions," he said.

"We still have a few liberated women who want to be Infantry women, but because of the act by Congress, this is impossible — right now," he added.

During the draft period of the country, which ended in 1973, the government ordered people into service, Paulino said. Now they ask people to volunteer. So, special "packages" have to be offered to appeal to people. If an individual is qualified for a particular job after taking tests to learn of his ability in a certain field, he is asked three questions: (1) What job he'd like to train in (even if he doesn't have experience for the job); 2) when he would like to go on active duty; and 3; where he would like to work in the job he chooses.

"In most cases," he said, "all of these requirements are met, but sometimes situations arise that prevent this. For example, if a job is filled, no more applications are needed and we are not able to put the applicant in the job he chooses."

In 1970, Paulino was drafted right out of college. He had no say in the matter at all, he said. He was qualified as a mathematician but they didn't need him for that at the time, so he was put into the infantry.

The army also offers bonuses up to $3,000 for 35 different types of jobs, he said. There are bonuses in jobs such as combat arms, radio teletype operator and military intelligence. There are also education benefits for those, who, while on active duty want to pursue their education. In cases such as these, the army pays 75 per cent of the tuition. There are reputable colleges on various army posts to meet the needs of those desiring further education. The army provides the faculty professors also, he said.

Under the veterans educational assistance program (VEP), for every dollar saved in a job venture career while going to school, over a three-year period, the army matches $2 in funds. The only stipulation is that the money received must be used to further the person's education, Paulino said.

"This is the only way that he or she can get matching funds from the army," he added.

The stripes for skill course in the army looks at those with special skills, Paulino said. It's purpose is to hopefully give an education to the people involved. It is a good way for people to get experience, learn special skills, and get paid, he said.

"The army, is the largest institutionalized training center in the world," he added.

In looking at the army in the future, Paulino stated that the military is not an easy life.

"People involved in it do not lead a typical life," he said. "But the main reason for the Army's existence is to deter any type of agressive country we're faced with."

He admitted that national media keys on negative aspects of army life. Television commercials that portray military life as glorious, happy and free are not always exactly true, he said.

The army took most of the blame in Vietnam. But who ordered the army? It was President Johnson who mobilized 500,000 troops there.

"We must deter by showing strength," he said. "And the first thing to do is to avoid aggression and maintain force."

Count Dracula Returns To PBS Television Halloween Night

One of the world's great horror stories, "Count Dracula," returns to television in a three-hour adaptation beginning at 8 p.m. Halloween night, October 31. Louis Jourdan stars in Gerald Savory's adaptation of the Bram Stoker novel, which will air as a special attraction on Great Performances to be seen on Prairie Public Television (KGFE, ch. 2).

Set in 1890 in England and Transylvania, "Dracula" was one of 17 books written by the English author, Bram Stoker. In translating the adaptation to film, director Philip Seville filmed on a number of locations in Northumberland and at the Highgate cemetery.

Louis Jourdan, known primarily as the romantic star of such films as "Letter from an Unknown Woman" and "Gigi," departs from "type" to play the "undead" Count Dracula.

"I've tried to make him as attractive as possible," Jourdan says. "Like so many evil people, Dracula really believes he is doing good. He claims that he gives his victims eternal life."

Bram Stoker always claimed that the inspiration for his classic tale of horror, Dracula, was the result of "... a too generous helping of the dressed crab at supper one night." In a nightmare brought on by that culinary overindulgence, he saw "a vampire king rising from the tomb to go about his ghastly business."

Of course, Stoker tended to underplay his long hours of research at the British museum, where he uncovered the ancient folklore surrounding vampires, and where he first learned of the human monster on whom he modeled Count Dracula, Vlad Tepes. Also known as Vlad Dracula or the Impaler, he was the ruler of Wallachia, a part of Transylvania, during the 1400's. . .and a man whose reputation for cruelty was unrivaled in his lifetime.

The man who wrote this enduring chiller was born in Dublin in 1847, and was a sickly child who, according to a biographer, "hovered near death for months and did not leave his bed until he was seven. He grew to be a giant, however, and excelled in athletics at Dublin University." After graduation, Stoker followed in his father's footsteps, working as a civil servant at Dublin Castle. At the same time, he took a job as the unpaid drama critic for the Dublin Mail.

When he was 29 years old, Stoker met the already legendary actor Henry Irving, and followed him to London. This incident changed the entire course of Stoker's life, for he soon became Irving's personal secretary and business manager, staying in the actor's employ for 28 years. Although he found some time for his own writing, it wasn't until after Irving's death in 1903 that Stoker produced the bulk for his books. There were seventeen in all, and most of them are tales of horror and the supernatural. Some of his better known works include "The Lady of the White Worm," "The Lady of the Shroud," and an impressive two-volume work, "The Personal Reminiscenes of Sir Henry Irving".

A great deal of mystery still surrounds the personal life of Bram Stoker. We know he was married and had children, but little is known of his relations with them. Such inconsistencies abound in Stoker's life — and in his writing. 20th century critic Anthony Boucher once asked, "How did the most successful horror novel in the English (and possibly in any) language come to be written by a man whose first published book was entitled "The Duties of Clerks of Petty Sessions in Ireland"?

Dracula has established Stoker for all time — it is the oustanding work from his pen, and it remains the most complete work of gothic horror in literature. Count Dracula is a creature as compelling as Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein," as terrifying as Conan Doyle's "Hound of the Baskervilles," and every bit as erotic as Bronte's "Heathcliff." He is the sinister underside of human nature, representing all that is evil. This is a world which Bram Stoker imagined out of whole cloth, but it comes perilously close to reality... and perhaps that is why "Dracula" will, indeed, live forever.

Bram Stoker's mother was one of the first to recognize the masterpiece her son's tale of horror, "Dracula" would become. Wrote Charlotte Stoker: "My dear, the book is splendid, a thousand miles beyond anything you have written before, and I feel certain will place you very high in the writers of the day... No book since Mrs. Shelley's "Frankenstein" or indeed any other at all has come near yours in originality, or terror — Poe is nowhere. . ."

Vlad the Impaler, or Vlad Tepes, ruler of Wallachia, Transylvania, during the 1400's, is said to have been Bram Stoker's model for his classic tale of terror, "Dracula". Vlad Tepes was not, however, a vampire and Stoker's creation is a composite of the many vampires of middle European folklore. The vampire is said to have a tainted soul, and is therefore condemned to a living death. Count Dracula, as Stoker wrote him, was the king of the undead. Vlad the Impaler was very much a mortal man, dreaded for his unspeakable cruelty. Descriptions of lingering deaths, caused by impalement, abound when one reads of his reign.

"It is the eve of St. George's Day. Do you not know that tonight, when the clock strikes midnight, all the evil things in the world will have full sway?" Early in Bram Stoker's "Dracula", the scene is set for the unholy happenings which make this the greatest horror story in all literature.

In Gerald Savory's adaptation, it is once again St. George's Day (May 4) as Jonathan Harker travels through the countryside of Transylvania on his way to Castle Dracula.

St. George the dragon slayer was a mythical saint whose origins can be found in Anatolia and who was, as legend has it, beheaded in 303 A.D. and resurrected shortly afterward.

The first man to portray Dracula was Max Schreck in the 1922 German film, "Nosferatu" (meaning vampire). In 1927, the Hungarian actor Bela Lugosi starred in the title role of a stage version, written by Hamilton Deane and John L. Balderston. Lugosi later starred in frequent stage revivals, and in the 1931 film version of the play. It is his characterization which has lived on in memory as the quintessential Dracula, although other actors have continued to portray the mysterious count.

In 1945, John Carradine starred in two films as Dracula, and Christopher Lee revived him in 1958. This past year, Frank Langella brought the vampire to the Broadway stage in a highly stylized version of the old play. Now, Louis Jourdan breathes new life into the vampire king who, according to legend, has been among the undead for the last 500 years.

Pre-Trial Hearing Common In Minn.

(Editor's Note: Following information was preapred by the Court Information Office of the Supreme Court of Minnesota.

In the original Perry Mason writings by former criminal defense lawyer Earl Stanley Gardner, Mason reportedly never once had a trial. Unbelieveable? In the book versions, Mason's miraculous victories for his clients accused of crime were all accomplished at hearings held prior to the trial, or pre-trial proceedings.

Pre-trail proceedings are common in Minnesota, as elsewhere. These proceedings are crucial to the criminal justice system, even if they are generally not as spectacular as Perry Mason's fictional efforts would indicate.

There are several types of pre-trial proceedings in a criminal case. Sometimes it comes as a surprise that the first visit to a court for those charged with a crime is not the last. For example, in a typical felony case such as a robbery, there likely would be an initial appearance, the first appearance in district court, an omnibus hearing. There may also be motions, exchanges of information, and plea negotiations prior to the trial. In fact, only seven per cent of the criminal cases actually make it to trial.

Let's step back for a minute. Before the courts enter the picture at all, certain things have occurred. A crime has been committed. The police have been alerted. The police conduct an investigation and arrest a suspect.

It's after a suspect is arrested that the court becomes actively involved. For a suspect who is being held in jail, that court involvement begins with the initial appearance. An initial apprearnace is scheduled within 36 hours of the day of arrest (not including weekends and holidays.)

The initial appearance is held to determine bail. Bail is set by the judge, often based on a quick background check of the defendant. The determination of the amount of bail involves several factors — the likelihood that the defendant will appear for further proceedings, the seriousness of the crime, the possible danger to others in the community. Also at the initial appearance a public defender can be appointed for someone who cannot afford an attorney.

The court's gavel bangs again for a suspect at a hearing on probable cause and arraignment. In a felony case, this is called the first appearance in district court.

Here, the judge determines if there is probably cause for the case to proceed any further. The judge must decide if there is reason enough to put the defendant through the criminal process. The judge considers the evidence that the police and prosecutor had to point to the defendant as the suspect. If there is not adequate evidence, the charges must be dropped.

In most cases, probable cause is found, and the hearing continues with an arraignment. Arraignment literally means "answering the charges." The exact crime charged against the defendant is read aloud. "How do you plead?" the defendant is then asked. The defendant may answer with a "guilty" or "not guilty" response.

Within sixty days after the hearing on probable cause, a trial is scheduled. Before the trail, though, there is more work. In addition to investigation and an exchange of witnesses' names, the prosecution and defense may confer on the case to see if the time and expense of a trial can be avoided by a reasonable solution. This is commonly called plea negotiation or plea bargaining. Motions also may be made in court. For example, when a case has attracted a great deal of publicity, a motion might be made to change the location of the trial to another county.

These motions also might be made at the last and final hearing before a trial — the omnibus hearing. In the omnibus hearing issues of constitutionality are reviewed. Questions about the legality of searches for evidence, seizure of items, the arrest procedure, police tactics are all reviewed. The judge will make decisions about what information can and cannot be used in the trial under constitutional guidelines.

The case is now ready for trial. While no one usually jumps up from the audience to confess, as in Perry Mason's cases, the pre-trial hearings are vital in maintaining a fair and orderly process for criminal cases.

Your Just Desserts

PLAN A FESTIVE FALL DESSERT PARTY

Invite favorite friends over for a fall dessert party. Your guests will delight in a home-baked Minced Fruit Pie, with oven-scent aromas of cinnamon, nutmeg, apricots and rum. Toast the holidays with a Bacardi Lime Punch, enhanced with Bacardi rum, banana-pineapple nectar, fresh cranberries and lime. Compliments galore will be your just desserts.

BACARDI MINCED FRUIT PIE

1 1/2 cups dried apricots, chopped
1 cup pitted prunes, chopped
1 cup water
1/2 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
1 cup raisins
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup orange juice
1/2 cup walnuts, chopped
1/3 cup almonds, sliced
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Pastry for double crust 9-inch pie

In saucepan, combine apricots, prunes, water and rum. Cook over high heat 5 minutes or until fruit is soft. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients, except pastry. Stir to blend well.

Line 9-inch pie plate with half pastry. Fill with fruit mixture. Roll out remaining pastry and cut into strips. Use to decorate top of pie. Press into bottom pastry and crimp edges to form rim. Bake at 400° F. for 30 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Remove from oven and cool on wire rack. If desired, serve with vanilla ice cream or sweetened whipped cream. Makes one 9-inch pie.

BACARDI LIME PUNCH

2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen daiquiri mix
6 ounces water
1 bottle (28 ounces) lemon-lime soda
1 can (12 ounces) banana-pineapple nectar
1 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
3 to 4 drops green food coloring, if desired
Ice ring (frozen with cranberries)
1 cup fresh cranberries
1 lime, thinly sliced

In chilled punch bowl, combine daiquiri mix, 2 cans water (using daiquiri mix can as measure), soda, nectar and rum. Add ice, berries and lime. Makes about 2 quarts.

Council Okays Improvements In Utilities

(alderman Ambrose Wysoski was absent from the meeting).

"I vote yes, only because it addresses itself to the immediate freezing problem," alderman Goodrich said.

An item concerning residents adjacent to the Ehrenstrom property near Edgewood drive brought a delegation of property owners to the meeting. Leland Knight, speaker for the group, concluded that he may be working in the wrong direction after talking to various people about the problem of rats in the area.

"The rats are still there. Litter left by children using this route to and from school has to be removed, and the grass needs cutting. We are taxpayers, and we'd like to see this area cleaned up," he said.

"The property is zoned properly," according to alderman Borsheim. "A letter from Mr. Ehrenstrom indicated that he wanted council members to share in the cost of putting up a fence in the area."

The area does pose a health problem, according to city attorney Robert Wurst. And, if it is proved through a health officer that the area is a nuisance, prosecution must take place. Alderman Penning introduced a resolution to refer the area to the law enforcement center and to the health inspector for inspection.

Jack Quinlivan, city planner, supplied information to council members concerning the request for the extension of a six month grace period for Sully's welding shop in Thief River Falls. The welding shop has been empty for five months, according to Quinlivan. Sully's was informed two months ago that commercial use of the building was to be reinstated there. A better way to approach the problem, Quinlivan informed council members, would be to rezone the area. A November 5 hearing was decided upon to resolve the matter.

Arguments arose over the recommendation of Shelva Johnson's request for a home occupation permit to operate a beauty shop in her home at 1201 Riverdale drive in Thief River Falls.

Tim Miller, police officer in Thief River Falls and a resident of that area, opposed the recommendation by stating that more traffic would result near his home at the end of the street with the beauty shop, thus posing a threat to the children in the area.

"There would be no problem with parking on the curve at the end of the street," Shelva Johnson said. Off-street parking is not a stipulation of the home occupation permit.

"I like to see people work and make money in their homes," alderman Borsheim said, "but there have been many criticisms and complaints concerning home use permits in the R-1 zone. I object to the decision of the planning commission."

Debate further resulted from Max Graham, resident of Thief River Falls who has been operating a home occupation since 1973 with no problems, he said.

Council delayed action on the recommendation by the city planning commission, as a request by alderman Ambrose Wysoski, who desired attendance to help make the final decision. The recommendation will again be considered at the November 13 city council meeting.

Two representatives for the new Holiday stationstore in Thief River Falls, Royal Oyster, local manager, and Ed Walseth, district manager, attended the meeting to request a 3.2 beer license at the store. Application for a license at the previous store had been made two years ago and had been turned down because of the small amount of food items in the store, according to Walseth.

"We feel there is enough traffic in the area so the store would benefit from the license," Walseth said. Alderman Relerson introduced a resolution to grant the license to the store. Roll call vote determined the final decision on the issue, with five "yes" votes and two "no" votes cast by alderman Penning and alderman Goodrich.

"I vote 'no' simply because I do not feel there is enough information on the matter," alderman Penning said.

"I vote 'no' because I believe gasoline and alcohol don't mix," alderman Goodrich added.

Alderman Penning's opposition to the issue arrived after questions arose as to whether or not the Holiday store was a gas station or a grocery store. Grocery stores may obtain the 3.2 license in most cases, but service stations have been turned down from obtaining a license in the past, according to alderman Goodrich.

"I do not view this Holiday store as a grocery store," alderman Penning stated.

"But it is not viewed as merely a gas station alone," Walseth said.

An unannounced item of concern was discussed by Norman Cruse, chamber of commerce executive and speaker for a group concerned with what would be done with Lincoln high school if it was decided that a new high school would be built in the community.

"It has been suggested that we use the present Lincoln high school building for a civic and government center, if a new one is built," Cruse said. His comments, supported by various reasons, included the fact that the present Lincoln high school gym could be used for a YMCA, and that it would be a waste to lose a 1,000 seat auditorium, since the new school would probably only have an auditorium half that size.

His plea to council members was to have a member from the council named to sit on the issue if the school board should decide that a new building should be constructed.

"It is the taxpayers who determine if we need a new school, not the school board," Mayor Carlson reminded him.

Following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Penning, Mayor Carlson was elected to join the city, county and others in the task force to study the use of the school.

Recommendation concerning the status of rural fire protection, another item not on the agenda, continued debate from the last council meeting. Representatives from the five townships of Rocksbury, North, Smiley, Silverton and Norden attended the meeting to hear council decision on the issue.

Alderman Penning called council members' attention to the analysis of the present budget in regard to who is actually paying the cost of fire protection. The question arose as to whether townships are paying their fair share of the operating budget. Presently, there is $160,000 involved in the operating budget for fire protection. One fourth of the fire calls are out of the city, and one fourth of the population is out of the city, according to studies compiled by alderman Penning.

"It seems only fair that the townships should pay one fourth of the operating costs," he said. "The township governments should be given an opportunity to discuss the matter at their annual meeting in March. We should keep five or six townships in the fire service center but we should have more sharing of costs."

Alderman Ole Engelstad introduced a resolution to extend the present contract for fire protection for one year at $10,000 for the five townships. A roll call vote, resulting in seven "yes" votes, finalized the decision.

Airport committee recommendations continued, concerning car rental requirements, adjusting the percentage received from the vendor from 10 per cent to 15 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1980, and a request from the Bemidji airport to use the Thief River Falls vacuum truck. Council members agreed unanimously to refer all three recommendations to the airport committee for further discussion.

Tom Kenville, speaking in favor of a second car rental facility at the Thief River Falls regional airport, said that if the facility is put in operation, it would be maintained for regular working hours, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and would be manned on a consistent basis.

Alderman Penning suggested $200 a month for facility use or five per cent of the gross, which, he said, is a standard business practice.

In other council decisions, members accepted a $16,000 bid from the Hjelle roofing company of Newfolden for repair work on the roof of the water treatment plant in Thief River Falls. Ray Oen's request for the variance in airport zoning was agreed to be referred to the airport committee.

Council meeting concluded with a second motion made on the 1979 utility improvement project. Moistad Excavating will do between 20 and 50 service lines (depending upon weather conditions) at his bid unit prices. The resolution, introduced by alderman Penning, was seconded by alderman Clayton Restad and resulted in a roll call vote of seven "yes" votes which finalized the decision.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Once again, to my chagrin, though not surprisingly, a recent editorial has shown clearly the anti-farmer sentiment that appears to pervade the feelings of the editorial staff. I can not understand the attempts that continue to be made to alienate and antagonize the farmers in this area.

I remember when you castigated the NFO members for dumping milk and disposing of calves to call attention to their plight. Your feelings then seemed to be that they should continue to sell at a loss so people might have more cheap meat. I ask you, sir, do you give away your unsold papers, or do you dispose of them? I doubt that you give papers regularly to non-subscribers unwilling to pay a price that assures you of a fair profit.

You also in the past have almented over the fact that a lot of farmers post their property, restricting access to those who have the courtesy to ask permission. Am I welcome, or even allowed, to run all over your private property in the city whenever I choose, even if I don't litter or cause damage? I think not.

We have subsidized you, the consumer, through the years with the world's cheapest food. You seem to feel we should also provide you with unlimited recreation facilities. I believe all private lands should be off limits, whether agricultural, as our beloved DNR defines it, or wooded unless and until permission has been obtained.

In a recent editorial entitled "Appreciating Public Lands", you downplay the farmers' part in providing waterfowl for your enjoyment.

You state that farmers should be recognized for providing a portion of their food; but it is the wildlife lands (I refuse to insert the word management because of an almost lack of it) that keep the birds in the area. Now sir, with all due respect for your knowledge of wildlife, the average person realized that without the food available on private lands, these so-called management areas would hold no waterfowl in this area for any length of time.

You bet your printing press farmers should be recognized for their part. We in this area provide practically all the available food for most species of game birds and animals, with the exception of moose, for which the brushlands of DNR are admirably suited.

Crop depredation by waterfowl only in late harvest seasons? Sir, surely you realize that ducks and geese eat on a regular basis every year. While there is a greater loss in late harvest years, there is some lost every year.

Also, how about the deer and the sharptailed grouse that eat my sunflowers and flax? I have one 40-acre field that has supported seven deer all summer; 35-acre field that has supported three; and some not insignificant damage in all my other fields to deer and grouse.

Yes, you should pay recognition to farmers for supporting wildlife, but more than that you and all other sportsmen need to seriously consider financial payment as well. How many dollars have you spent this past year to provide food and cover for the wildlife you hunt?

The state says this game belongs to all of us equally. If my neighbor and I jointly own a herd of cows we jointly share the expense. We, the farmers, have spent alot through crop losses, and most of us leaving some land in cover for game. How about helping out on an equal basis or quit griping about cleared lands and no trespassing signs? Amazing how quickly one's ardor cools and farmers are accused of profiteering, isn't it?

And this is not enough. You not so subtly take us to task over the question, "should any public lands be returned to private ownership"?

Apparently you have become quite forgetful, or really don't care about some of your readers. I reminded you not too long ago that approximately two thirds of the land in the Grygla-Gatzke school district is in public hands. This represents a substantial loss in the tax base and creates a severe tax burden on the private landowner and all residents.

In your position you could do a lot to encourage the state and federal governments to pay their fair share in lieu of taxes, instead of being so desirious that these lands, in their entirety, remain public and that a few of us should carry the burden for the enjoyment of many.

We are aware that DNR isn't satisfied with the status quo. Most DNR officials have a desire to control even more land. You could do yourself as well as us a favor by telling people the simple truth, that DNR is a failure at managing the bulk of the land already under their control to get the most benefit out of these vast acreages for all species of wildlife, and that farmers and at least one school district are deserving of better treatment from DNR, the state and federal governments, and especially the editorial staff of a local paper than we are accustomed to.

To The Editor:

Like most people these days; I am so busy with my own little affairs that it is only by a stroke of luck that I noticed the notice that our township clerk was posting, regarding "the Special Referendum Election", that is being held here in Pennington County, this next Tuesday, October 30.

If I had not read the notice, I may not have noticed your informative Editorial in the Thief River Falls Times a few issues ago, nor the front page article in this past Monday's paper, titled "Rural People Vote on Building Code."

This may not sound very flattering to the reading appeal of your paper, but in these hectic days of Fall when we are trying to get ready for Winter, I'm sure, that many people, like myself, just glance through the paper.

Being allowed to vote in the "Special Referendum Election", is a very important and rare privilege for these days, when so many laws and restrictions are passed right over our heads.

I'm surprised that we still have the right to vote on such an important issue as "Shall the State Building Code be adopted in Pennington County"?

I am hoping that people will turn out in droves to vote "no" as I do not think that we need any more government control of our life in our rural communities.

These building codes may be alright or even necessary in cities, but most of the people, who live outside of cities, I think, made that choice, because they wanted to avoid the many cumbersome restrictions of city life.

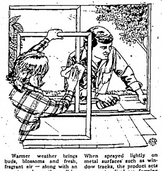
I do not think that we rural people should have to get some government agency's permission to be able to build a porch or entry on our house, or be told what size septic tank we have to install or that if we build a home, that it has to compare in size and cost, etc. to neighboring homes or to homes in other parts of the state, etc. etc. There seems to be no end to the rules that are set up, once some government agency takes over.

Some of the people that I have talked to say "A building code in our area? Why, that's absolutely ridiculous, they'll never pass that!" but, I say, that in many instances it is just such an attitude that helps some ridiculous law get voted in. Those that are against the law or rule just don't go and vote.

I am hoping that the people of rural Pennington County will vote this rule or code down with a resounding "no."

Sincerely,
Mrs. L. Carpenter

Invite Warmer Weather Inside



Warmer weather brings buds, blossoms and fresh, fragrant air — along with an urge to embrace them all by throwing open the windows.

It's a simple pleasure, but one that can pose a problem: a winter of disuse can leave metal-frame sliding windows and doors in disrepair.

If a window or door is jammed shut or is difficult to slide in its track, remove loose dirt and debris, then spray the metal track and frame with WD-40. The non-oily product will penetrate rust and corrosion, lubricate the metal and keep the window or door sliding smoothly.

Originally developed to halt corrosion in the Atlas missile, WD-40 now has become the handyman's helper. When sprayed lightly on metal surfaces such as window tracks, the product acts as a water-displacer, forming a non-sticky seal to guard against moisture damage.

After treating tracks and frames, turn your attention to screens. Repair any rips or tears — you want to let in fresh air, not bugs — then hose screens down to remove accumulated dust and dirt. Allow them to dry in a sunny spot.

If window panes are particularly dirty, sponge them off with warm, soapy water, then rinse and dry. Follow up with a window cleaner to remove streaks.

Finally, replace screens, open your windows wide — and enjoy your sparkling springtime view!

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q - An acquaintance was notified by the Veterans Administration that he is eligible for service-disabled insurance. Can I get it too?

A - Veterans separated from the service on or after April 25, 1951, who have been granted any service-connected disability, are eligible if they are otherwise in good health. Disabled veterans must file for this insurance within one year from the date the VA notifies them of their service-connected disability.

Q - My father was an honorably-discharged wartime veteran. When he died a year ago, we were not aware of his eligibility for Veterans Administration burial benefits. Can we still apply for those benefits?

A - A claim for burial benefits must be filed within two years following a veteran's permanent burial or cremation. Contact your nearest VA regional office for assistance.

Q - My deceased husband was a veteran, and I was in the Army too. Why can't I get a Veterans Administration pension as his survivor and also as a veteran in my own right?

A - Payment of pension to the same person as a veteran and surviving spouse is prohibited under Public Law 95-588.

Q — I am the widow of a Korean-conflict veteran and have one dependent child. Our combined annual income is $1,916. Am I eligible for a widow's pension under the new improved law?

A -- You may be entitled to a widow's pension since your income is below the 13,425 limit for a widow with one dependent child. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office for information and assistance.

Q - Due to a financial emergency, I am thinking about surrendering my National Service Life Insurance policy. I am hesitant to do this because I have had this policy since World War II. Is there an alternative available to me?

A - You may may consider the option of applying for a maximum policy loan on your permanent plan policy. You can receive 94 per cent of the policy's cash value at five per cent interest after the policy has been in force at least one year. This would permit you to repay the loan and keep your insurance in force.

Q - Does the Veterans Administration recognize "common law" marriage.

A - The VA will recognize "common law" marriage if the state in which the parties reside does. Proof of the "common law" marriage must be established to VA satisfaction to qualify for benefits. Contact your nearest VA regional office for assistance.

Q: My former wife is still paying premiums on my GI insurance policy. Must I still keep her as beneficiary or may I name my present wife as beneficiary?

A: You may name your present wife as beneficiary. Although insurance may be kept in force with premiums paid by a third party, the insured retains all rights under the contract. They include changing beneficiaries without knowledge or consent of a prior beneficiary.

Q: How soon after discharge from service must a veteran apply for a GI home loan?

A: There is no time limit. All veterans who were ever eligible for this program are still eligible.

Q: How long can a veteran go to school under the GI Bill?

A: The maximum is 45 months of full-time attendance. This amount is earned with 18 months or more of military service.

Q — I have a service-connected disability and was discharged prior to World War II. Does service during this period qualify me for a automobile grant from the Veterans Administration?

A — The VA automobile grant is available to veterans who are entitled to VA compensation for loss or loss of use of a hand or foot, or who are blind, regardless of the period of service.

Cuppot Is "Sioux-por" Goalie at UND

Name of Marchell Cuppett, a sophomore goalie from Thief River Falls, continues to dominate the University of North Dakota news releases concerning the UND women's field hockey team.

Cuppett starred last week as the Sioux defeated Bemidji State University 3-1, snapping a 12-game UND losing streak at the hands of the perennially strong Beavers who brought a sparkling 23-3 record into the Thursday afternoon contest. The Sioux were out-shot 20-7, but Cuppett stopped 19 of the Bemidji shots to drop her goals-against average to a season-low 1.54 (37 goals in 24 games).

Two days earlier Cuppett recorded her eighth shutout of the season in a 4-0 victory over Concordia. The wins over the Cobbers and Beavers improved the Sioux season record to 11-13 going into today's (Wednesday) final regular season game against Moorhead State.

"We are very pleased with our performance last week," said North Dakota coach Margaret Peterson. "The players knew about Bemidji's winning streak against us and wanted a victory very much. We are young, but are maturing with every game. Cuppett had another great week. Looking back at the season results, Marchell has allowed just seven goals in her last seven games; three of those were against Wisconsin-Stevens Point in the Carleton invitational at Northfield October 12-13.

North Dakota will host a Region VI AIAW Sub Region tournament this weekend at the Sioux athletic complex near Sixth ave. No. in Grand Forks. Emporia State (Kansas), University of Northern Iowa, South Dakota State and North Dakota will play for the right to compete in the Region VI AIAW championship November 8-10 in Warrensburg, Missouri. Bemidji is guaranteed a berth in the Region VI championships.

Sub Region pairings will find North Dakota opening against Northern Iowa Friday at 1:30 p.m., with Emporia State playing South Dakota State at 3. On Saturday, its UND vs. Emporia at 10 a.m.; UNI vs. SDSU at 11:30; UND vs. SDSU at 1:30; and Emporia vs. UNI at 3. Top two teams, record-wise, will move on to Warrensburg.

Miscellaneous

+Galen Nagle, a transfer student from Baudette, is expected to combine with incumbent Jim Wizner to give the Bemidji high school hockey team a top one-two goalie combination this winter.

+Terry Babler, an outstanding athlete at Borup high school and the target of recruiters from the NIC, MIAC, NDCAC and MJCAA, suffered a knee injury last week and will be lost to the Moorhead State University football team for the rest of the 1979 season. Babler, recruited by Northland community college football coach Irv Smith, saw limited action with the Dragons as a freshman this fall, carrying the ball 14 times for 63 yards.

+Cliff Morlan of the Bemidji Pioneer, looking ahead to the various post-season all-state football teams that will be announced at the end of the 1979 high school season, notes, "Bemidji must have at least a dozen quality players that could make any team in the state."

Northmen Tackle Nationally Ranked Royals

MJCAA Northern Division

	w	l
Golden Valley Lutheran	7	0
Mesabi	4	2
Crookston	4	2
Itasca	3	3
Vermilion	3	3
Hibbing	3	3
Northland	2	4
Brainerd	2	5
Fergus Falls	0	6

Despite a 2-5 record, which includes a current three-game losing streak, enthusiasm isn't lacking for members of the Northland community college football team heading into the final two weeks of the 1979 season. That's because the challenges offered by nationally ranked Golden Valley Lutheran and area rival Crookston provides enough incentive to carry the Northmen through the final stages of a lame-duck season.

Undefeated Golden Valley Lutheran, ranked fifth in the latest national junior college power poll, will visit Thief River Falls Saturday, with the Northmen ending the year at Crookston a week later. Both games start at 1:30 p.m.

"We're playing for pride now," admitted Northland coach Irv Smith. "It's going to be a great test of our character. But we're fired up. We're really looking forward to playing Golden Valley, and Crookston, of course, is our big rival. I'm kind of anxious to see how we'll do."

Golden Valley Lutheran already has the Northern Division title tucked away. The 7-0 Royals, who have beaten Brainerd 42-0, Crookston 28-0, Mesabi 28-0, Vermilion 28-15, Hibbing 37-20, Fergus Falls 41-0 and Itasca 28-13 last week, will appear in the November 11 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state playoff game at Macalester against the Southern Division champion. Rochester, Inver Hills and Normandale are all in the Southern Division title picture at this point.

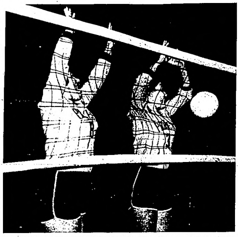
"They're the best team we've faced all year by far," said Smith of Golden Valley Lutheran. "They are really tough."

Quarterback Scott Sheridan and tight end Dan (Bomber) Johnson healine the Golden Valley Lutheran attack. The 6'3", 255-pound Johnson is projected as a future major college performer and Sheridan, says Smith, "is really a fine quarterback. He doesn't miss many open receivers."

Northland is an obvious underdog going into its final home appearance of the year, but Smith hasn't conceded the game yet. "We're capable of beating them," he said, "but we can't play like we have been (during the mistake-filled current losing streak that threatens to become a winless October for the Northmen who were 2-2 at the end of September). They're going to put some points on the board, no doubt about it. It's just a matter of how many, and if we can match it. I think if we play somewhere near our potential we can beat them."

Things will be made more difficult for the Northmen this week when three starters — linebacker Albert Padron, defensive back Luis Delahoz and offensive tackle Rafael Milian — will miss the game because of MJCAA rules after being ejected from an Oct. 13 contest at Brainerd. Todd Tangen (Fosston) will fill in for Padron, Zayne Poitier (Miami, Fla.) will step in for Delahoz and Chris Kneen (White Bear Lake) will move from tight end to tackle for Milian, with Alan Johnson (McIntosh) starting at tight end.

In other Northern Division matches this week, Fergus Falls will be at Mesabi, Hibbing at Vermilion and Crookston at Itasca. Hibbing pulled off a surprise last week with a 7-3 upset of Mesabi, while Crookston knocked off Fergus Falls 21-9 and Vermilion edged Brainerd 13-12. Northland lost a 29-12 game at Bismarck.



THIEF RIVER FALLS teammates Marlys Huot (8) and Stacy Ehrenstrom went up to block a Crookston shot, but the ball went into the net instead during Tuesday's volleyball match played in the Lincoln high school gym. The Pirates spoiled parent's night for the Prowlers by winning 18-15, 14-18, 18-13.

NWAC Football Schedule Ends With Friday Twinbill

Final 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference high school football games will be played Friday when already-crowned NWAC champion Crookston will be at Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls visits East Grand Forks.

Defending NWAC champion Bemidji, dethroned by Crookston 15-6 last week, will complete a disappointing season Thursday with a tough nonconference test at Grand Rapids. The highly regarded Lumberjacks are unbeaten against five nonconference foes, but picked up two surprising losses in NWAC play.

East Grand Forks eliminated Thief River Falls from the Northwest Athletic Conference race last week with a final-minute 20-18 victory. Fergus Falls, long ago ousted from the NWAC race, was idle last week.

+ Dale Leonard of Bemidji was a two-touchdown lead in the NWAC scoring race with 30 points. Jeff Ulrich and John Dillon of Thief River Falls, along with Steve Johnson of Crookston, are within striking range with 18 points apiece. Leonard is a runaway leader in the overall scoring figures with 78 points, 24 more than Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks.

Northwest Conference

	NWAC		All
Crookston	3	0	5	3
Bemidji	2	2	6	2
East Grand Forks	1	2	5	3
Fergus Falls	1	2	3	4
Thief River Falls	1	2	3	5

+ Leonard tops the NWAC rushing charts with 523 yards. Teammate Nelson Rotto has 307 and Brent Weiss of Crookston had 249. In all games, Lenard has rushed for 927 yards, Rotto 631 and Weiss 602.

+ Ulrich leads the NWAC in passing yardage, completing 12 of 22 attempts for 199 yards. Phil Hatchner of Fergus Falls is 8-for-39 for 177 yards. In all games, Hatchner is 19-for-84 for 365 yards and Ulrich is 18-for-48 for 357 yards.

+ Dillon is the top NWAC receiver with seven catches for 153 yards. Swanberg has an impressive 104 yards on just three catches, with Rob Egersdorf of Bemidji matching Dillon's seven catches, for 94 yards. In all games, Egersdorf has caught 10 passes for 122 yards, with Dillon, Alan Stricker of Fergus Falls and Bill Jury of Thief River Falls all coming up with seven receptions.

+ Tom Bjorkman of Thief River Falls leads the NWAC with a 36-yard average on six punts. Darwin Boe of Fergus Falls is the overall leader with 22 punts averaging 32.8 yards, a shade better than Bjorkman's 32.5-yard average on 28 punts.

+ Craig Erhart leads the league in punt return yardage, returning six kicks for 57 yards. Overall, Leonard has returned eight punts for 145 yards.

+ Erhart also heads the NWAC kickoff return charts with 142 yards on seven returns. Swanberg is the overall leader with 379 yards on 14 returns.

+ Leonard continues to lead the NWAC total offense figures with 1,283 yards on rushing, passing, receiving and kick returns. Erhart and Jury each have 879 yards and Swanberg has 866.

Prowlers Lose To Pirates 2-1

Seventy minutes of close volleyball didn't satisfy Lincoln high school coach Sharon Stauss Tuesday because of the rash of mistakes she saw in the Prowlers' 2-1 loss to Crookston.

"It was a disappointing game right at the end of the season when we should be coming into our own," said Stauss. "We made a lot of mistakes; things that happened at the beginning of the season that shouldn't be happening now."

Crookston began with a 6-0 first game lead and carried most of the play en route to an 18-15 match-opening win. The Prowlers managed to come back for a 10-10 tie and trailed just 16-15 late in the game, but could never gain control.

A 15-10 Thief River Falls lead was the biggest spread in the second game won by the Prowlers 18-14. Play at the net featured the power of Thief River Falls spikers Stacy Ehrenstrom and LeAnn Paetznick, along with the finesse of Marlys Huot who would simply tap the ball by two defenders instead of slamming the thing.

Crookston took the match with an 18-13 third game decision. The Prowlers led 6-4 but couldn't handle the serves of Brenda Rongen who staked the Pirates to a 14-6 cushion before she left the line. Thief River Falls battled back to 15-11, but Crookston enlarged the lead to 17-11 and it was only a matter of time before the Pirates got that 18th point.

"You can't play comeback volleyball," noted Stauss. "Crookston had us playing defense all night, and our defense wasn't very good. We let a lot of balls drop on us."

The loss in the final Thief River Falls home appearance of the year lowered the Prowlers' record to 8-7. Thief River Falls completes its schedule Thursday with a 7:30 p.m. match at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls junior varsity improved its record to 8-5 with an 18-13, 18-4 victory over Crookston.

Sophomores Complete 6-0 1979 Season

Lincoln high school sophomore football team completed an undefeated 1979 season Monday with a 24-8 win at Bemidji.

Thief River Falls led only 6-0 at halftime on a four-yard Tom Ose touchdown run in the first quarter. But the visitors opened up an 18-0 third quarter lead on a pair of long touchdown strikes as Ose went 50 yards and Dan Odegaard covered 60 yards.

It became 24-0 when middle linebacker Rob Jerstad picked a fumble out of mid-air after a tackle by defensive end Rod Nichols and rambled 40 yards for a touchdown.

Bemidji, with only a 6-0 loss to Grand Rapids marring a 6-1 record coming into the game, averted a shutout in the final three minutes.

Thief River Falls sophomores finished the year with a 6-0 record, beating Grand Forks Red River 30-8 and 24-10, East Grand Forks 18-2, Crookston 26-16, Grand Forks Central 26-6 and Bemidji 24-8.

Lincoln junior varsity finished its limited season earlier this month with a 0-3 record, losing to Moorhead 29-8, Crookston 31-0 and Grand Forks Central 14-12.

Prowlers End Season By Playing Rival Pirates

Up until the middle of the last week it looked for the world like a season-ending football clash between long-time athletic rivals Thief River Falls and Crookston would be a Northwest Athletic Conference championship showdown. But the Prowlers, after making headlines with a 22-21 upset victory over defending NWAC champion Bemidji, followed that with back-to-back conference losses at Fergus Falls 28-22 and East Grand Forks 20-18 to bow out of the pennant race, won Friday by Crookston with a throughly decisive 15-6 victory over the Lumberjacks.

Now Friday's 7:30 p.m. game on the Thief River Falls athletic field lacks that ticket-selling championship tag and simply boils down to another in the long line of grudge matches involving the Prowlers and Pirates. It'll close out the year for the 3-5 Prowlers, but the 5-3 Pirates, by virute of their NWAC title, will have their season extended into the Class A state playoffs where they'll face either Two Harbors of the Seaway Conference or Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton or Park Rapids of the Mid-State Conference Sat., Nov. 3. Thief River Falls needed a win over either Fergus Falls or East Grand Forks to be in position to take the NWAC crown with a victory over Crookston.

"It's still hard to believe we could lose to both Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks," reflected Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens, still smarting from Wednesday's mid-week loss at East Grand Forks. "We were certainly capable of beating them both. I'm not so sure that either one beat us; we beat ourselves," he said in reference to mistake-ridden performances by the Prowlers who fumbled 12 times in those two games, losing nine of them.

"It was especially hard to believe Wednesday," said Jurgens about the final minute loss to the Green Wave who converted a pair of fourth-and-eight passes in the closing moments to score the game-winning touchdown with just 22 seconds remaining. "We were so close. It was one of the most difficult things we've had to accept for a long time."

Will last week's title-deciding turn of events take anything awy from this week's contest? "I don't think we'll know that until Friday night," answered Jurgens. "I hope not. Everytime you go out on the field you want to do the best you can. It would be worth something to us to beat both Bemidji and Crookston, and we're certainly going to attempt to do it."

Jurgens doesn't think Crookston will have a letdown problem even with a title guarantee. "I'm sure they don't want to enter the playoffs with a loss," he said. "They have the momentum, and I'm sure they want to keep it going."

Crookston started the year in shaky fashion, squeeking out a 14-12 overtime win over West Fargo and losing to Grand Forks Central 8-7. But the Pirates responded with wins over Park Rapids 14-7, Fergus Falls 26-7, East Grand Forks 22-6 and Bemidji 15-6 while losing only to Class AA Cloquet 15-0 and No. 2 ranked Class A power St. Peter 20-15 on the road.

Jurgens watched the Pirates handle Bemidji Friday, and he was impressed.

"They had complete control. They really played well," reported Jurgens. "We knew they had some pretty good backs, but their line was a surprise. They dominated Bemidji on the line both offensively and defensively. Their line looked really good."

That line opens holes for a flock of Crookston runningbacks, including Brent Weiss who has rushed for 602 yards, Mark Berg 341, Steve Johnson 323 and Jerry Persson 209. In addition, quarterback Tim Knotek showed plenty of running ability with a 76-yard night on the option against Bemidji.

"We had two big games," mentioned Jurgens. "We didn't respond; didn't do the things that have to be done to win. The way we let things slip away from us was a big disappointment. We feel we should be playing for the conference championship Friday. We just hope we can go out and play like that."

Ness Leads Middle River Past Hornets 52-12 For 7-2 Finish

DelRay Ness scored three touchdowns, passed for two more and added a pair of two-point conversions Tuesday to lead Middle River to a season-ending 52-12 North Tri County Conference football win over Clearbrook.

The victory capped a strong 7-2 season for the Skippers who harbored conference championships hopes until they dropped a 26-6 game at Oklee last week. Only other setback was a season-opening 22-6 defeat at the hands of Gonvick.

"We did things considerably better than last week," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby.

Ness and Monty Peterson, the only senior in the Middle River starting line-up, produced most of the Skippers' offense yesterday. Of the Skippers' 229 yards rushing, Peterson and Ness had 209 yards as Peterson gained 140 yards on 13 carries and Ness had 69 yards on just six carries. Peterson added 12 points (one touchdown and three two-point conversions) to the 34 points Ness produced for 46 of the 52 Middle River points.

It was a 6-6 ball game for one quarter, but Ness scored on runs of 43 and 12 yards in the second quarter and added a half-ending 25-yard touchdown pass to Mike Peterson to open up a 30-6 spread at intermission.

"We had a pretty good season except for that game at Oklee," mentioned Sparby whose youthful 1979 line-up should put the Skippers in solid position to make a run for the 1980 North Tri County Conference title. After losing to Gonvick, Middle River rattled off six straight wins over Goodridge 40-16, Plummer 44-14, Erskine 56-6, Mentor 24-14, McIntosh-Winger 20-14 and Grygla 28-6 before losing to Oklee.

"We would have been right in it (title picture) this year except for that second half against Oklee," repeated Sparby. A win there would have enabled the Skippers to share the North Tri County title with Gonvick and McIntosh-Winger since Middle River beat McIntosh-Winger and the Scots, in turn, ended Gonvick's unbeaten status 14-8 in Tuesday's title showdown.

McIntosh-Winger will host Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy Friday in a qualifying game for the 1979 nine-man state football playoffs. The winner will move into the state quarterfinals against the Agassiz Valley Conference representative, either North titlist Mount St. Benedict or South winner Lake Park. Those two will play Friday at Lake Park.

Grygla 14

Three short touchdown runs by Mike Kirkpatrick helped Oklee double Grygla 28-14 Tuesday as the two teams closed out the 1979 North Tri County Conference football season at Oklee.

The Bobcats started strong, opening up a 22-0 halftime lead as Kirkpatrick went in from the two and three-yard lines and quarterback Richard Bronken scored from one yard out.

"We came out right away and played well," reported Oklee coach Dale Svaren.

Oklee finished with 261 yards on offense, including 202 yards on the ground where John Dulka collected 80 yards and Kirkpatrick had 66.

The Bobcats finished the year with a 6-3 record. "I'll take it," said Svaren about the record, "but I was kind of expecting a little more at the start of the year."

Grygla ended 2-7.

Plummer 14
Erskine 6

Brad Rosten and Blair Gustafson combined on an 11-yard screen pass with just 28 seconds remaining Tuesday that produced the winning points in a 14-6 Plummer victory over Erskine.

The win put the finishing touch on a strong second half season by the Cardinals who ended the year with three straight wins and took four of their last five games after starting the fall with four losses.

"I was really proud of the kids this year," said Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "We were 0-4 and just getting hammered, but they never quit. They turned September around."

Defensive back Kevin Gerardy, who missed three games because of an ankle injury, was instrumental in Tuesday's win as he came up with five tackles and two pass interceptions — the second one setting up the game-winning touchdown.

A key pass interference call against Erskine set Plummer up at the Comets' 17-yard line in the final moments. Alan Mattison carried the ball to the 11 and Rosten threw an incompletion before hooking up with Gustafson to break a 6-6 tie.

"We were able to move the ball on the ground," noted Brantl, "but we were our own worst enemy. Penalties hurt us."

Gustafson finished with an even 100 yards on the ground, with Mattison adding 68. Rosten was 6-for-14 passing for 102 yards.

Tackle David Haugen led the Plummer defensive efforts with nine unassisted tackles.

Defensively, nose guard Scott Peters recovered a fumble, blocked a punt and was in on 18 tackles. Defensive tackle Dan Engen was credited with 19 tackles and had a fumble recovery while defensive end Nate Stokke had 12 tackles and a fumble recovery.

State Football Playoff Field Will Be Determined This Week

This will be the final week of action for most of Minnesota's 498 high school football teams, but for 98 of those squads there is still hope of garnering one of the 40 spots in the five classes — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — of the eighth annual state football playoffs which will take place during the month of November.

Those 40 cherished positions will be determined when conference champions and at-large representatives are determined as a result of winning state play-down qualifying games, reports Larry Larson, director of information and publications of the Minnesota State High School League.

Through eight weeks of play nine high school's are certain of state playoff berths, and the other 31 spots will be determined either this week or next week after playing in contests that will be vital in quest of those pre-season state playoff dreams.

Among those nine schools who have already qualified for state playoff berths are five schools in Class AA. They include Cambridge, Duluth Denfeld, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Richfield and Stillwater. Others garnering early positions in the state playoffs were Apple Valley and Crookston of Class A, Sandstone of Class C and Morton of the nine-man division.

Following is a run-down on each of the five classifications as play headed into the ninth and final regular season week:

Class AA

There are three of the eight spots in this year's state playoffs pairing still undecided. Cambridge was the first to qualify for the state playoffs and they were joined this past week by Minneapolis, Roosevelt, Stillwater, Duluth Denfeld and Richfield. This week key games to determine berths in the state playoffs include the Osseo — Armstrong outing Friday. St. Paul Johnson is another team that can clinch a spot with a win over Hill-Murray tonight (Wednesday). The final spot could go to Rochester John Marshall, if they won at Red Wing Tuesday.

Class A

Crookston joined Apple Valley this past week in the field of eight Class A teams that will play in this year's state playoffs. All of the six other spots will not be known until October 30 when final qualifying games are played, but two more teams will be known this week as games being played in the Central Gopher and Tri-Metro Conferences will decide their representatives. One game — Paynesville at Albany Friday, will decide the Central Gopher title. Both teams are unbeaten through their first eight games and the contest will be one of the state's top attractions this week.

Class B

None of the eight spots are known for the state playoffs field in Class B. There will be eight qualifying games on Tues., Oct. 30, to determine the Class B state playoff field. One game that deserves mention this week is an outing in Mahnomen Thursday when two unbeatens — Fertile-Beltrami and Mahnomen — decide the Prairie Conference championship.

Class C

First of the eight to qualify for state playoffs in Class C is unbeaten Sandstone, now awaiting its first round foe — either Battle Lake or Warroad. Like in Class B, the final field of eight spots for the state playoffs will not be known until Tues., Oct. 30.

Nine-Man

First to gain the field of eight in the nine-man state playoff field was Morton, the Big Seven Conference champion. They will meet either Chokio-Alberta, Starbuck, Graceville or Underwood, who are involved in one of many qualifying games this and next week. Among the contenders for playoff spots in this division is Alden-Conger, last year's state Class C champion.

Motorists Told To Watch For Deer In Fall

Motorists on Minnesota highways were told to be on the lookout for deer in order to avoid serious accidents and wasteful loss of valuable wildlife.

Department of Natural Resources noted that the fall months are usually the time when the number of deer-vehicle collisions reach their peak.

LeRoy Rutske, big game specialist, said; buck deer become more active during the fall with the onset of the mating season and are more apt to wander into the path of a motor vehicle.

The animals are particularly active during the hours of darkness and because of their coloration are difficult to see as they dart into the road from a ditch or adjacent forested area.

Last year, said Rutske, a total of 7,132 deer were killed on Minnesota roads and highways. He said the figure has been running between five and six thousand deer annually for the past several years.

"Many thousands of dollars in property damage have resulted from these deer-vehicle collisions," he said, "as well as serious injury."

He added that many of the accidents could be avoided if motorists would be conscious of the danger and keep a sharp eye out on the roadside.

He noted that deer-vehicle collisions are not confined to forested areas.

A coelacanth, a fish that was thought to be extinct for 60 million years, was caught off the coast of South Africa in 1939. A comparison with fossils showed that it had not changed at all during that time, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

"Do they really think I'd sit here and let my own family eat this if there were any good evidence that nitrites are dangerous to their health?" a Minnesota hog farmer asked me awhile ago as we sat in his kitchen with the breakfast bacon sizzling on the stove.

Unfortunately, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has disregarded the common sense wish of this farmer, and thousands of others like him, to have good, solid evidence in hand that nitrites are dangerous before announcing that the meat preservative should be banned.

The FDA has also failed to explore the possible health danger if nitrites were eliminated as a preservative.

Looking into the FDA's pronouncement — which threatens our modern pork industry and has, perhaps unduly, alarmed millions of consumers — here's what my Senate agriculture committee learned about the harum-scarum manner in which the agency reached its decision:

—An initial study conducted by Dr. Paul Newberne of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology concluded that nitrites cause malignant tumors in rats when fed to them in large doses.

—Before that study had even been reviewed and verified by others in the scientific community, the FDA was already sounding the alarm. Regulations pended, they announced, to ban the use of nitrites.

—Meanwhile, due to Congressional concern about the Newberne study, several of their own committees began independent hearings. Testimony at those hearings suggested that the first study was questionable and its conclusions unverifiable.

—As a result, the FDA did contract with an independent scientific group to review the Newberne study. A few weeks ago, that group issued an interim progress report which casts even more doubt on the conclusions of the original study.

Yet, even as the review goes on, the FDA persists in its stance against nitrite use.

What this persistance suggests is dismaying — evidently, the agency made up its mind many moons ago and isn't about to open up that mind to any evidence contrary to its pre-conceived notion.

I have joined with the other members on my Senate agriculture committee in a letter to Patricia Harris, head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of which the FDA is a part.

We urged her to issue a public announcement that would end the confusion generated by previous FDA proclamations on nitrites.

We also urged her to clean up the agency's scientific review processes so that future decisions are based on evidence garnered from all available sources rather than on unverified studies that seem merely to back up a position the FDA has already taken.

Otherwise, the agency may find itself as ignored and discredited as the little boy in the fairy tale who cried "Wolf" once too often and without good cause.

The Consumer Price Index, issued by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, is the principal source of information concerning trends in consumer prices in the United States.

51-Year Family Business, Kelly Hardware Sold

Kelly's Our Own hardware store, one of the oldest businesses in the area from the standpoint of continuous family ownership, is passing out of that ownership officially November 1. New owners of the business will be Clifton Johnson and his wife Patsy.

Harry Kelly started the business in 1929 when he purchased an existing hardware store on the corner of Main avenue and Third street in Thief River Falls. Harold (Bud) Kelly, worked in his father's store while a student at Lincoln high school and assumed operation in 1946 after returning from military service.

Since 1948 the store has been operated as an Our Own hardware store and Bud has been assisted by his wife, Darlene, who has assumed much of the bookkeeping duties. Store location has always been at Third and Main and two major remodelings have been done in the 51 years of business, the last about 10 years ago.

In addition to operating the business, Kelly has been a president of the chamber of commerce, chef de gare of the 40 et 8 voiture, member of the board at St. Bernard's Catholic church, served on the advertising panel of Our Own hardware company and is presently a member of the board of trustees of Northwestern hospital services.

Clifton Johnson is a life-long resident of the rural Thief River Falls area. He was involved in the early development of the Steiger tractor, served as production manager for the Hydra-Mac company here and for the past five years has been vice president and general manager of Toreq, Inc. He resigned from that position this summer.

Name of the store will be changed to Johnson Hardware for business purposes and a new sign will be placed on the store late this year. Clifton said he intends to continue carrying most of the same top lines of quality hardware products for which the store has earned its reputation. In addition he will add welding equipment, a parts supply department for McCulloch chain saws, farm generators and expand the sporting goods department to include guns and reloading supplies.

Johnson has been active in the local rifle club for a number of years and has served as board chairman of Black River Lutheran church. He operated the Mobil station in Thief River Falls for two years several years ago.

Kelly will continue in the store for an indefinite period and George Thorson will also remain in his present capacity with the business, Johnson said. The store will be closed October 29, 30 and 31 for inventory and will open November 1 under new ownership.

Making Family Life More Fun

TODAY—NOT MANANA!

The glut of yes, but's is what keeps most people in the same old ruts. So make a commitment to fun—start mapping out the route to what you want!

Take up a new activity together. Tennis, jogging, roller-skating, disco-dancing are accessible and don't require huge investments. And stick to it! The more you put into it, the more you get out of it.

Start planning the vacation of your dreams. Perhaps you can't swing it this year—or even next. But if you don't put yourself in gear to making it happen—it might not!

Eliminate the nuisances that gnaw at you. The front door sticks? Fix it, already. Visiting the in-laws every Sunday is a chore? Halve the trips.

Try out new ways of doing old things. A motorcycle is a fun way of getting where you have to go—and want to be! And it's efficient. The fuel crunch packs less punch when you're getting up to 100 miles to the gallon on a Suzuki bike. And even large models, like the "gas stingy" GS 1000N, deliver 50 miles to the gallon.

Your family may get more out of togetherness if you get into more interesting activities.

Learn to do—or do better something that fascinates you. Investment opportunities, astrology, quantum physics, crewel embroidery: the variety of courses you can find might amaze you. At the very least—get the catalogues into your hands.

Spend more time with the people you care about! Plan a party, a picnic, a softball game, or even a quilting bee!

And, remember, a journey of 1,000 miles (as well as the road out of the rut) begins with a single step.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband had a malignant lymphoma removed from his abdomen a year ago. The last time he went to his doctor for a check-up, the doctor said he wanted to do a C.T. Scan of his abdomen to see if the tumor had recurred. Could you explain what a C.T. Scan is, what it does and how it is different from an X-ray?

Evelyn B.

Dear Evelyn B:

The C.T. Scan, or Computerized Transaxial Tomography, is actually a more technologically sophisticated form of X-ray. Each image, or picture taken by a C.T. Scanner is a composite of more than 300,000 individual X-ray beams passed through the body at as many different angles. A computer collects the image messages from the beams and compiles a picture which appears on a television-like viewing screen for immediate evaluation by the doctor. It is also photographed for permanent record.

Although many thousands of X-rays are taken during each examination, the level of radiation to which the body is exposed is relatively low, and only those portions of the body which the doctor wishes to examine are exposed to radiation.

Another unique feature of the C.T. Scan is the type of picture it takes. The doctor sees what appears to be a horizontal slice of a portion of the head or abdomen. Depending upon the type and extent of his examination, he may wish to look at several consecutive "slices" of varying thicknesses. A series of continuous pictures will show the doctor the shapes and positions of the internal organs and will give him a more complete picture than even multiple conventional flat X-rays. A C.T. Scan can often enable the physician to accurately pinpoint an abnormality for later surgery or radiation therapy.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My 82-year-old father just had a polyp "snipped" from his colon which turned out to be cancerous. The entire procedure was done in his doctor's office, and surprisingly no further surgery or treatment is recommended. How could it be so simple? I thought he would have to have surgery. Are most polyps cancerous? How are the doctors able to remove the polyp without surgery? Is this the normal procedure for treating a cancerous colon polyp?

A Daughter

Dear Daughter:

Colon polyps are small growths attached by a slender stalk to the inside of the intestines. Most often, polyps are benign and cause no problems. Occasionally, however, polyps can become cancerous and are the beginning of colon cancer.

Doctors can locate polyps in the rectum and in the colon with the help of special instruments — the proctosigmoidscope and the colonoscope. These slender, lighted tubes are inserted into the rectum and colon to check for any abnormalities. When something is found, such as a polyp, the doctor can remove it or take a small sample with the help of an attachment to the instrument. These tissue samples then are sent to the laboratory for evaluation with a microscope.

If the laboratory reports that the polyp is benign or has only minimal signs of cancerous changes on its surface, then no further treatment or surgery is recommended. Removing the polyp has been enough. This must have been the case with your father.

In other circumstances when cancer is found deep within the polyp or when the cancer has spread to the wall of the intestine, then surgery is required for more definitive treatment.

Your father should have periodic examinations after this to ensure that the colon polyps don't recur. If more polyps do develop, they should be removed. It's fortunate in this case that the polyp was found early when the cancer could be easily treated and cured.

MSU Sets New Record In Fall Enrollment

Enrollment at Moorhead state university will top 7,200 this fall, a new record for the school, according to university registrar Don Engberg.

Preliminary totals after the 10th day of classes show 5,510 day students attending Moorhead state, about 3.1 per cent (or 166 students) more than last year at this time. Another 1,700 evening and off-campus part-time students are expected to enroll later in the quarter.

It is the fifth consecutive year of enrollment increase at the university, Engberg said, amounting to about a 20 per cent overall rise in the student population since 1974—up nearly 1,000 students.

Engberg said that more than a quarter of all students at Moorhead state are North Dakota residents attending under the reciprocal tuition agreement between the two states. In the last five years the number of North Dakota students attending Moorhead state under reciprocity has jumped from 500 to 1,500.

Moorhead state has also shown a 30 per cent increase in women students, up from 2,300 to 3,000 in those same five years, according to 10th day figures.

And part-time students—including evening and off-campus—have doubled in this decade, from 700 in 1970 to over 1,400 expected this year. Preliminary totals also show 1,290 in the Moorhead state freshman class, surpassing last year's class by 100 students and setting another record.

This is the second year in a row that enrollment at Moorhead state has overtaken the previous record of 5,310 students set on the 10th day of classes in 1970. University watched enrollment decline gradually from 1970 to 1974, but from 1975 on, it's been climbing at an average rate of four per cent a year.

Not only are there more students on campus this year, Engberg said, but they're taking more classroom credits. Full time equivalency figure, based on total enrolled credits, has gone up 3.6 per cent over last year.

This year's figures, Engberg said, are very preliminary yet. "The 10th day of class is a convenient time to look at how we're doing at this stage of the game," he said. "But we'll still be making changes on fall statistics into next spring, adding transfer, off-campus and evening students and subtracting dropouts.

"But right now, it looks like Moorhead state has set another record enrollment."

Unemployment Insurance (UI) provides temporary income as partial compensation to unemployed workers. UI programs are administered jointly by the U.S. Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration and the individual states.

Nearly 14 million people received about $13 billion in unemployment insurance benefits in the 1975 fiscal year under regular and special unemployment insurance (UI) programs.

Oil Companies

Are big oil companies a boon or a burden in handling the energy crunch? Check your knowledge of the facts.

Kerryn King

1. In the past six years, the price of crude oil purchased from OPEC nations has increased dramatically. By comparison, the profits per barrel realized by American oil companies have (a) soared (b) remained essentially constant (c) plummeted alarmingly?

2. Forcing our oil companies to split up would (a) render regulatory legislation unnecessary (b) decelerate the search for more energy reserves here and around the world (c) lower taxes?

3. Dismembering the oil companies would give more leverage to (a) the American consumer (b) OPEC countries (c) environmentalists?

ANSWERS: 1. (b) or (c). Surprisingly, the oil companies' profit per barrel has remained essentially constant. The profit on oil imported by the U.S. is not related to the price of the crude oil. Actually, companies' profit per barrel, as percentage of the price per barrel, has decreased dramatically.

2. (b) Weakening the U.S. oil companies would seriously hinder their search for new energy reserves. The U.S. oil companies must be capable of helping America develop greater self-sufficiency in oil and alternate energy sources.

3. (b) Weakening American oil companies would substantially increase U.S. dependence on foreign oil and strengthen the ability of OPEC to set world oil prices.

Answers to these questions have been provided by Kerryn King, Senior Vice President of Texaco Inc.

WE PLOW THE FIELDS

This beautiful harvest hymn by the German poet, Matthias Claudius, is still sung today by millions:

"We plough the fields and scatter
The good seed on the land,
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand."

How simply the words remind us of the partnership between man and God which sustains and enriches life on this earth. That partnership can extend to every need and challenge we face. In all things there are tasks we can fulfill by human effort, and undertakings which cannot succeed without the help of God.

This harvest season join the millions in churches across the land who will be thanking God for our part — and His — in all earthly achievement.

Tax Burden On Minnesotans To Be Reduced

As a result of a 1979 enactment by the Minnesota legislature, Minnesota's individual income tax burden will be reduced by expanding the tax brackets 10.1 per cent. Part of the $700 million legislative tax relief package provided that the income tax is to be indexed for inflation at 85 per cent of the Minneapolis-St. Paul consumer price index (CPI), for the 12-month period ending August, 1979.

Annual CPI figure, announced on September 25 by the bureau of labor statistics, was 11.9 per cent for the Twin Cities area. Eighty-five per cent of this figure results in an inflation adjustment of 10.1 per cent. Reduction in the tax burden will be applied to income earned in 1979 for income tax returns to be filed in 1980.

According to Don Paterick, executive director of the Minnesota taxpayers association, "Indexing of income brackets means that Minnesota taxpayers will no longer be harshly penalized for salary increases which merely keep pace with inflation.

"Minnesota's income tax structure is one of the most steeply graduated in the nation. This means that as your income rises, you move up to higher income brackets with steeper applicable tax rates. Expansion of the brackets will slow this movement thereby reducing the tax burden."

The 1979 State legislature provided additional income tax relief through an increase in personal credits. For 1979 taxes, the amount of tax will decrease by $55 for every dependent — formerly $40. This results in additional relief of $30 for a married couple and $60 for a family of four. In 1980 the credit will rise to $60, and will be indexed in subsequent years.

Paterick stated that Minnesotans should receive a larger refund on their 1979 state income tax returns. "The withholding tables were only reduced for a six month period, and it was estimated that the annual inflation rate would be 8 per cent. Because the adjustment is actually 10.1 per cent for a 12 month period, taxpayers have been over-withheld," he said.

Indexing has an acute effect on the state's revenue accumulation. Interplay of inflation and a progressive income tax structure results in excessive tax collections which have caused large tax surpluses in Minnesota. This interplay has caused net income tax revenues to more than double in the past six years, reaching $1.3 billion in fiscal year 1979.

Minnesota taxpayers association, a nonprofit, nonpartisan research organization, has long advocated the concept of indexing. "The state should not be profiteering from inflation at the taxpayers expense. The 1979 tax relief package was a bi-partisan accomplishment of Governor Quie, the Minnesota Senate, and the Minnesota House of Representatives. The results are commendable," Paterick said.

Are you a leader in knowledge about lead? This quiz can help you tell.

1. The increased use of lead-acid batteries is likely to (a) increase pollution (b) decrease pollution (c) have no effect on pollution?

2. Lead-acid batteries (a) generate energy (b) destroy energy (c) store energy?

3. Compared to 20 years ago, modern lead-acid batteries deliver (a) more hours of work (b) fewer hours of work (c) the same hours of work?

4. The growing trend toward battery-powered, on-the-road vehicles will tend to (a) increase inflation (b) decrease inflation (c) have no effect on inflation?

ANSWERS: 1. (b) Battery-powered trams and other vehicles on streets and highways and in recreational areas help cut down on emissions. 2. (c) Batteries store energy. Large battery banks are currently being studied in our nation's energy program as electrical reservoirs—a means of making the most of electrical utilities' output. 3. (a) Modern battery design gives today's lead-acid batteries more power, and better life at lower cost than ever before. They deliver up to 70 percent more ampere hours of work than the same size units of 1958. The maintenance-free battery, developed with the help of such companies as St. Joe Lead, requires little or no attention over its entire life. 4. (b) The more battery-powered vehicles, the fewer gasoline-powered vehicles and the less oil we have to import. That strikes a blow at inflation.

Deserts On Earth And Mars Similar

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Imagine a place where virtually no rain has fallen for 20 years — a desolate, wind-swept wasteland of dunes, rocks and vast, featureless plains. This is the southwestern desert of Egypt — one of the driest regions on Earth.

It is a place almost as inhospitable to life as the surface of Mars.

In fact, the analogy between the southwestern Egyptian desert and the "red planet" goes even farther than this, says Dr. Farouk El-Baz, research director of the Smithsonian institution's center for earth and planetary studies.

Satellite photographs reveal striking similarities between the southwestern Egyptian desert and Mars. "We see nearly identical features in the two habits that startle, surprise and even confuse the experts," says El-Baz, who has scrutinized literally thousands of satellite photographs. "Alternating bands of dark and light colored streaks, boulder-strewn fields and pitted rocks — these are some of the features common to both. You can hold two photos side by side and ask, 'Is it Earth or is it Mars?'"

The curious similarity between earthly deserts and Mars prompted El-Baz to conduct a field expedition to the southwestern Egyptian desert. "On the trip, we confirmed the enormous power of the wind to create landforms," he says.

"As a result, we feel that the wind has not been given enough credit for shaping landforms both on Earth and Mars. These findings have made us rethink our theories and assumptions about the formation of deserts and even what lies in store for the Earth in the eons to come."

El-Baz feels comfortable making this last statement because all the planets in the solar system were probably formed at the same time and from a common origin. Their differences in chemistry, geology and weather stem from their different masses and varying distances from the Sun. At the Center for Earth and Planetary Studies, the research arm of the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, El-Baz carries out comparative studies of the Earth, its moon and other planets in our solar system and their moons as a way of learning something about our own earthly environment.

What intrigues scientists about Mars is the evidence of flowing rivers in its distance geological past. Yet photos beamed back to Earth by NASA's Mariner 9 and Viking spacecraft showed what is now an essentially windblown, barren desert.

This discovery stimulated new interest among geologists in our own desert environments, which some scientists believe are yearly encroaching on man's fertile soil. Although deserts make up a fifth of the Earth's land masses, very little is known about how they are formed.

Culling through many satellite photos of the Earth's deserts, El-Baz found features similar to Mars in the deserts of the southwestern United States, Argentina, the Gobi Desert and elsewhere. But the greatest concentration of features was found in a remote region of the Sahara near the Egyptian-Sudanese-Libyan border called Gebel Uweinat.

To get a first hand look, El-Baz and 16 other scientists recently trekked 1,500 miles on virtually uncharted, roadless desert using satellite signals to help keep them on track.

They were looking for landforms like those in the photos of Mars. They were not disappointed.

The Viking photographs of Mars showed pitted rock formations that most geologists assumed were vesicular basalt. The pits, it was thought, resulted from small gas pockets formed in the volcanic rock during solidification.

"But in the Egyptian desert, we discovered that the wind alone can carve pits in all types of rock — dense volcanic rocks, coarse grained rocks like granites and in sandstone and quartzite," El-Baz explains.

"The wind actually acts like an air drill, forming a whirlpool around individual grains, and plucks them out of the rock." In addition, sand grains become lodged inside small pits and repeated wind gusts grind these grains into the rock which enlarges the hole.

"So now it is back to the drawing board as far as the martian rocks are concerned. We really can't say for sure how they were formed, but we think these studies show that the wind is playing a very important role," he says.

Far more important is the potential lesson for Earth from these studies.

"Mars has been transformed into a desert," El-Baz says, "and, to our knowledge, without the existence of humans or life forms as we know them on Earth. What happened to change Mars from a wet planet into a barren landscape? We don't know the final answer to this question, but we have to ask ourselves: Could we render our entire planet into a hostile environment like Mars if we aren't careful with what we do to our landscape, or could it happen even without our interference?"

His hope is that comparative studies such as these will help us answer this question. In the process, we may learn more about how deserts form and how we can cope with them.

Weapon Against Sports Violence

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

A federal court has finally made it clear that there is no place for senseless violence in athletics.

Any athlete who fancies himself as a "tough guy" at the high school, college or professional level should be required to read the results of court trials stemming from a disgusting act of violence in professional basketball.

Kermit Washington of the Los Angeles Lakers punched Rudy Houston in the face during a game on Dec. 9, 1977. Tomjanovich, the captain and leading scorer of Houston's, was carried from the floor with a factured skull, fractured jaw, broken nose, other facial injuries and spinal fluid leakage.

A surgeon later compared his task of reassembling the victim's fact to "putting together a jig-saw puzzle."

Tomjanovich sued for damages and was awarded $3,200,000 or about $700,000 more than he had requested. The Rockets sued the Laker ownership for $900,000 in actual damages and $900,000 in punitive damages, claiming a direct financial loss to the organization as a result of the blow. The case was settled out of court, apparently to the satisfaction of the Rockets.

Actual financial figures involved were not revealed, but the message is clear: violence is going to be costly.

"I reacted to the violence of the blow," one juror declared. "That sort of thing does not belong. This game is basketball, not boxingball. There apparently are some players who try to intimidate others in an effort to make up for a lack of talent. It turned me off. I go to see athletes perform, not to fight. I hope the judgment from this jury will do something to end some of the violence."

"I realized that Rudy Tomjanovich could have been killed," another juror said. "I don't think he will ever be as good as he was in the past."

Attorney L.S. Carsley of the Rockets says that the case established a principle — "there is no need for violence in sports, and the law will not ignore any longer intentional injuries or intentional violence."

It is a principle which professional sports and the courts have been slow to recognize. Dollars talk, however, and players who have specialized in borderline violence may be far more impressed with threat of a blow to the wallet than the ideals of sportsmanship and common decency.

There is a certain type of athlete who has been literally getting away with murder for years. There are the late hits in football and the vicious slashes with hockey sticks, a sport which makes all too frequent use of the basically untalented intimidator.

It should not be necessary to hold the threat of court action over athletes to persuade them to compete in a sportsmanlike manner. But we're glad that the principle has been established. It should be reinforced as often as necessary.

Living With Less And Liking It

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

What can you, the American citizen, do to help ease the fuel crunch?

Adapting to long gas lines may prove to be one of the easier energy sacrifices Americans will have to make this summer. President Carter is on the verge of imposing temperature limits for all public buildings and if he sticks to plans to restrict thermostats to 80 degrees in summer and 65 in winter, those short-sleeved suits he saw modeled in Tokyo may look a lot better as the summer wears on and temperatures climb. Already the proposed thermostat controls are drawing fire from commercial establishments fearful that keeping the mercury no lower than 80 degrees this summer will drive customers and cause other inconveniences.

For certain establishments, such as museums, for instance, where higher temperatures could destroy irreplaceable artifacts and art objects, exceptions obviously will have to be made. But for most of the population the time has come to roll up the sleeves, shed any lingering doubts about how real the energy crunch is, and take the conservation plunge.

Instead of wasting energy complaining about government's inability to solved the oil shortage, individuals and families ought to readjust their styles of living to cope with less fuel. That means getting used to working and living in somewhat warmer buildings now and planning ahead for the home-heating-oil shortages predicted for next winter. The rioters and complainers may tend to get headlines and make the evening news, but take a look around. Many people already have recognized that a new car demanding more prudent use of energy and greater conservation is upon us, and they are acting accordingly.

Travelers by the droves are rediscovering the train and the bus. Bicycles are in fashion again. Commuters are forming car pools. Vacationers are limiting car trips to a tank of gasoline, and routine neighborhood treks to the supermarkets or elsewhere are more apt to be on foot now. Many homeowners are installing wood-burning stoves and adding insulation. Local governments in cities as big as New York as well as many smaller ones are finding they can get by with a 10-per cent reduction in electricity usage.

A Quaker group in North Easton, Massachusetts, is building a planned community using solar-heating units, community gardens to reduce trips to the food store, car pools, and other energy-saving innovations. A professor at San Diego State University has built an air-cooled home in the desert that makes use of ancient building techniques picked up from the Navajo Indians.

The idea, of course, is that a little temperance can go a long way. For "land of plenty" the unaccustomed need to conserve energy need not be overly burdensome. It could even lead some to a new appreciation of the great abundance of other natural and man-made resources that too often have been taken for granted. The shortfall this summer could be beneficial if it prompts more Americans to ponder with gratitude, and place greater value on, the "plenty" that still exists.

Getting Pay In Line

Following editorial is from the Swift County Monitor:

Unless you're an employee of the federal government, and there is an ever-increasing number who are, you can't find much fault with President Carter's pay reform plan.

There was a time when federal pay lagged behind the private sector, but thanks to an overly-generous congress, federal pay has soared well beyond the private sector, and is outstripping it every year.

Carter has decided to press congress for an overhaul of the federal pay system that would hold down future pay raises for both the military and civilian segments of the federal government until pay levels are in line with the going rate for similar work in private industry and state and local government.

I implemented as Carter recommends, the saving to the taxpayers would be about $4.6 billion per year.

To be honest about it, however, a bill designed to hold down federal pay has about as much chance of passage as the proverbial "snowball in hell."

Federal workers not only exert a lot of clout on capitol hill through their unions, but there are other interest groups as well who may feel threatened by any attempt to "hold the line" on federal pay.

On top of that, congress would prehaps have some misgivings about grunting itself increased pay and fringe benefits if it held down the pay of federal employees, and everyone knows that the congress isn't going to be the first to "bite the bullet."

Carter's gesture deserves praise but, like many other plans to hold down the number of federal employees and their pay, it's merely a futile rhetorical gesture.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This is an open letter to the taxpayers of Pennington county intended to inform you of a series of events, if allowed to continue, that will cost a significant amount of county and state tax dollars with virtually no benefit to the majority of the people in the county.

As you know, in August of 1977 the south St. Hilaire bridge on county road 55 was damaged and subsequently fell down. There has been a movement by several people in the village of St. Hilaire to have the bridge replaced.

The facts of this situation as best as I can put them forth are as follows:

1. The bridge was originally built in 1896.
2. It was a single lane bridge, that for the last several years has had a six-ton load limit which meant that it was only used by automobile traffic, (no buses, no trucks, no emergency vehicles, etc.).
3. There is a new north St. Hilaire bridge on county road 3, eight-tenths of a mile north of this site.
4. The replacement bridge would be a concrete, two lane structure, paid for by state aid funds, at an estimated cost of $450,000 for the bridge structure only.
5. The cost of approaches, acquisition of right-of-way, engineering, etc., would be borne by the county at an estimated cost of 175,000.
6. The bridge in question would have a direct benefit to six families in River Falls township.
7. The road, county road 55, immediately to the east of the intended bridge is a single lane gravel road that winds eastward for approximately ¾ of a mile and intersects a River Falls township road and also a single lane gravel road at a T intersection.
8. The families most affected by the absence of the bridge are against its replacement.
9. A member of the township board of River Falls township has estimated that maybe 25 or 30 cars a day would use this bridge.
10. On August 8, 1978, the above facts and arguments were presented to the county board at their regular meeting and after consideration the county commissioners voted to stop all planning and activity on this bridge replacement for a period of six months until a careful appraisal of the need for this tax money expenditure could be made.
11. On August 16, 1978, the county commissioners were asked to attend a town meeting in the village of St. Hilaire where a very vocal appeal was made by about seven or eight people to replace the bridge.
12. On August 29, 1978, at a regular county board meeting, the county commissioners voted to rescind their action of August 8 and go ahead with the planning and application for state aid funds and the probable expenditure of county money to replace the bridge.
13. After much discussion, it was decided by the county commissioners that it made much more sense to relocate this bridge on the south county line where it would be of some benefit to a larger number of people.
14. This possibility was discussed with the county board of Red Lake county, who were requested to pay half the cost of the right-of-way, approaches, etc. The Red Lake county commissioners agreed that it would be nice to have a bridge, but they could not justify the costs to Red Lake county.

The legislature of the state of Minnesota has appropriated $500,000,000 to be utilized over the next several years to replace or repair deficient bridges in the state that have seen very little maintenance in the last 40 years. It was hoped at the time that the county boards in the various counties of the state would wisely apply for this money to be utilized for the greatest benefit of the people within the state.

I do not believe that there has been any discussion as to whether it is good economic reasoning to replace this bridge, the only consideration I could see at the many meetings that I attended was that there is state money available if we request it, so let's spend it before somebody else does!

Is this the way you want your tax dollars spent??

What the heck! Let's spend it now! We can afford to pay a little more in the future.

I do not know if the rest of the people in Pennington county feel this way, but I don't!!!

There will be a public meeting, Oct. 23, 1979 at 4 p.m. in the county court house to discuss this issue. Taxpayers, please take an hour of your time to attend this meeting and let your views be known.

Signed,
Doug Dehnert

To The Editor:

As the parent of a handicapped child, I have been helped tremendously by the new state and federal laws that give my child the right to an appropriate education and allow me to help plan that education.

But there is a lot for parents to learn if they are to become good advocates for their handicapped children. I would like to encourage other parents to attend one of two free workshops on special education which are being given in the area. One is at Crookston on Monday, October 29, from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., at the meeting room of the Northwest Regional Development Commission, 425 Woodland Avenue. The other is Tuesday, October 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls.

I have attended PACER workshops in the past, and the information presented applied to children with learning disabilities, emotional disturbances, special behavior problems, mental retardation, physical handicaps, or speech, vision, or hearing impairments. Parents of preschool children and teachers also are invited.

Sponsors are the Parent Advocacy Coalition for Educational Rights (PACER Center), Northwest Regional Development Commission, Region I Association for Retarded Citizens, Northwestern Mental Health Center and the Special Education Regional Consultant.

To register for the Crookston Workshop call Sari Clark 281-1396, and for the Thief River Falls Workshop call Terry Wallace 681-2700 ext. 343.

Sincerely,

Tips For Safe Driving

With fewer daylight hours and children going to school, now is a time for cautious driving. Experts at ANCO, the windshield wiper people, offer the following tips:

—Turn on your lights as soon as daylight fades. Waiting until other motorists do so is not accurate enough when it comes to seeing and being seen by pedestrians and other motorists.

—Slow down at school crosswalks and near school playgrounds. Because many children linger on playgrounds after school, a crosswalk guard is not always on duty. It's up to you to watch for children at crossings.

—Make sure that you can see through the windshield and the back window. Children moving around in the back seat can obstruct your view in the rearview mirror and make driving more hazardous.

—Check windshield wipers. Wipers in good condition can aid visibility. Worn or improperly installed wipers can spell trouble in a sudden rainstorm. Chattering, streaking or smearing wipers can drastically cut visibility.

—Check the windshield washer fluid reservoir. Use of proper washer fluid will enhance visibility by cutting road grime. As soon as rain starts, turn on your wipers and squirt washer fluid on the windshield to remove dirt.

—Switch to snow tires and snowblades. If you drive in a northern state where winter quickly follows fall, switch to snow tires and replace regular windshield wipers with snowblades. Snow tires can increase traction on ice by 10-30 percent, depending upon tire type and construction. Snowblades are specially designed to prevent ice buildup freezing the blades to your windshield.

Following these simple driving tips can help prevent serious accidents and save lives.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

How lucky we are that Halloween comes just once a year. Not that this night of trickery with its witches on broomsticks, candles in carved-out pumpkins and disguised mischief-makers is not filled with fun. It's just that some of the mischief can go a bit too far, and sometimes all that candy becomes too tempting . . and can lead to big pains in little stomachs.

Recently these same concerns have begun to haunt me in a new way. I find myself wondering — and worrying — that while the night of Halloween is mostly make-believe, its spirit of trickery, deception and disguise seems to linger and grow stronger all the time. Certainly there will always be a few who seek to take advantage. That's human nature. And, at least in the business world, these shady practices can be minimized. The disciplines of competition, consumer pressure and what many feel are the excessive number of regulations covering truth in advertising, product labeling and accountability all play a part.

But what about government? Aside from elections, are there really any restraints on its ability to make mischief and disguise its failures? Well, let's take a closer look.

The message around Washington these days is clear: A member of the Administration must either support the team or clear out. No exceptions. Why this sudden new emphasis on unity and discipline? Might it have something to do with a mischievous little problem called inflation, indeed with a near tripling of the Consumer Price Index in less than three years? The trick here is to turn the public's mind away from that ghastly statistic and get it to concentrate on the President's counter-arguments.

Basically, he makes two points: Everything that has made inflation worse is someone else's fault, preferably OPEC's (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries); and, the Administration's sole connection with inflation is to make it better. Blaming OPEC is easy enough if we ignore that the surges in U.S. inflation have historically preceded rather than followed the big jumps in oil prices. We'll also have to ignore that West Germany and Switzerland, which import from OPEC a much bigger share of their energy needs than we do, still boast inflation rates much lower than our own. My, my, how curious.

Still, rather than quibble, let's look at the reasons the President believes his own inflation program has been effective. First, he says there has been a very stringent effort to eliminate unwarranted spending. Sounds great, although federal spending has soared by 38 per cent in three years accompanied by a money supply also ballooning to dizzying heights. Minor details, no doubt. Second, there are fewer employees now working in the federal government. Ooops! Careful Mr. President, there are more — 63,000 more. Probably just an overnight. Third, the government is getting its nose out of private business and private lives. Now there you reassure me. Silly as it seems, I actually thought double-digit increases in the regulatory agency budgets, and the creation of those big bureaucracies (the Department of Energy and Department of Education — the latter will no doubt streamline policy with the help of 13 executive level employees all earning in excess of $50,000) might create more meddling and inflation.

Fourth, the budget deficit has been cut by $38 billion. Congratulations! However, might you consider adding this one key point you always seem to omit: The deficit was cut because double-digit inflation pushed working Americans into higher tax brackets causing them to suffer the worst tax increases last year in post-war history. Just a suggestion. Fifth, "... the price constraints and wage constraints that we have imposed on a voluntary basis have had very beneficial results." I confess your English confuses me here, Mr. President. Do you mean those voluntary controls your Administration wants to impose by encouraging sanctions, blacklisting and threats against people who do not properly cooperate?

Anyone still doubting the President's determination can find peace of mind from his most recent pledge: "So whatever it takes to control inflation, that's what I'll do." And does he ever mean business! Immediately preceding the recent election caucuses, virtually every top administration official flew to Florida and joined the war on inflation by announcing millions upon millions of dollars in federal grants. One Democratic Congressman exclaimed: "I've never seen anything like it. We're getting money for highways, for housing, for hospitals. One more grant and the state will sink under the weight of these projects."

Let's be serious, Mr. President. From what we've seen of the tricks, I think we'll pass up the treats.

Layer A Sunny Salad

Add a little sunshine to an old standby! Those hard-cooked eggs you decorated for Easter can do wonders to perk up potato salad.

In Easter Egg-Potato Salad, sunny slices of hard-cooked eggs add not only a bright spot of color, but a considerable amount of high-quality protein and a variety of vitamins and minerals as well.

With its unique cottage cheese dressing, Easter Egg-Potato Salad has almost enough protein to elevate it to main dish status. It's a very economical way to provide the nutrients your family needs. Serve it on lettuce along with some crusty bread or crackers for a super lunchtime treat.

EASTER EGG-POTATO SALAD

Makes about 8 cups or 6 to 8 servings

6 medium potatoes
¼ cup small curd cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped red or Bermuda onion, optional
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried dill weed
⅛ teaspoon pepper
10 hard-cooked eggs*
Celery leaves, optional

In large covered saucepan cook potatoes in boiling, salted water until tender, about 20 to 30 minutes. Drain, peel and dice potatoes. Set aside. In large bowl stir together cheese, mayonnaise; celery; onion, if desired; salt; dill and pepper. Stir until blended. Add potatoes and toss to coat completely. Slice 2 hard-cooked eggs and stand upright around side of 2-quart, deep-sided glass bowl. Place half the potato mixture (about 3 cups) in dish. Slice 6 eggs and layer over potato mixture. Spread remaining potato mixture over egg slices. Slice remaining 2 eggs and arrange in a ring around edge of potato mixture. Cover and chill thoroughly. Garnish with celery leaves, if desired.

*Hard-Cooked Eggs

Pierce eggs with an egg piercer or punch, if desired. Put eggs in one layer in saucepan and add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover; bring rapidly just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let stand covered in the hot water 15 minutes for large eggs—adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller. Cool immediately and thoroughly in cold water—shells are easier to remove and it is less likely you will have a dark surface on yolks. To remove shell: Crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell; then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

STEP UP AND TAKE A BOW, COOPERATIVES . . . for a job well done and worth doing.

Fifty million Americans can't be wrong. They're members of some 40,000 cooperatives across the nation—advocates of the cooperative way to provide themselves and their families with goods and services . . . and to help produce and market much of this country's quality foods and fiber.

Owned and operated by the people they serve, cooperatives efficiently and economically meet a broad range of needs—marketing farm products and obtaining farm supplies and services, credit, telephone and electric services, food, housing, health care and insurance.

Here, there, everywhere—in towns, cities, and countryside—big cooperatives and little cooperatives are busy serving members, their communities, and the public. They don't put on a flashy show; they're just GOOD FOR ALL AMERICANS.

They deserve a great big hand.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q—I am paid death pension benefits by the Veterans Administration as the helpless child of a Civil War veteran. May I also receive aid and attendance benefits?

A—You cannot receive aid and attendance benefits from the VA. There are no provisions for payment of such additional benefits to a helpless child receiving death pension.

Q—I am a Vietnam-era veteran with 120 days of active duty. I applied for a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan two years ago but was denied because of a lack of qualifying service. I heard that the law has changed. Am I now eligible for the loan guaranty?

A—You may now be eligible. The Veterans Housing Benefits Act of 1978 requires only 90 days of active duty for home loan entitlement for Vietnam-era veterans. Service must have been performed between August 5, 1964 through May 7, 1975.

Q—If a veteran who is receiving 100 per cent compensation disappears, will the Veterans Administration pay his 100 per cent compensation benefits to his wife and children?

A—No. Compensation benefits cannot be paid. The family would, however, be eligible to receive an amount not in excess of death pension benefits that would be payable if the veteran was dead. Contact your nearest VA regional office for details.

What kind of cancer is lymphoma? What part of the body does it start in? Does breast cancer sometimes turn into lymphoma? My grandmother had her breast and some of her lymph nodes removed for cancer. Now my nephew has lymphoma. Is there any chance he caught this from her?

R. W.

Dear R. W.:

Lymphoma is a form of cancer that usually developes within a lymph node. These nodes are part of the vast lymphatic system which circulates body fluids and helps the body fight infection.

The type of cancer your grandmother had, breast cancer, is not related to the lymphoma your nephew has developed. Many types of cancer do spread to regional lymph nodes, but such lymph node involvement is unrelated to lymphoma. In your grandmother's case, the cancer present in the lymph nodes near her breast was metastatic breast cancer. "Metastatis" means the spread of cancer from one part of the body to another.

Furthermore, cancer is not contagious. Even after 100 years of research, scientists have not found any evidence that cancer can be transmitted from one person to another.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Can stress or mental depression cause cancer?

Carol

Dear Carol:

The answer to your question is really unknown. Researchers who are exploring this theory believe that the body's "immune system" may guard against the development of cancer.

Both mental and physical stress increase the activity of the adrenal gland, which in turn influences the immune system. Some researchers believe that severe depression may produce changes in the body which can also affect the immune system.

If cancer cells develop in the body at a time when the immune system is not working properly, they may be allowed to multiply and spread more readily.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Does a patient in a hospital have any rights in regards to smoking? My mom requested a room for non-smokers but her roommate is a smoker. Mother is so polite she wouldn't think if asking this lady not to smoke, but I know the smoke really bothers her.

James

Dear James:

In Minnesota the Clean Indoor Air Act, which has been in effect for three years, states that each patient entering a health-care facility must be asked for their preference — smoking or no smoking.

The responsible person then is to assign rooms according to this preference when space is available. When space is not available in a no-smoking room and a person is admitted to a room originally designated for smoking, smoking is to be prohibited in that room unless expressly permitted by the nonsmoker.

If your mom is hospitalized in Minnesota, she certainly does have the legal "right" to request that her roommate not smoke. Such no-smoking laws may not exist in other states but, generally speaking, most smokers will respect the rights of non-smokers if tactfully asked not to smoke.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband just completed six weeks of radiation treatments for cancer of the mouth. His tongue is swollen and sore. Also, the inside of his mouth is dry and his sense of taste is gone. Is there anything I can do for him? How long will these side effects last?

Eleanor

Dear Eleanor:

As your husband's radiotherapist probably told you, these side-effects are fairly common in patients receiving radiation therapy to the head and neck area. The soreness in his tongue should subside in a week or two. The sense of taste will probably take longer to return. It might take as long as a month to begin coming back. Occasionally, radiation therapy patients never completely recover their sense of taste.

The dryness may continue for some time too, possibly several months. The best thing to do to lessen the dryness problem is for him to wash his mouth out frequently (4 or 5 times a day). A gentle, non-irritating mouthwash could be used alone or with one tablespoon of glycerine added. Also, there are commercial products available that are designed to moisten and lubricate the mouth. Your husband's doctor may be familiar with these salivary substitutes.

If these symptoms persist or get any worse, your husband should ask his doctor for further aid.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I've always thought that cancer could be caused by an injury or chronic irritation, but my daughter, who is a nurse, says that isn't true and that I should stop worrying about such things. Is she right?

Joan

Dear Joan:

Your daughter is correct. The popular misconception that trauma or irritation can cause cancer has no basis in fact. If this were the case, we should all have cancer of the knees as they are frequently injured. Or, we should develop cancer of the hands or feet, parts of the body that are subject to constant irritation. Similarly, broken bones are quite common but cancers that have their origins in the bone are uncommon.

There appears to be only one exception to this misconception about cancer — chronic irritation of the mouth seems to sometimes cause precancerous spots in the mouth.

Dear Cancer Answers:

A friend was diagnosed with cancer of the rectum. I was told they just burned the tumor off. Could this actually be true? It seems too simple.

Kurt

Dear Kurt:

Yes. The cancer was probably small, in an early stage, and in a fairly accessible location. In such cases an electro-coagulation probe can be used to "burn" the cancer away. The procedure is quite simple and can often be done on an out-patient basis.

INFLATION FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

Helpful Information

GET IN THE KNOW: READ LABELS!

By Carolyn Avelino

You may not know it, but it is true. Canned foods are just as nutritionally sound as fresh foods. Preserved intact for long periods of time, they are harvested and processed at their peak of maturity so their nutritional values are usually as high or even higher than fresh foods which have been sitting in supermarkets for only a few days.

Avelino

But how can you, the shopper, be sure that the foods you're getting in a can are everything they're supposed to be? One way is to look at labels. Since the mid-1930s when the voluntary Descriptive Labeling Program went into effect, manufacturers have been providing consumers with information about the content and characteristics of the canned goods they buy.

Dietary labeling efforts have been confusing. However, the National Food Processors Assn. has been actively striving to standardize the information. Currently a one cup serving provides a uniform unit of measure. Information on vitamins, minerals and other such nutrients can all be found on the label, along with the caloric content of the serving. The NFPA is working closely with the Food and Drug Administration to provide meaningful nutritional information to consumers. Information regarding preservatives and additives used in the canning process are now appearing with more and more frequency.

Ingredients are listed on a can with the most plentiful ingredient listed first. So by looking at the ingredients on the label, you should be able to tell immediately if what is called beef stew really is beef stew.

Open date labeling is used by food processors to tell consumers that foods are "recommended for use by" a certain time. Although some companies still prefer to indicate the packing date, most companies agree that the "recommended for use by" date is more valuable since the canning process will preserve food for years.

The little code number on the label of every can you buy is an important piece of information. That code will give a company immediate identification of a specified product in case the product must be taken off the market.

For example, a code might read DC3RST1. The D might indicate the packing plant, C the type of fruit or vegetable, 3, R and S the year, month and day it was packed, T the hour it was processed and 1 the production line on which it moved. Imagine the space required on a label to give that essential information in words!

Hunt-Wesson Foods supports consumers' right to know about the foods they eat. Look for the monthly "Better Food Buys" lists in your local supermarkets. Based on information from a variety of governmental and private sources, the lists (and appropriate recipes) indicate which foods are seasonal and in plentiful supply each month. It's Hunt-Wesson's way of making it better for you.

The most accurate scientific instruments for measuring color are only about 40 percent as good.

If you have good economic vision, a great many colors for the eye can be seen in Artmatic's cornucopia of budget-priced eye shadows and other eye beauty products. The collection includes cool shades and sultry darker tones in a wide assortment of attractive packages and packaged kits. Three new additions are Frosty Eyeshadow, available in 12 shades; Multi Eyeshadow Mini Kits, offering eight new fashion shades; and Blush & Shadow Mini Kit. All come with applicators for around two dollars and under.

The single-pan Frosty Eyeshadow color selections are silver pearl, winter rose, sparkling rosee, frosty sky blue, frosty palm, frosty lavender, slate grey, frosty sable brown, sable brown, tropical blue, evergreen and royal purple. The Multi Eyeshadow Mini Kit new fashion shades are sparkling rosee, frosty sky blue, evergreen, royal purple, foxy brown, silver pearl, slate grey and white. In the Blush & Shadow Mini Kit, blusher shades are pink and lavender, shadow shades are sparkling rosee/foxy brown and silver pearl/sky blue.

These products of the Arthur Matney Company are sold in drug, retail chain and discount department stores and by independent retailers internationally.

It would seem a good idea to look into something so economical and colorful.

Heading Off A School Health Problem

By Lawrence C. Parish, M.D.
University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine

Many jokes have been made about "cooties", a name commonly given to head lice in the past. In former years it was considered a disease of the poor or the unwashed. However, today infestations are occurring in all socio-economic groups in urban, suburban, and rural areas.

Pediculosis (the medical term for head lice) can happen to anyone and head lice epidemics appear to increase in the Fall with the opening of school. They have also been known to close schools at least temporarily, including public and private institutions.

Head lice are not a joke, although they can be controlled fairly easily and rapidly. Kerosene and shaving heads, remedies of yesteryear, are now obsolete. In their place are less embarrassing, and more effective medications, plus a teamwork approach to the problem that is being used successfully by many communities to prevent and control epidemics.

When an outbreak of head lice occurs in a school, a letter is sent home to parents inviting them to meet with the school nurse and the school doctor. Teachers, too, are encouraged to participate. The school nurse often serves as moderator for the meeting and coordinator for the program. Literature is available from a variety of sources, as is a film which can be used to supplement information that is presented. Literature should also be sent home to parents who don't attend.

Parents can play an important role in the control of pediculosis and in preventing its rapid spread to the community at large. They should learn to recognize head lice and to suspect the possibility of their presence when a child persistently scratches his head or complains of persistent itching. In checking the scalp, particular attention should be paid to the back of the head and the area behind the ears. Close inspection will reveal very small, pearly, oval-shaped eggs attached to individual hairs near the scalp.

Several methods of treatment are available, but most physicians prescribe a medicated shampoo available as Kwell Shampoo. It is used for four minutes and is followed with a finetooth combing to remove the shells of nits (eggs). It is wise to shampoo other members of the family with Kwell, too, as a prophylactic measure. Medications should always be used according to instructions.

To prevent reinfestation, launder or dry clean contaminated clothing. Contaminated surfaces, such as mattresses and upholstered furniture, and combs and brushes, can be sprayed with a special spray available without prescription as R&C Spray. Some school authorities also spray their school buses with it.

Head lice travel from one person to another by means of direct contact or indirectly through shared combs, brushes, hats or headscarves. They can also be transmitted on towels, bedding, carpeting, topcoats and sweaters. It is interesting to note that the parasite lives only on humans. It is not possible to catch head lice from a pet.

'U' Scientists Expose Genetic CF Culprit

University of Minnesota scientists believe they have exposed the genetic culprit in cystic fibrosis (CF), the most common heritable disease among Caucasian people.

Studies by geneticist Burton L. Shapiro suggest the disease's symptoms, which include lung and pancreatic disorders, stem from a genetic error in NADH dehydrogenase, a cellular enzyme common to most living tissue.

A major puzzle in the study of human genetics, the cause of CF has eluded scientists for more than 40 years.

If confirmed by independent laboratory studies, the findings will offer for the first time a means of detecting the one in 20 otherwise healthy persons who are carriers of the disease. A one-in-four chance exists that children of two carriers will have cystic fibrosis.

The chronic lung disease associated with cystic fibrosis, suffered by an estimated 50,000 Americans, can be treated with massages and mist tents. Nutritional deficiencies resulting from the pancreatic disorder can be treated with dietary supplements. However, most patients cannot expect to live much past 20 years of age.

In this error of metabolism, the mucous secretions that libricate body ducts and airways are abnormally thick and sticky.

Research reported earlier by Shapiro and graduate students Bob Feigal and Louis Lam found abnormally high concentrations of calcium in secretory cells expressing the CF gene.

"It is known that calcium affects the viscosity of body fluids," Shapiro said. "Therefore we felt this increase can account for what you see clinically in CF."

They also found that cells of CF patients and CF carriers consume more oxygen than cells of persons without the CF gene. Shapiro then set out to uncover the cellular enzyme involved in calcium transport and oxygen consumption that differed among the three cell types.

The targets of his research were mitochondria, cell structures that provide energy for cell functions. By collecting and culturing many small tissue samples and breaking the cells into fractions, the researchers were able to isolate the mitochondria.

He and Feigal then chose chemicals that would selectively inhibit mitochondrial enzymes involved in energy transactions. Use of rotenone, a respiratory inhibitor marketed as an insecticide, resulted in different effects among the cell types. This suggested to Shapiro that the enzyme it inhibits, known to be NADH dehydro-genase, may be abnormal in CF.

Additional studies amplified these findings. Shapiro and Lam found that certain physical properties of the enzyme, optimum relative acidity and binding attraction for the substance on which it acts, differed among the cell types. It is these differences that could provide a practical means for early detection of carriers, he said.

Shapiro is waiting for confirmation of his findings before advocating widespread use of his test. In the meantime he is attempting to identify the molecular differences that exist in the enzyme among the three cell types.

Shapiro is optimistic that this finding could lead to improved therapy for CF, but he cautioned that identifying the abnormal protein does not guarantee finding a cure. For example, the abnormal protein in the genetic disease sickle cell anemia has been known for years, but direct treatment is not yet feasible, he said.

The finding has implications beyond carrier detection and treatment of CF, Shapiro added. Most other childhood diseases involve lung and digestive problems similar to those found in CF, he said. "The identification of the cause of CF promises new insights into the nature of these other problems as well," Shapiro said.

Triumphs Of Science

SYNTHETIC BLOOD

The search for a blood substitute moved a step closer to realization because a scientist happened to be reading a 1973 issue of Science magazine.

An article there summarized the work of Dr. Leland C. Clark, Jr., of the Children's Hospital Research Foundation in Cincinnati, in seeking a blood substitute. Needed: a compound that carried oxygen but would not react with anything, would remain suspended in water and would stay in the tissues no longer than needed.

Scientist Robert Moore helped create "synthetic blood."

A mouse submerged in perfluorocarbons can still breathe—proof of the solution's capability to carry enough oxygen to temporarily substitute for whole blood.

Robert Moore remembered compounds his company, Sun, had worked on in the late '60s and shelved because their use in manufacturing commercial products was too costly. But these compounds seemed like just what Dr. Clark wanted.

A bottle of five-year-old F-adamantane was sent to the Cincinnati researcher. Thus, the foundation of their joint research was laid.

Their work interested Harvard University's Prof. Robert Geyer, another early pioneer studying blood substitutes, as well as Chinese scientists who learned about the research at an international conference in Florida.

Early tests on mice proved encouraging. Now tests in the United States are to begin on larger animals. These could determine whether the compounds developed have potential use in humans.

The Moore/Clark formulations are patented, but because work has been done under National Institutes of Health grants, NIH would be allowed to use any eventual commercial product free of royalty fees. The potential uses are limited only by the ingenuity of medical practitioners.

CENTURY III leaders scholarship competition at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls has been won by Mark Williamson (center), son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williamson of rural Thief River Falls. Runners-up were Pete Eriksson (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Eriksson and Mark Schmitke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Schmitke. Williamson is now eligible to compete with other high school seniors throughout Minnesota for two $1,500 scholarships, two $500 scholarships and a $10,000 national scholarship.

Williamson Is Local Winner In Century III

Mark Williamson has won the Century III leaders scholarship competition at Lincoln high school, according to Frank Hamerlinck, principal. Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williamson, route 5, Thief River Falls.

The 18-year-old senior is now eligible to compete with other high school seniors throughout Minnesota for two $1,500 scholarships, two $500 scholarships, and a $10,000 national scholarship that will be awarded in a conference of state winners in historic Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

Mark triumphed in the local phase of the Century III leaders program, a scholarship competition which emphasizes the future concerns of America. Students were judged on the basis of their leadership abilities, community involvement and score on a current events examination. To compete at the state level, he must now write a brief projection outlining what he thinks is one of America's future challenges and how it should be met.

Runners-up in the competition at Lincoln high school are Pete Eriksson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Eriksson, and Mark Schmitke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Schmitke.

Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williamson, route 5, Thief River Falls.

The two Minnesota winners will receive an all-expense-paid trip to the fourth annual Century III national leadership seminar in Williamsburg, March 7-10, 1980, to participate in seminars on current issues. In previous years, speakers at these seminars were such notables as news commentator Howard K. Smith, architect-futurist Buckminster Fuller, and anthropologist Rene Dubos.

The program is administered by the National Association of secondary school principals.

"Autumn Musicale" Is NCC Highlight

Annual "Autumn Musicale" will be presented by Northland community college Sunday, November 18 in the college auditorium and will again feature performances by the Northland community band and the NCC choir. Because of the popularity of this annual concert, there will be two performance times at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. with the public invited to attend free of charge.

The concert will open with the Northland choir under the direction of Phyllis Dalager singing "Holy, Holy, Holy" by Bach. This opening selection will be followed by five additional numbers: "Notes from John" by Butler, "We Shall Walk Through the Valley", a spiritual, "Soon-Ah Will Be Done" by Dawson, "O Soldier, Soldier", an English folk song, "Scarborough Fair", an old English song, with "God Bless America" by Berlin as the finale to this part of Autumn Musicale.

Second part of the concert features the Northland community band of 60 members from throughout northwestern Minnesota directed by Doug Engstrom. Their program includes "The Fairest of the Fair" by Sausa, "First Suite in E Flat" by Holst, "Elsa's Procession in the Cathedral" by Wagner, "Flores De Espano" by Chovi, "American Overture for Band" by Jenkins and closing with "Bricusse and Newlay on Boardway" by Barker. Also featured during the band concert will be a Jazz Quartet composed of Jeanne Barger, piano; Clark Dyrud, flute; Rich Fillafer, drums; and Steve Anderson, bass. The quartet will play "Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano".

VoteTomorrow On Accepting Building Code

Voting on whether or not Pennington county townships and the cities of St. Hilaire and Goodridge should operate under the state building code will take place at a special election to be held Tuesday. Polls will be open until 8 p.m. at town halls and Goodridge and St. Hilaire polling places.

The law giving counties the right to hold referendums on adopting the state building code was passed by the 1979 legislature. The code will continue to be mandatory in counties which do not hold referendums.

In each of the 18 counties in which referendums had been held, the code had been defeated by wide margins. Votes in this area included 1,411 to 31 in Clearwater county, 1,466 to 56 in Norman county, 2,584 to 95 in Beltrami county, 3,193 to 73 in Cass county and 937 to 178 in Mahnomen county.

Oakland Hall Spookhouse Open To Public

Halloween and spookhouses naturally go together, and Northland community college football players decided to capitalize on this by converting Oakland hall dormitory into a "Haunted Mansion" for three nights. Funds raised from this project will be used to purchase weights for Northland's athletic department.

The mansion, scheduled tonight and Tuesday from 7-12 p.m. is open to the public at a cost of 75 cents. Children under ten years of age will not be admitted unless accompanied by an adult. Tickets will be sold at the dormitory entrance, located across from the new Oakland Park nursing home.

NCC football players Danny Canela and Louis Delahoz originally formulated the idea for the mansion, and almost every player has contributed with thought input and labor. All the work is voluntary, but the students have enjoyed renovating the form in preparation for Halloween.

Hunchback of Notre Dame will lead groups of seven for a 10-15 minute tour. Halloween traditionals — Dracula, monsters, beasts, werewolves, mummies and witches — will all participate.

The form, a former nursing home, was originally built in 1908. The basement is being utilized for the jails, graveyards and morgues. Players warn that some of the ghosts may not be dressed-up people, but actual year-round goblins.

Delahoz promises that the mansion is "Guaranteed to give you the most horrifying experience in your life."

WHAT WAS THE REACTION of Mark Twain elementary school youngsters when Tom Reller of the Minnesota Zoological Garden pulled a 10-foot snake from its cage beneath his display table? Take a look for yourself. They screamed, laughed, stared in amazement, drew back in horror, oohed and aahed. Display of the 10-foot, 22-pound anaconda, a water snake from South America which can grow to 30 feet in length and 400 pounds, was part of Reller's display. He also showed a ferret and opossum. Reller was making his first trip with the state zoo's zoomobile, a traveling educational unit.

Minn. Zoomobile Visits Area Schools Last Week

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"Let's see if you can guess what this next animal is," Minnesota Zoo interpretive aide Tom Reller said to Mark Twain elementary school students as they attended a zoomobile program at Knox elementary school Thursday.

"But you have to be very quiet," Reller continued as he reached into a cage beneath a cloth-shourded table. "If he hears a lot of noise he turns green"

Already introduced to a domestic ferret and an opossum, the youngsters waited expectantly for the next animal. Most weren't prepared for the 10-foot anaconda which squirmed and twisted in Reller's grasp as he held it aloft for all to see. Screams mixed with giggles and oohs and aahs and the first three rows of students seated on the gym floor quickly became part of the fourth, fifth and sixth rows.

"You see," Reller grinned when the surprise was over and the noise had subsided, "He heard the noise and turned all green!"

In discussing the zoomobile and his duties with the zoo, Reller noted that he didn't bring the snake along to shock students. "Our purpose if educational," he explained. "In the case of the snake, we want to tell children about them and give them a chance to touch one if they want to touch it. Most of them do. They find out that snakes aren't cold or slimy like many of them thought they were."

Reller, making his first trip with the zoomobile, stayed in Thief River Falls four days last week, visiting area schools as well as Thief River Falls elementary schools. The zoomobile is simply a well-insulated van used to transport the animals and materials used for presenting the zoo programs.

A native of Hastings, Reller has been with the state zoo for a year and one-half after earning a bachelor of science degree in biology with an emphasis on zoology.

His primary assignment at the zoo is to care for the animals that are part of the rotating zoomobile exhibit. There are several other persons on the staff who conduct zoomobile programs closer to the metropolitan area, but none were enthused about making the long jaunt to northwestern Minnesota.

THIS TYPE OF DUTY may not be covered in the master contract, but Tom Schafer, fifth grade teacher at Mark Twain elementary school, held the Minnesota zoo's 10-foot anaconda for students to touch during a zoomobile program Thursday.

Dr. Allen Nichols
Candidate
Alderman at Large

I filed for the office of alderman at large because I believe that we need a strong spokesman on the city council who will truly represent the people of Thief River Falls. We need an able leader in that position who will begin to prepare the city for the future.

With the passing of Dr. Jacobson and with the decreased political activity of other community leaders, I feel that an advocacy void has been created. We need someone to carry foreward the idea that Thief River Falls has a bright, growing future. City government is the place to start a resurgence of that attitude.

The city needs an alderman who is willing and able to put in the long hours required, not only in the various meetings

You undoubtedly have thoughts as to qualities important to a good city alderman. I know I do, and would appreciate sharing my thoughts with you:

He will search out all avenues available in providing a positive atmosphere for living in Thief River Falls, as they apply to all citizens, of all ages, in all walks of life — for now and in the future.

He will give time necessary to answer your questions and receive your input; being available to you.

He will treat fairly every person, not showing favoritism; give full consideration to all sides of every problem, avoiding conflicts of interest, and make objective decisions.

Glass Snake Is In Reality A Legless Lizard

It looks like a snake, moves like a snake and glistens like a snake but it isn't a snake at all. What is it?

It's a misnamed legless lizard called the glass snake, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. In fact, at 27 inches in length, it is the longest lizard found on the North American continent.

Centuries ago, the ancestors of today's glass snake did have legs, but as they took to burrowing underground those appendages disappeared, according to the National Wildlife Federation's monthly magazine for children.

How can you tell a glass snake from the real thing? Like all lizards, the shiny, gray-brown glass snake has eyelids, which it can open and close. Snakes, on the other hand, have no eyelids and cannot close their eyes.

On close inspection, says Ranger Rick, you will also find that the glass snake has a mouthful of teeth — about 165 of them. Too close an inspection is not recommended, however, since glass snakes, though nonpoisonous, often bite when handled.

The glass snake, which is found along the Atlantic Coast from North Carolina into Florida and in parts of the Midwest, got its strange name from its peculiar tail. If its tail is tugged or hit, it may break like glass into several pieces.

Contrary to populist notion, the pieces never join together again or grow into new lizards. Instead, the lizard grows a new tail. "A glass snake's original tail is at least twice as long as its body," reports Ranger Tick, "but its new tail is shorter and stiffer." Fewer than half of the glass snakes found in the wild still have their original tails.

Often the glass snake may choose to leave its tail behind to fool a predator. A king snake, for example, will be distracted by the still wriggling detached tail, while the glass snake makes a quick getaway.

So, if you're afraid of snakes, don't jump to conclusions next time you see a slithery, legless creature in the grass. Instead, take a closer look. Any "snake" that winks at you is a lizard.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — My friend received claims forms for collecting the GI life insurance based on her former husband's death. She was reluctant to apply, because she thinks she lost the right to the insurance due to divorce. However, I persuaded her to fill out and return the forms. Was I correct in persuading her to do this?

A—Yes. Divorce does not affect an individual's right to insurance benefits. Whoever is properly listed as beneficiary by the insured veteran will be paid the insurance benefits.

Q: I am a retired service person and have elected under the family Survivor Benefit Plan (SBP) to provide an annuity for my surviving eligible dependents. If I waive my entire retirement pay in favor of Veterans Administration compensation, will VA continue to pay my SBP premiums?

A: If you authorize VA to withhold your monthly premium payments, VA will forward them to your military finance center.

Q: My husband was killed in Vietnam. I believe I am financially able to purchase a home. Will the Veterans Administration provide any assistance in this regard?

A: Unmarried widows or widowers of veterans of any period of service occurring since September 16, 1940, whose deaths were service-connected, are eligible for a VA guaranteed home loan. Contact your nearest VA regional office for details.

Pork Producer Dinner Slated Here Thursday

Membership dinner for the Northern Minnesota Pork Producers association will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls. Memberships may be purchased at the meeting but advance reservations for the dinner should be made by calling Virginia at 681-1204.

Speaker at the event will be Dr. A. D. Leman, associate professor of large animal medicine and extension veterinarian at the University of Minnesota. He received his DVM degree in 1968 and went into private practice, becoming extension veterinarian at the University of Illinois from 1969 to 1975. He joined the University of Minnesota faculty that year.

Northern Minnesota association is affiliated with the Minnesota Pork Producers association which has more than 11,000 members. Goal of the northern group is 150 members and it is hoped that goal can be reached at the membership dinner, according to Robert Fincher of Viking, president.

Fincher said the association will attempt to put on shows and educational programs of interest to pork producers and arrange for trips and tours to test stations and other places. Group purchasing, record keeping and management assistance are other potential benefits.

Seek Members For Title I Council Here

Persons who would be interested in serving on the School District 564 advisory council on Title I program are encouraged to contact Walter Redinger, Title I director, at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls.

Parental involvement is a legal requirement for school districts which participate in the Title I program. In Thief River Falls the Title I program affects students in Washington, Northrop, Knox, St. Hilaire, Franklin and St. Bernard's schools.

Eight members are to be elected to the advisory council. Persons interested in serving are asked to contact Redinger by Thursday of this week.

Name Cuppett To Committee

James Cuppett of Thief River Falls has been appointed by Frank I. Hamilton, national commander of the American Legion, to serve on the national education committee.

In a letter from Hamilton recently, Cuppett was notified that the national executive committee had confirmed the appointment at its meeting in Indianapolis, Ind. Term of the appointment will extend through the 1982 fall meeting of the national executive committee.

By driving 55 mph instead of 65 mph, you can stop in shorter distances and will have more time to react. Higher speeds magnify the impairment effects of alcohol and fatigue, faults in tires and headlights and inadequacies in road design or driver behavior. The Minnesota safety council urges everyone to drive 55 mph — it makes sense.

SHOWING YOUNGSTERS how the opossum hangs by its tail, Tom Reller of the Minnesota zoo presented a program at Knox elementary school Thursday. During a four-day stay in Thief River Falls, Reller presented his zoomobile programs for local elementary schools as well as making trips out each day to visit a number of other schools in area communities.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA
CAMP COURAGE

Falls include 22 years of valuable experience, 16 as a member of your city council and the past six years as mayor. It has been a great honor and a priviledge for me to have had the opportunity to serve the fine citizens of Thief River Falls these past 22 years. I believe Thief River Falls to be one of the finest cities in the state of Minnesota, a city that truly deserves the recognition of being the hub of Northwestern Minnesota.

When I was re-elected your mayor two years ago, I set priorities and goals for our city and its fine citizens. They were additional housing projects for our senior citizens, a new fire hall and better equipment to protect our citizens in Thief River Falls and the five townships we serve, and a complete new signal light program for downtown Thief River Falls which will result in better traffic flow for our citizens. These projects are all under way and have been or will be completed by the summer of 1980.

Many thanks should go to a good working city council and the excellent cooperation of the citizens of this city. Much more is to be done to make Thief River Falls a better city in which to live and bring up our youth of today.

I enjoy very much serving as your mayor and have some very strong feeling in what direction we should go in Thief River Falls. I would like to continue as a part of that working team in the capacity as your mayor. I promise you I will work hard and long for a better Thief River Falls. Experience is most important. I know I am qualified, and I ask for your continued support on election day, November 6.

My sincere thanks to the editor and the entire staff of the Thief River Falls Times for the opportunity afforded me to express some of my views in this public service article.

that are held, but also in study, research and planning. I will work hard, taking the time to do the job as it needs to be done. I will not sit in retirement on your city council.

Thief River Falls must prepare itself for the future. Development will occur — like it or not. Therefore, the city must prepare so that orderly development will take place. We must be prepared to provide the utilities and services for development when needed. We can no longer afford to pass up opportunities such as shelters for battered women, halfway houses or industrial development. The city must plan so that suitable locations are available if needed. When these opportunities are passed up, the city loses either new employment, retail trade or new needed services.

The job of government is to protect the collective interests of the community. Government in a free-enterprise society should not become involved in the financing of any business venture. Actions of government must be fair and show equal treatment to all concerned.

I have talked to many people during the past three weeks who are as upset about the traffic problems in the city as I am. The congestion is not just inconvenient; it is dangerous. Cars blocking intersections, drivers taking chances, and trucks clogging street corners are all problems that are not going to disappear; in fact, they are increasing. We must begin to recognize the problem and plan for its solution.

I owe no allegiance to any group, organization or individual. My candidacy was my own decision. I fully intend to represent all the people of Thief River Falls. I am open and above board in the things I do, and I will continue to operate that way as your alderman at large on the city council.

As an instructor of business administration at Northland college, I am involved daily with the skills needed and used by council members. My 11-year residence in the city gives me substantial knowledge of community matters. If there are questions concerning my position, please contact me at your convenience.

He will accept the challenge of providing necessary and desired services wanted by the majority, and on the most economic basis, within parameters of sound fiscal policy and keeping taxes as reasonable as possible.

To better acquaint you with me, here is a brief statement of my background:

I am a native 64-year-old Minnesotan, attended public schools in So. St. Paul; recieved a BBA degree from the University of Minnesota, completed several graduate courses and participated in management seminars. Our family moved to Thief River Falls in 1958 when I became president of the now First Northwestern state bank, serving in that position until retirement in 1975. Presently am secretary-treasurer of Toreq, Inc.

My years in Thief River Falls permitted me membership in many organizations and boards. Affiliation with the original junior college citizens and AVTI citizens advisory committees confirmed my assessment of the value and necessary availability of higher education to our citizens.

Service on the hospital board has shown me the values of a community hospital and health care with its attendant professional and non-professional personnel. United Fund Board membership has given me a picture of charity value. I have given and enjoyed time on the concert association and arts council boards.

Serving on the Thief River Falls planning commission affords me a broad viewpoint of planning necessary to keep open paths of progressive development. I believe I made a large contribution to this area by assisting in arranging original financing for Arctic Enterprises, Hydra-Mac and Toreq, all large employers benefiting the region's economy.

My wife, Everetta, and I have a strong affection for Thief River Falls and I hope to continue making it a city in which its citizens will enjoy a "good life".

I have the time to serve, the desire to serve and, I believe, the ability to serve. If elected, I seek to live up to the aforementioned views and to be a good city alderman.

Borsheim . . .

the first ward, "my ward". This has always been my number one priority.

But on the other hand, there have been some mighty big issues before the city council in the last four years. I have been excited, displeased, happy and still very down hearted many times. What a joy it is to see our community, yours and mine, grow and prosper. Take a hard look around you, we have fine schools, streets, churches, homes, hospital, parks and yes, a prosperous business community. I like to refer to our community as "The Hub of Northern Minnesota." There is lots to be done yet, but we can be proud to say, "I live in Thief River Falls." It is one of the finest communities in northern Minnesota and growing each and every day.

I have visited with many new people who have moved here and they all voice the same opinion and views as I do. I made a pledge to you when I was first elected, to be an effective leader and spokesman for the community, especially for the people in my ward. I think I have accomplished this in my first term. I am especially proud of having a part in the street improvements on Red Lake boulevard, Dewey avenue and Sherwood Forest areas.

I have been in the printing since I was a young man, except for four years in the U.S. air force. I am a graduate of Lincoln high school, Class of '51. In 1960 my brother and I purchased Schuster Job Printing from my step-father, Harry Schuster, and we started Borsheim Printing. In 1972 I purchased the business and now own and operate Borsheim Printing at 422 North Horace Avenue.

I am married to Elaine, a native of Warren, who is an X-ray technician at the Falls clinic. We have two fine sons, Mark 10 and Wayne 8. I am a member of Trinity Lutheran church, Chamber of Commerce, Pennington county fair association, Pennington county, Sportsmen's club, American Legion Eagles, Elks and Veterans of Foreign Wars. I have been active in many community affairs, including secretary for 10 years of the Pennington county fair association.

During the past four years many people have called me a politician. I never have considered myself as a politician. To me, being on the city council has been a privilege and part of giving of one's self to making the city a better place in which to live. Every person who is in the least bit interested in the community should take an active part in that community, be it in any organization, and then give your fair share. New blood to any organization is healthful, meaningful and beneficial to all. I believe that our present city council is serving people of this community very well. It has been said "it sure is a controversial group" and I am glad to have been a part of it.

Thank you Mr. Editor and the Thief River Falls Times for giving me the opportunity to tell the people of Thief River Falls and especially the people of the first ward about myself, my beliefs and why I am seeking re-election for alderman of the first ward.

the Regional Development commission. Committee assignments on the RDC include the personnel committee and serving as co-chairman of the aging committee.

Past city projects which I feel are worth mentioning are the sports arena, remodeling of the water treatment plant, construction of the sewage lagoon system, new fire hall and, of course, the various street improvements over the past several years.

We have an attractive, clean city, and a good potential for growth. I am pleased to have been a part of the past progress and hope to continue to serve the city as the third ward alderman for the next four years.

I would like to express my thanks to the Times newspaper for allowing me to have this opportunity to express myself.

River Falls Education associations.

I hold a Bachelor of Science degree from Moorhead state university and a Master's degree in education from the University of North Dakota. I have been teaching mathematics since 1957 and driver education since 1959 in the local school system.

I am currently serving on the labor committee, street committee, liquor committee and utilities committee of the city council. Serving on these committees, and on the council as a whole, has been an interesting learning experience in the function of local government. It is with this knowledge and experience I seek the support of the residents of the fifth ward in my candidacy as their alderman.

MN. Zoomobile Visits Schools In TRF Area

employed at First Northwestern state bank here, so the two had a chance to visit during the week.

The animals with the zoomobile are subject to a lot of stress," Reller said. "We try to use animals that are adaptable and still have educational impact and let the kids see something different. I think the zoo has done a good job of educating children in the metropolitan area, but I think the kids in this part of the state deserve the zoomobile, too."

The information and education service of the zoo operates the zoomobile and maintains a small group of animals for taking out on exhibit tours. Zoomobile drivers are careful to have the van warmed up well before moving the animals from overnight accommodations or schools into the vehicle. Of the three exhibits Reller used in this area, the snake was most subject to harm from temperature changes.

"And the nights were a little noisy," he admitted. "The ferret and opossum are both nocturnal, and they wanted to rustle around in their cages when I was trying to sleep."

Part of the zoomobile program is a slide show selected by the school at which the program is to be given. One show is entitled "Everybody Needs a Home" and deals with habitat providing natural homes for wildlife. "The Hunter and the Hunted" deals with the predator aspect of animal relationships.

Reller said the zoomobile is in constant demand and that reservations must be made well in advance. In this part of the state scheduling must be made to cover a number of appearances to make the trip worthwhile.

Regarding the state zoo in Apple Valley, Reller said that it had recently been rated by the American association of zoological parts and aquariums as having the best educational facilities of any zoo in the United States. He also said that animals have become more accustomed to their exhibit areas and may be more easily seen by zoo visitors than when the zoo first opened.

"In the tiger exhibit, for example," he said, "there used to be just one or two tigers out at a time. Now there are five tigers in the exhibit at once and most viewers will have an opportunity to see at least one."

He added that the state zoo has been specializing in the breeding of endangered animals for species preservation and that the zoo has a large number of uncommon animals. There are 250 to 300 volunteers who work at the zoo, he said, and each must take a 10-week training period and provide at least 100 hours of volunteer work a year.

"We recognize that many children in this part of the state may never get to the zoo," he said. "That is one reason why we try to bring a little of the zoo to the people."

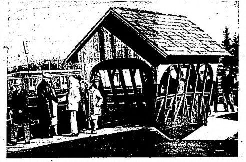
RIBBON CUTTING for the covered bridge located in the park being constructed near Valley Home in Thief River Falls was done by Pete Stensgaard Thursday afternoon. At left is Mayor Bob Carlson and at right is Pete's brother Hans. The Stensgaard brothers built the covered bridge to Pete's design and are now working on construction of a barn at the south end of the park site. The park is being constructed with a grant provided by Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Swenson of Thief River Falls and is intended for use by area senior citizens.



A COVERED BRIDGE is something that hasn't been built in Minnesota for 100 years, speculated Pete Stensgaard who designed and with his brother Hans built the bridge above. It is located near Valley Home in the park being developed for use by senior citizens. Some of the Valley Home residents who witnessed the ribbon cutting are shown crossing the bridge on the concrete walkway built to accommodate wheelchair traffic. Sides of the bridge are tapered so that people confined to wheelchairs can feed ducks which will be in the water below during the summer. Lowell Swenson (second from left), who with his wife provided funds to construct the park, greets some of the residents as they cross the bridge.

Milwaukee Man Killed In Dozer Accident Wed.

Richard Eliason of Milwaukee, Wis., 45, was killed in an accident involving a crawler tractor Wednesday on the Harry Sjulestad farm six miles east, three miles south and one-half mile east of Goodridge.

Sjulestad reportedly saw the tractor going in reverse without a driver and stopped the machine in the farm yard. Eliason, who had been operating the machine in scraping dirt in the yard, was found between the tracks a short distance from the tractor. Authorities surmise that he fell from the machine and was crushed by the blade which was in a scraping position.

Pennington county sheriff's officers who investigated the mishap said that Eliason was not run over by the track of the dozer but that he was dead at the scene.

Funeral services for Richard Eliason were held today (Monday) at 10 a.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Rev. James Bernauer of St. Bernard's Catholic church officiated. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Arnold Hammer. Interment will be in Hibbing at the Hibbing Park cemetery on Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Pallbearers were Bruce Dahle, Edward Sjulestad, Howard Sjulestad, Dave Sjulestad, John Kotrba and John Eidelbes.

EMT Week Is Proclaimed By Governor Quie

Citing the "skill and attention to duty" of the state's emergency medical care workers, Governor Albert Quie has issued a proclamation setting aside November 3-10 as "Emergency Medical Technician Recognition Week" in Minnesota.

In making his proclamation, Quie emphasized the role of the specially trained emergency medical technician (EMT) in the state's emergency medical care system. To qualify as an EMT, an individual must successfully complete an 81-hour course in "basic life support." EMTs who are also qualified to provide "advanced life support" services are classified as "EMT-Paramedics."

Such training has enabled the state's ambulance attendants and other emergency care personnel to "directly reduce the number of persons dying of critical medical emergencies," according to Quie's proclamation. Although the state does not require them to take EMT training, about 80 per cent of the state's ambulance attendants are EMTs.

Almost 9,000 emergency care workers in the state are registered as EMTs by the national registry of EMTs, an organization responsible for the testing and certification of EMTs nationwide. Almost 200 are registered EMT-Paramedics. Minnesota department of health also registers EMTs, through a voluntary program established recently under the state human services occupations act.

Approximately 3,300 of Minnesota's EMTs serve on ambulance crews. The rest are fire, rescue or law enforcement personnel, or private citizens who provide emergency care on a voluntary basis.

To Give Elderly Cash Instead Of Food Stamps

U.S. department of agriculture will conduct a demonstration project to provide cash rather than food stamps to participating households in which every member is either 65 years of age or over or has been determined eligible to receive supplemental security income (SSI), according to assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman. SSI is a cash assistance program administered by the social security administration that provides benefits for aged, blind and disabled people.

"Project will examine whether this alternative form of food assistance will encourage participation by eligible elderly and handicapped persons, enabling them to improve their nutrition," Foreman said. "Checks in the amount of their food stamp allotments will be mailed on a monthly basis."

Project is authorized by the food stamp act of 1977.

Currently, about half of the eligible households with aged, blind and other handicapped members are participating in the food stamp program.

Eight sites will be selected, nationwide, with an urban-rural balance. Project areas may be on a statewide or local basis, and all eligible households in the designated area will participate. Demonstration projects will begin in April of 1980 and operate for a year.

Project will also test whether more aged and handicapped will participate if they can apply and be interviewed at a location other than a welfare or food stamp office. In some demonstration areas, people applying for supplemental security income at a social security office will be able to file an application for food stamps at the same time.

Demonstration projects will be thoroughly evaluated. Participation growth rates, additional costs and attitudes of participants will be principal factors in assessing the feasibility of the cash payments.

For further information, contact: Claire Lipsman, director, program development division, food and nutrition service, U.S. department of agriculture, Room 658, 500 12th St., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20250. Telephone (202) 447-8325.

Notice of intent was published in the federal register of October 12, 1979 soliciting applications from state welfare agencies. Proposals are due by December 17, 1979. States should indicate their intention of applying by November 15, 1979.

Rural Women's Conference To Be Held Nov. 16

Statewide Rural Women's conference will be held on Friday, November 16, at the Holiday Inn, St. Cloud. According to Dennis Kleinsasser, director of the center for human and community development, St. John's university, the conference is designed to share information gathered by the rural women's needs assessment project conducted by the center and funded by the Governor's rural development council and the Otto Bremer foundation.

The project involved in-depth interviews conducted in the homes of 130 rural women in Polk, Stearns and Waseca counties to determine their needs, priorities and aspirations.

"The goal of this conference is to inform policy makers, legislators, agency personnel, and interested rural women of the needs identified in this study in order to effect policy and program planning for rural women at a statewide level. People who work with or represent rural women in Minnesota should consider this conference an excellent opportunity to learn what these rural women have to say," Dr. Kleinsasser said.

At the conference, Dr. Jennie V. Stoler of the university of Vermont will interpret the Minnesota data and relate it to her own research in the field. The keynote speaker will be Nina Rothchild, executive director of the Minnesota council on the economic status of women. She will discuss how action could be taken to meet the special needs of rural women. There will be opportunities for discussion among the conference participants during the program.

Since space is limited, preregistration for the conference is required by November 5. Conference is free including materials, and there will be an optional luncheon. Anyone interested in attending should call or write Ann King, Center for Human and Community Development, St. John's University, Collegeville, MN 56321.

Connally And Bush To Speak For Stangeland

Two candidates for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination will be in Moorhead to participate in Concordia college's political awareness week and to appear at testimonials honoring Representative Arlan Stangeland, congressman from Minnesota's Seventh district, according to Dennis Schurman, Detroit Lakes, Stangeland's 1980 campaign chairman.

George Bush speaks at a banquet in Stangeland's honor at 7 p.m. Friday, November 30, at Memorial auditorium, Concordia college, after attending a private reception at the Moorhead county club.

John Connally will address a noon luncheon saluting Stangeland on November 27 at the Centrum, Knutson center, Concordia college.

John Pierce, 1012 Ninth St. S., Moorhead, has been appointed arrangements chairman of the event. "For the past month, we have been working diligently to get one of the Republican Presidential candidates here for a Stangeland testimonial," Pierce pointed out. "Now, we are in the happy position of having two of them accept our invitation."

"We are extremely fortunate to be able to have such prominent politicians as Connally and Bush speak for our political awareness week," observes Dan Hofrenning, Concordia student body president. "We want to increase student interest, awareness and involvement in politics," he adds. Students will be invited to hear both speakers.

For Connally, this will be the only appearance in western Minnesota or North Dakota this fall Pierce reveals, although he is scheduled in Minneapolis for a dinner on the same day he is at the luncheon at Moorhead.

Tickets for the luncheon and dinner are available from Don DeBoer, ticket chairman, (218) 236-6192 office or (218) 236-9874 home.

Smile—You're Fluoridated!

It used to be said that you can't fight city hall. Such was not the case in Brainerd recently, although it was the state health department that was fighting city hall there.

For a dozen years now the health department has been pushing compliance with a law passed by the legislature in 1967 that mandates fluoridation of water supplies for all Minnesota communities. Most cities went along with the directive, although there were 86 Minnesota cities and towns which reportedly did not comply with the law.

Among those 86 was Brainerd, a fairly good-sized rural community whose city government is not unlike those of other Minnesota towns — except that the council had the backbone to tell the state what it could do with its fluoridation law. As might be expected, the state didn't like it.

The health department is determined that everyone who lives in a municipality in Minnesota is going to have good teeth, by God, whether they want 'em or not. The Brainerd council was just as adamant that they didn't want fluoride shoved down their throats — figuratively or actually.

Well, it took 10 years or so and a lot of departmental heat and days in court and legal decisions and appeals and all that, but last week the council voted to order fluoridation. They took the action under threat of imposition of $250 daily fines for non-compliance with an order issued by Judge Harold Schultz of Ramsey county.

Never mind the contention by a lot of Brainerd people that they don't trust fluoride which they say may cause cancer. Never mind that there are probably consumed in the city of Brainerd enough cavity-causing foods to cause fluoride to pale in insignificance as a cavity fighter. Never mind that the public can get all the fluoride tablets it needs or wants to treat its own water supply if dental caries are a concern. Never mind all that. When the state says "Thou shall," by golly, it means "Thou shalt."

So of the 86 towns that ignored the law, Brainerd was chosen to be an example of what happens to state law-breakers. "If Brainerd can be made to buckle," the reasoning must have gone, "the others will be sure to follow. After all, it's for their own good."

But is it? Are those of us in Thief River Falls who gulp down our fluoridated water really sure that it causes no ill effects? Has it been shown definitely that fluoride does not accumulate in the system or that it is not a carcinogen? In this case, is the state health department looking out for what is good for us or what is good for the bureaucracy?

We don't like to be put in the position of encouraging law-breaking. There is too much of that causing too many problems in the country today. But we can't help applauding Brainerd's valiant struggle against big brotherism in what we believe is a justifiable cause.

There is little satisfaction in hearing mourners passing a casket containing a cancer victim say, "He had the nicest teeth . . ."

Drawing The Line

Following editorial is from the Anoka County Union:

In 1962 Russia began installing ballistic missiles in Cuba. Late President John F. Kennedy responded with naval action which moved us precariously close to the brink of war. The Soviets "folded," and the missile threat was eliminated.

In 1970 construction was started on a Russian submarine base in cuba. Former President Richard Nixon firmly warned the Russians that the U.S. would not tolerate such a base 90 miles from our shores. Construction stopped, as the Russians once again backed off.

Now, in 1979, we learn of the presence of a Soviet combat unit in Cuba. President Jimmy Carter applies diplomatic pressure to force the withdrawal or dismantlement of that unit. The Russian response is simply "no." Carter rattles the saber a bit, but accepts the negative reply.

The times have changed. The question is, why? The answer could be the Russians have tested Carter in other parts of the world, and have found him lacking the resoluteness of Nixon and Kennedy. They have seen the present administration retreating step by step in Africa and Asia — why expect anything different in Cuba?

The answer for the changed Russian attitude could also portend an even more serious problem — a switch in the military balance of power. President Carter does not have the military advantage enjoyed by his predecessors — they had the clout required to support decisiveness: This situation is serious because, while we can change the Commander in Chief every four years, we may never be able to regain military superiority — and military power is the only language the communist world understands.

Despite the changed power status, you still have to wonder about the lauting effectiveness of the foreign policy of this administration. President Carter is justly proud of the fact that during his term no Americans have been involved in combat. It's discouraging to realize, however, that this accomplishment has come only as a result of constant accommodation of the potential enemy. Each time the aggressor takes a step forward, we back up a step.

Does appeasement further the cause of peace, or does it increase the ultimate likelihood of war? Doesn't a display of timidity encourage the aggressor to act with less restraint, pushing ever harder toward his goal? Won't the U.S. be forced to draw the line somewhere?

President Carter is undoubtedly correct in stating the few thousand Russian combat troops in Cuba pose no immediate threat to the security of our nation. He also has "Assurances" from Soviet leaders that "they do not intend to enlarge the unit or give it additional capabilities." Even if we foolishly accept the words of these leaders at face value, the presence of a Russian combat unit in Cuba serves as an intimidating influence on all the countries in Central and South America.

Of one thing we can be certain. The Monroe Doctrine is dead. No longer is the Western Hemisphere off-limits for military intervention by foreign powers.

Perhaps the time hasn't come for Carter to draw the line, but do you get the feeling he is steadily painting us into a corner? Where, and when, do we draw that line?

Naderizing Admissions

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

The Naderites have won another one. A coalition of public interest groups spearheaded by the New York Public Interest Research Group, Inc. has gotten the New York State Legislature to pass a "truth in testing" law. This law, the first of its kind in the country, is based on the assumption that the makers of standardized college admissions tests are somehow abusing the power they hold over students' futures. It requires the testers to publicize all the questions they use on their tests, give our the correct answers, and send students copies of their own answers in order to check scores.

What this means is that questions can't be used over, which in turn raises costs considerably. Not surprisingly, the largest of the test administrators has just announced that it's going to raise test fees and cut down on the test dates available to students. Many tests now given in New York may be withdrawn, altogether.

The state legislator chiefly responsible for this bit of public wisdom has acknowledged that it is now uneconomic for the low-volume test producers to operate in New York at all. He intends to seek yet more state government action, he says to handle this problem.

Interesting Opinions:

"Research is a high-hat word that scares a lot of people. It needn't. It is nothing but a state of mind — a friendly, welcoming attitude toward change. It is the problem-solving mind as contrasted with the let-well-enough-alone mind. It is the composer mind instead of the fiddler mind. It is the tommorrow mind instead of the yesterday mind."

—Charles Kettering

"Recognizing our past captivity to our appetites can open us to a new perspective on life, such as Jesus taught in his Sermon on the Mount: Happy are those who renounce selfish ambition, who cease clutching at things. Simple living unclutters the heart and makes room for those things that can have ultimate value."

—David Myers

Borrowed Nonsense:

The young husband was telling an older friend about married life. "When I got home last night," he said, "my wife greeted me with a big kiss. She had a wonderful dinner ready and afterward made me sit in the living room and read the paper while she did up the dishes." The older married man nodded and sighed. "And how did you like her new outfit?" he asked.

"THIS SNAKE is just a baby," Tom Reller of the Minnesota Zoo told elementary youngsters in Thief River Falls Thursday. "That's why he likes to cuddle." The 10-foot anaconda was wrapped securely around his arm.

Change Rule On Food Grants To State Agencies

U.S. department of agriculture recently announced a change in the rules for awarding food assistance grants to state agencies for the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC).

"We have modified the rule to provide a more accurate count of the children who are potentially eligible for the program, and to make sure that funds distributed can be put to effective use," said assistant secretary Carol Tucker Foreman.

Foreman said the rule limits all but very small state agencies to a 50 per cent increase over their fourth quarter funding. Also, increases of 25 per cent or more will be budgeted over the fiscal year, with states receiving more of the increased funds in later quarters.

New rule is designed to provide a more accurate count of low income pregnant women, and to take into account each state agency's average food package costs.

Formula will continue to allocate funds based on a State's infant mortality rate and the number of children in a state agency under five years of age who are at or below twice the federal poverty level. It also takes into account a state agency's previous program funding level as a funding base.

Public comment was invited when the formula was proposed last year. In June, the department asked for further comments to determine whether any changes were needed prior to distribution for fiscal year 1980 funds. Majority of the comments received supported the continued use of the current funding formula with the adjustments outlined above.

Unemployment 3.4 Per Cent In September

Minnesota's unemployment rate in September was 3.4 per cent, unchanged from the August rate, Commissioner Rolf Middleton of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security, announced recently.

Comparable national unemployment rate for September was 5.6 per cent.

State civilian labor force in September was 2,040,800; employment was 1,972,100, and the number of unemployed was 68,800.

Civilian labor force in August was 2,067,200; employment was 1,997,700, and the number of unemployed was 69,600.

In September a year ago, the civilian labor force was 2,028,900; employment was 1,969,100, and the number of unemployed was 59,800.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $281.70 in September for working on average of 40.3 hours at $6.99 per hour. In September last year, production workers averaged 40.7 hours at $6.50 per hour for average weekly earnings of $264.55.

Agassiz Health Review Group Studies Grants

Agassiz health systems agency project review committee will meet on November 1 at 9:30 a.m. at the American Inn, East Grand Forks. Under consideration will be the following grants:

(1) North Country Community Health Services — They will serve the four-county area of Beltrami, Lake of the Woods, Hubbard and Clearwater. Services to be offered include community nursing, home health, disease prevention and control, emergency medical, health education and environmental health. This is a state funded grant for a two-year period. The amount requested will be $208,536 for 1980, and $215,588 for 1981.

(2) Polk County Community Health Services — This will serve Polk county by offering services of community nursing, home health services, health education, disease prevention and control, emergency medical services, environmental health services. This is a state funded grant for a two-year period. The amount requested will be $85,900 for 1980, and $91,000 for 1981.

Community health services act of 1976 was passed by the 1975-76 Minnesota legislature. It provides direct state subsidy to local communities for community health services. Participation in the community health services program is optional. These agencies render a wide variety of services designed to protect and improve the health of people within their geographically defined communities. Funding for CHS agencies stems from federal, state subsidy and local match sources. The state subsidy allocation formula has three factors — per capita income, per capita taxable value and per capta local expenditure for community health services.

(3) Multi-County Board of Health — The goal of this program will be to meet the needs of persons desiring information and-or financial help with methods of contraception. This will be accomplished through outreach, counseling, methods, referral and follow-up services. It will serve Becker, Norman and Mahnomen counties. The total state funding requested is $20,524.

At 1 p.m. the same day, a special task force will meet to discuss the Agassiz area response to national guidelines dealing with: obstetrical services; neonatal special care units; pediatric inpatient services, number of beds and occupancy rates; open heart surgery; cardiac catheterization; radiation therapy; computed tomographic scanners; and end stage renal disease.

Members of the task force are John Vennes, Marge Winbourn and Robert Jacobson, Grand Forks; Roger Panvola, Bagley; John Jensen, Crookston; Ross Marine, Rolla; Stuart Folland, Karlstad; Deane Petersen, Bemidji; Marlys Jackson, Fosston; and Gordon Sommers, Warren.

All Agassiz meetings are open to the public. Anyone interested in further information or more specific agendas should contact Mary Ellen Preston, Agassiz Health Systems Agency, 124 DeMers Avenue, East Grand Forks, Minnesota. (218) 773-2471.

Ring Dike Plan Included In Federal Bill

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced that the conference committee on the agriculture appropriation bill included in its report that the conferees expect the secretary of agriculture to give consideration to allowing, as an approved practice of the agricultural conservation program, a non-structural flood prevention program, including ring dikes, in the Red river basin of North Dakota and Minnesota.

"This is very significant," Stangeland said, "because, out of the 10 to 12 areas that would qualify under such a program, the Red river basin was selected for specific consideration.

"This is very rewarding for me as I have worked hard for a ring dike program. I especially want to thank the county SCS and ASC directors and the county engineers who helped me with statistical information and testimony on this project," Stangeland said.

Slow down and live.

MCCL Annual Meeting Set In St. Cloud

A noted attorney, a leader of the right-to-life cause in Congress and a pro-life woman legislator from Connecticut will headline the eighth annual state convention of Minnesota citizens concerned for life (MCCL) at the St. Cloud Holiday Inn November 3-4. Meeting is expected to draw several hundred pro-lifers from around the state.

Illinois Rep. Henry Hyde, namesake of the Hyde amendment limiting federal abortion funding, will address guests at a Saturday convention luncheon. Hyde has sponsored various pro-life measures in the House of Representatives, the most famous of which is the amendment which bears his name, to the HEW-Labor appropriations bill.

Congress is currently debating the version of the Hyde amendment which will be added to the appropriations legislation for fiscal 1980. The 1979 version limits Medicaid abortion funding to cases in which the mother's life is endangered, in reported cases of rape and incest and when the mother allegedly will suffer serious health damage if her pregnancy is carried to term.

Addressing the Saturday convention banquet will be Patrick Trueman, executive director and general counsel for Americans United for Life and its legal defense fund, an organization involved in virtually every important court case around the nation involving the life issues.

Those attending the Sunday convention luncheon will hear Connecticut state Senator Regina Smith, a leading supporter of pro-life legislation in her state. Sen. Smith was co-founder of the pro-life council of Connecticut and is its past president.

Seminars on a wide variety of topics related to the pro-life movement will be offered during the convention. The weekend will be kicked off with a film festival Friday at 7:30 p.m., which is open to all MCCL members, whether or not they plan to register for the convention. A number of slide and film presentations will also be given during the weekend.

A display room will feature the vast assortment of books, literature, visual aids and other educational materials employed by MCCL to spread the pro-life message. The MCCL Lifemobile will open at 7:30 a.m. November 3, with the opening session scheduled for 9 p.m.

Schools and hospitals are also eligible for grants that cover installation of conservation measures.

Workshop is sponsored by the Northwest regional development commission and the Minnesota energy agency. No advance registration is required.

A workshop on "How to comply with the 65 degree temperature restriction" will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Minn. Milk Producers Have Stable Herds

September milk production of nearly 73 million gallons boosted Minnesota's total output for the first nine months of 1979 to over 818 million gallons, Agriculture commissioner, Mark Seetin reported recently.

Average production per cow for September was 87.8 gallons of milk, a new high for that month that historically is the low point on the annual record for Minnesota milk production.

Also significant and reflecting a continuing stability for the nation's fourth leading dairy farming state was the fact that Minnesota's inventory remained at 830,000 milk cows on the production line for the fourth straight month. That measure of stability last happened back in 1970.

Commissioner Seetin said that the gross farm value of January-September milk production in Minnesota is estimated at $782.5 million, a new high for that period and 16 per cent above the same nine months of 1978.

According to officially estimated prices paid for raw milk, Minnesota dairy farmers received an average of 95.7 cents a gallon for their milk production during the first nine months this year.

Although that represented an increase of 13.8 cents or almost 17 per cent higher than in 1978, Commissioner Seetin pointed out that the increase amounted to less than two cents more per pound, and that in September with the farm milk price at a new high, Minnesota dairy farmers were receiving less than 12 cents a pound for milk. There are 8.6 pounds in the average gallon of milk.

Workshop On Grants Held By Local ARC

Pennington county association for retarded citizens (ARC) hosted a workshop October 20 at the Falls day activity center. A major portion of the workshop dealt with the community social services act (block grants).

Workshop purpose was to acquaint citizens with the new law and how to work with county governments. Abby Struck, MinnARC staff person, led this discussion. Andy Richardson, patient advocate at Brainerd state hospital, gave a presentation on planning processes for organizations. Highlight of the luncheon was a talk on consumer affairs by Irving Martin, St. Paul.

Those attending from Pennington county were Karen Johnson, Shirley Booth, Fern Stenberg, Mrs. Gladys Odegaard, Elta Larson and Ruth Cockrell. Other counties represented were Mahnomen, Kittson-Marshall and Polk.

JAZZ QUARTET will perform November 18 at Northland community college as part of the "Autumn Musicale" program. Jazz quartet, under the direction of Doug Engstrom, consists of Clark Dyrud, flute; Rich Fillafer, drums; Steve Anderson, bass; and Jeanne Harger, piano.

Dates Set For 4-H Forum, Leader Meeting

Dates have been set for the annual Pennington county 4-H leaders forum and the county-wide 4-H junior leader meeting.

October 30 is the date for the annual Pennington county 4-H leaders forum at the Best Western motel from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. University of Minnesota 4-H youth specialists Juanita Reed, Wayne Carlson and Tom Zurcher will be headlining the program.

Topics to be discussed include the 4-H leadership team, awards and motivation, international programs, and helping your junior leaders become leaders. Cost of the forum is $4.50 which includes the noon meal. All 4-H leaders and parents planning to attend are asked to let the extension office know in advance of the meeting so proper arrangements can be made.

October 31 is the date for the county-wide 4-H junior leader meeting at the Pennington county courthouse meeting room from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Meeting will deal with several facets of 4-H junior leadership.

Juanita Reed will also speak at this meeting.

Topics she will discuss include organizing projects, goal setting, resource management and assisting younger 4-H members in the club. All 4-H junior leaders are urged to attend.

Employers Must Report On Form 941 By Oct. 31

October 31 is the date by which employers must report on Form 941 social security and withheld federal income taxes for the third quarter of 1979 and pay any taxes due, the Internal revenue service said. If the quarterly liability (reduced by any deposit during the quarter) is $200 or more, the unpaid balance must be deposited.

This deadline does not apply to those employers who make timely deposits of the full amount of tax due in federal reserve or approved commercial banks. They are allowed until November 13 to file Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return."

If employers have not received Form 941 by mail, they can obtain one from local IRS offices. IRS Publication 15, "Circular E—Employer's Tax Guide," is also available at local offices.

Dairy Farmers Favor Checkoff Three-To-One

Minnesota dairy farmers have voted to continue their "checkoff" for dairy promotion by over three to one.

First dairy promotion order was passed five years ago by a vote of 56 per cent in favor and 44 per cent against. In 1979, with 76.8 per cent of the state's 26,665 dairy farmers voting, only 21.8 per cent voted against.

"These positive results show that Minnesota dairy farmers know the value of dairy promotion and are willing to invest half of one per cent of their pay price for milk to continue the program. Promotional dollars are controlled and administered by the 22 dairy farmers who make up the Minnesota dairy promotion council. This is a real vote of confidence when more dairy farmers voted in favor of the dairy promotion order this time than they did five years ago," stated Cliff Markuson, manager of the American dairy association of Minnesota.

Minnesota's total promotion program for dairy foods is carried out by the advertising program of the American dairy association of Minnesota and the educational program of the dairy, food and nutrition council of Minnesota. Both are under contractual agreements with the Minnesota dairy promotion council.

Title Won't Keep Pirates From Leaving

A Northwest Athletic Conference championship has failed to change the mind of Crookston football coach L. E. Drechsel who wants the Pirates to carry through with their previously-announced plans to leave the NWAC at the end of the 1980 football season.

"My recommendation is for us to withdraw this spring," Drechsel said Friday, moments after his team completed an unbeaten 1979 conference season with a decisive 28-8 victory over Thief River Falls.

But even if Crookston and East Grand Forks officially announce this spring that they are dropping out of the NWAC, the Pirates and Green Wave will both be football-playing conference members for another year.

Declining enrollment is cited as the reason for wanting to leave the Northwest Athletic Conference where Class AA size schools Bemidji and Fergus Falls have been dominant on the gridiron.

"We're dropping in numbers," explained Drechsel. "You can take a look and see that all of our squads are down in size. We don't want to shy away from anybody, but we've got to look out for the kids. We play a competitive schedule — we play Cloquet and St. Peter in nonconference games — but we want to limit it to teams no bigger than double our size; that's where I'd like to draw the line."

This year's Northwest Athletic Conference enrollment figures for the top three grades, according to Minnesota State High School League figures, show Bemidji with 1,208 students, Fergus Falls 996, Thief River Falls 734, Crookston 586 and East Grand Forks 555.

Ironically, Crookston will probably leave the NWAC with back-to-back football pennants. The 1979 Pirates, who will play Saturday in the opening round Class A state playoff quarterfinals, are dominated by juniors.

NWAC Opponents Have Best Records

The 6-3 finishes by Northwest Athletic Conference rivals Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji were the best records posted by Lincoln high school football opponents during the just-completed 1979 football season.

Moorhead was 5-3, Grand Forks Red River and Detroit Lakes 5-4, Crosby-Ironton 4-5, Fergus Falls 3-5 and Staples 1-8.

Crookston's 6-3 regular season record (the Pirates enter Class A post-season play Saturday against the winner of Tuesday's Two Harbors vs. Park Rapids game) included wins over West Fargo 14-12 in overtime, Park Rapids 14-7, Fergus Falls 26-7, East Grand Forks 22-6, Bemidji 15-6 and Thief River Falls 28-8. The Pirates lost to Grand Forks Central 8-7, Cloquet 15-0 and St. Peter 20-15.

East Grand Forks beat Grand Forks Central 16-6, Staples 39-6, Detroit Lakes 27-16, Grafton 15-7, Thief River Falls 20-18 and Fergus Falls 16-12. The Green Wave lost to Grand Forks Red River 25-16, Crookston 22-6 and Bemidji 33-8.

Bemidji knocked off Crosby-Ironton 52-6, Little Falls 14-6, Detroit Lakes 46-20, Park Rapids 26-6, Fergus Falls 32-7 and East Grand Forks 33-8 but lost to Thief River Falls 22-21, Crookston 15-6 and Grand Rapids 27-19.

Moorhead beat Fargo North 10-7, Superior 17-14, Thief River Falls 41-14, Fergus Falls 15-6 and Hibbing 30-13 while losing to Fargo South 22-6, Sioux Falls O'Gorman 14-13 and Grand Rapids 17-14 during an eight-game schedule.

Grand Forks Red River posted wins over Thief River Falls 30-8, East Grand Forks 25-16, West Fargo 12-7, Wahpeton 24-14 and Grand Forks Central 19-7. Losses came at the hands of Jamestown 14-7, Fargo South 21-17, Fargo North 18-7 and Fargo Shanley 73-7.

Detroit Lakes beat Thief River Falls 13-6, Crosby-Ironton 12-8, Aitkin 26-0, Wadena 24-6 and Staples 16-14. The Lakers lost to Fergus Falls 36-0, Bemidji 46-20, East Grand Forks 27-16 and Park Rapids 23-12.

Crosby-Ironton collected wins over Staples 14-0, Park Rapids 14-12, Aitkin 20-8 and Wadena 32-21. The Rangers lost to Bemidji 52-6, Brainerd 12-0, Thief River Falls 26-14, Paynesville 28-0 and Detroit Lakes 12-8.

Playing an eight-game schedule, Fergus Falls beat Detroit Lakes 36-0, Montevideo 21-18 and Thief River Falls 28-22 while losing to Alexandria 7-6, Crookston 26-7, Bemidji 32-7, Moorhead 15-6 and East Grand Forks 16-12.

Staples beat only Wadena 12-6 in overtime. The Cardinals lost to Pelican Rapids 18-6, Perham 26-0, East Grand Forks 39-6, Thief River Falls 37-0, Crosby-Ironton 14-0, Aitkin 28-8, Park Rapids 32-12 and Detroit Lakes 16-14.

Miscellaneous

Bemidji, Tech Runners Win In 8AA Races

Bemidji and St. Cloud Tech won team honors Saturday in the 1979 Region 8AA high school cross country meet held at Melrose.

The Lumberjacks won the boys title with 56 points, followed by Alexandria with 88, St. Cloud Apollo 117, Moorhead 119, Little Falls 145, St. Cloud Tech 153, Cold Spring-Rocori 161, Brainerd 182, East Grand Forks 231, Thief River Falls 285, Sauk Rapids 331, Detroit Lakes 344, Melrose 372, Crookston 381, Park Rapids 387 and Fergus Falls 415.

Top five individual place finishers earned spots in the 1979 Class AA state cross country meet scheduled to be held Friday at the University of Minnesota golf course in Minneapolis. Joe Ripperger of Alexandria won the three-mile race in 15:08, followed by Ron Wolfe of Bemidji in 15:10, Brian Kraft of Bemidji in 15:11, Mark Ryskamp of Alexandria in 15:26 and Jeff Massman of Cold Spring-Rocori in 15:34.

Thief River Falls' top runner was Greg Ness who placed 21st in the field of 113 with a 16:21. "He had an excellent effort," said Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann of Ness. "It was a good time in a strong field of runners."

Rest of the Prowlers included Bruce Johnson, 47th; Steve Hvidsten, 66th; Mark Broadwell, 61st; Bob Fitzgerald, 80th; Terry Johnson, 88th; and Chuck Lowell, 93rd.

"Their times weren't all that bad," noted McGann, "but it was a super strong field."

St. Cloud Tech took the girls trophy with 45 points, followed by St. Cloud Apollo with 82, Sauk Rapids 87, Moorhead 101, Little Falls 123, Park Rapids 234, Cold Spring Rocori 138, East Grand Forks 233, Melrose 259 and Thief River Falls 303.

Jane Remark of Moorhead headed the top five state meet qualifiers with an 11:05 two-mile run, followed by Liz Feiler of Tech, Nancy Pitman of Tech, Mary Beth Sova of Sauk Rapids and Anne Hicks of Apollo.

Margaret White led the Thief River Falls girls with a 52nd place effort in a field of 70 with her personal best 14:07.

Rest of the Lincoln girls included LeeAnn Peterson, 59th; Pam Swenson, 61st; Trisha Armstrong, 64th; Nancy Nelson, 67th; Brenda Blazek, 68th; and Sue Anderson, 69th.

Deer License Must be Bought Before Opener

Minnesota deer hunters were given a final reminder by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources that they must purchase their licenses no later than Nov. 2 — the day before the firearms season opens. This includes bow and arrow, muzzle loader and firearms deer hunters.

Buck-only deer hunting opens on Nov. 3 statewide this year. Under a recently passed law, licenses must be purchased the day before the opening date.

Prior to this year, licenses could be purchased as late as the opening day of the season. The practice led to abuses, said enforcement officials, with hunters shooting extra deer and then buying licenses for relatives or friends to account for the illegally taken animals.

CROOKSTON RUNNINGBACK John Paul gained eight yards to the Thief River Falls four-yard line, setting up the Pirates' final touchdown in their 28-8 win over the Prowlers Friday before being brought down by defensive end Jim Nyland (81) in the fourth quarter of the Northwest Athletic Conference football game played here. Paul cut inside of Thief River Falls defensive back Tom Bjorkman (10). Thief River Falls finished the 1979 season with a 3-6 record, just the opposite of the Pirates' 6-3 mark. As NWAC champion, Crookston will advance to the Class A state football playoffs.

Prowlers Unable To Stop Pirates In 28-8 Season-Ending Defeat

Winning coach L. E. Drechsel summed it up pretty well Friday after his state playoff-bound Crookston squad completed an unbeaten Northwest Athletic conference high school football season with a 28-8 win over Thief River Falls when he said, "If Thief River could have stopped us defensively, it would have been a helluva ball game. But they couldn't keep us out of the end zone, and that's the name of the game."

Drechsel was right. Thief River Falls couldn't stop Crookston's no-nonsense, straight-ahead offense. The Prowlers never forced the Pirates to punt, and outside of their game-opening drive that died inches short of a first down at the Thief River Falls 32-yard line, the Pirates never even faced a fourth down situation.

After using 15 plays and seven minutes without scoring on their first possession, Crookston used just one play and eight seconds to score the second time the Pirates touched the ball as Steve Johnson broke off a straight-ahead dive play for an 80-yard touchdown run on first down after a Tom Bjorkman punt into the end zone. Johnson, switched from quarterback to runningback midway through the 1979 season, stiff-armed a linebacker and cut to his left to out-race the Thief River Falls secondary. Strong-legged Bob Clauson made the first of his four conversion kicks for a 7-0 start with 2:03 left in the first quarter.

Crookston held Thief River Falls to three plays and a punt, then marched 75 yards in 11 time-consuming plays for a two-yard Mark Berg dive off left tackle near the halfway mark of the second quarter. A 31-yard run by Brent Weiss was the big gainer on the play as he put a great move on a linebacker and bounced off a defensive back to carry the ball from the Crookston 48 to the Thief River Falls 21-yard line. Berg scored four plays later and it remained 14-0 at halftime.

Thief River Falls made its move offensively at the start of the second half when the Prowlers marched 74 yards in 16 plays with the second half kickoff for a one-yard touchdown run by fullback John Dillon. The determined Prowlers actually had to gain 94 yards on the drive when they picked up back-to-back penalties after enjoying a first down at the Crookston five-yard line. Set back to the 20, the Prowlers quickly got back to the 10 on a 15-yard sweep right by Bill Jury who took the ball to the goal line two plays later to set up Dillon's straight-ahead dive. Jury reached the right corner of the end zone on the two-point conversion to bring the Prowlers to within 14-8 with 6:04 remaining in the third quarter.

But whatever upset hopes the Prowlers harbored were lost when they surrendered 61 yards and a touchdown in just eight plays. Johnson rebuilt the Crookston lead to 21-8 when he dashed 26 yards with a reverse right that had 10 Prowlers going the wrong way. He got by the 11th defender to avoid a loss and had clear sailing the rest of the way.

"Thief River is really explosive on offense," noted Drechsel, "but they had problems on defense."

Thief River Falls failed to convert a fourth down try for first down near midfield on the ensuing possession, setting Crookston up for a fourth quarter touchdown. John Paul scored it on a one-yard run off the left side to finish a 10-play, 44-yard drive with 8:19 left.

Crookston finished the year with a 6-3 record, 4-0 in the NWAC where a conference championship will send the Pirates into the Class A state playoffs Saturday. The Pirates will face either Mid-State champion Park Rapids or Seaway Conference winner Two Harbors Saturday. The Panthers and Agates meet Tuesday at Two Harbors in a qualifying game, with the winner hosting the Pirates in the quarterfinals.

"We've really come on since our loss to Cloquet (Sept. 28)," pointed out Drechsel who said that was about the time the coaches finally settled on a starting unit and stuck with it. "We decided to put 11 players on the field. When we did that we really started to jell," he explained. "We moved Tim Knotek to quarterback in place of Steve Johnson, and made Johnson a runningback. Knotek's been doing a super job and Johnson gives us a power runner. That switch was the key."

Johnson powered his way to a 141-yard rushing performance Friday, getting 105 of those in the first half thanks to that 80-yard touchdown run. He carried only twice in the second half, but for 36 yards.

Thief River Falls, after opening Northwest Athletic Conference play with a 22-21 upset victory over defending champion and preseason favorite Bemidji, finished in disappointing fashion by losing three straight season-ending NWAC games to complete a 3-6 campaign.

Lincoln Serving Is Key In Win At EGF

Led by senior Nancy Noreen, Thief River Falls servers proved to be expert marksmen Thursday in a 2-0 high school volleyball win at East Grand Forks.

The Prowlers' serving success was a remarkably high 93 per cent in an 18-3 first game romp, with Noreen serving six consecutive points. She bettered that in the second game, though, by serving seven straight points as the Prowlers won 18-10.

It was the final regular season match for the Prowlers who will take a 9-7 record into the 1979 North Half Region 8AA tournament at Moorhead. Saturday's first round matches will find Thief River Falls playing Bemidji at 2 p.m.; East Grand Forks vs. Fergus Falls at 3:30; Crookston vs. Park Rapids at 7; and Detroit Lakes vs. Moorhead at 8:30.

North Half Region 8AA semifinals and finals will be played Thurs., Nov. 8, at Moorhead.

Thief River Falls junior varsity ended its 1979 season with an 8-6 record, losing its Thursday finale as East Grand Forks came up with a 4-18, 18-9, 18-12 decision.

AIDED BY A little undetected holding on his left side, Golden Valley Lutheran runningback Greg Rieck scored from the Northland six-yard line in the third quarter of Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division college football game played in Thief River Falls. Rieck avoided Northland's John Swan (64) and cut inside of Jim McCue (16) while an unidentified teammate hauled down Northland's Jeff Reese (74). Rieck's touchdown made it a 21-3 ball game and the Royals, ranked fifth in the latest national junior college football polls, went on to beat the Northmen 34-3. It was the final home appearance of the 1979 season for the Northmen who close out the year Saturday at Crookston.

Northland Fumbles Make Things Easy For Royal Who Win 34-3

Opposing coaches Irv Smith of Northland community college and Dave Skrien of Golden Valley Lutheran differed on the reasons why they happened, but both had to agree that five Northland fumbles were obvious factors Saturday afternoon as Skrien's Royals turned those ball-handling mistakes into four touchdowns and an easy 34-3 MJCAA Northern Division football win on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

"They gave us a few breaks," admitted Skrien whose unbeaten Royals were ranked fifth in the latest national junior college power poll. But he said it was more than just luck involved. His defense, he said, deserved credit for forcing those fumbles. "They were hitting hard," he said of his defense. "When you get hit pretty hard and you fumble, it's more than luck. You get hit hard again and again, you're going to fumble sooner or later."

Smith disagreed. "That's the worst we've fumbled all year, but I don't think their defense had that much to do with it. I don't know what the problem was."

Whatever the reason, Northland simply turned the game over to Golden Valley. Every score by the Royals followed a mistake by the Northmen. In fact, the first Golden Valley touchdown followed two Northland errors — fourth down penalties that turned Golden Valley punts into first downs.

Instead of punting on a fourth-and-three from their own 44-yard line midway through the first quarter, the Royals maintained possession on a Northland offside. Three minutes later a fourth-and-five punt from the roughing-the-kicker penalty.

Four plays later halfback Tom Ogden scored on a draw play from the six. Rick Altonen, four-for-five on his conversion kicks for the day, made it 7-0 with 1:59 remaining in the first quarter.

That was the only scoring of the first half by the Royals who failed to convince the few fans on hand that they were the nation's fifth best junior college football team.

Instead, Northland gave the Twin Cities visitors a run for their money, trailing just 7-3 at halftime on a 28-yard Jeff Gobell field goal with 5:46 left.

"They sure gave a good first half," noted Skrien. Smith agreed with Skrien on that point. "I thought we really out-played them in the first half," he said. "In the second half we just fumbled the ball away."

And it could have been a 7-7 game at halftime. But a crucial five-yard delay of game penalty charged against the Northmen set them back to the nine after they had netted a first down at the four. A 48-yard burst off right tackle by tailback Mike Cowart produced most of yards on the 13-play, 81-yard drive.

"Our offensive line did a tremendous job," praised Smith who gave special recognition to Tom Buell, a converted defensive tackle, who won a personal duel with Golden Valley defensive tackle Mark Robideax. "That number 72 (Robideax) is one of the best down linemen in the conference. Nobody in the conference has handled him all year," noted Smith.

But the second half was all give-and-take; Northland gave the ball away and Golden Valley took it in for touchdowns.

Northland quarterback Tony Smith hit wide receiver Dan Levenhagen with a 17-yard first down pass in the third quarter, but Levenhagen, after bouncing off one tackler, fumbled when hit by a second defender, with defensive back Larry Rupp falling on the ball at the Northland 42.

Eleven plays later Golden Valley quarterback Scott Sheriden wiggled into the end zone from the one. Altonen made it 14-3 with 5:01 left.

Another Northland turnover followed immediately when Cowart, on first down after the kickoff, lost the ball to linebacker Joe Laurinaitis at the Northland 31.

Sheridan passed 26 yards to a wide open Joel Quinnell on the right side and then handed off to Greg Rieck who had a huge hole to run through from the six for a 21-3 cushion with 3:54 to play in the third quarter.

On the first play of the fourth quarter little-used Northland fullback Andy Arango lost a first down and the ball at the Northland 27.

A 15-yard holding call set Golden Valley back, but Sheriden quickly made up those yards with a 32-yard screen pass to highly-touted Dan Johnson who lived up to his nickname "Bomber" by running over a defensive back to reach the 10. Sheriden scored on another quarterback sneak from the one for a 28-3 spread.

Fifth and final Northland fumble — this time a fair catch punt lost by Alan Johnson at the Northland 28 — was immediately followed by a 27-yard touchdown pass on screen toss by back-up quarterback Dean Davis to Ogden. Altonen's kick was blocked after the snap was bobbled. But it was 34-3 with 5:22 left.

Northland, 2-6, will close out its 1979 season Saturday at Crookston. Golden Valley Lutheran, 8-0, has completed its regular season MJCAA schedule, but as Northern Division champion will appear in the MJCAA state playoff game Nov. 11, against the Southern Division representative at Macalester college.

ONE OF FIVE fumbles lost by the Northland community college football team Saturday afternoon was picked up by Golden Valley Lutheran linebacker Joe Laurinaitis (55) at the Northland 31-yard line in the third quarter. Three plays later a 14-3 game became a 21-3 contest and the Northern Division champion Royals went on to beat the Northmen 34-3.

Agassiz Refuge Given $923,000 For New Center

A contract was awarded in September at Agassiz national wildlife refuge for the construction of a new maintenance center. Prichard Brothers, Inc. and Harold and Robert Kertz were awarded the contract for $923,000.

The new multi-purpose maintenance center will be located five miles east of the existing headquarters, and one mile north on the airport road. Maintenance center will provide an expanded and improved building for vehicle maintenance, carpentry work and other refuge maintenance activities. There will also be an unheated storage building for vehicles and other equipment.

Existing buildings at Agassiz were built primarily by the Civilian Conservation corps in the late 1930's.

"Refuge needs have exceeded the small shop facilities that presently exist. Maintenance activities in the existing headquarters have also posed potential safety hazards to the visiting public. By separating maintenance activities from administrative and visitor functions, the refuge operation will function more safely and efficiently," stated Joe Kotok, refuge manager.

Site work on the project was started last week with completion scheduled for September of 1980. Harold Kertz, president of Prichard Bros., stated that they will work with as many local subcontractors and vendors as possible.

Kotok is the project leader and Dick Vasse, assistant refuge manager, will be the project inspector. The new facility will be constructed of reinforced concrete with a truss joist roof system and cedar plank siding. Solar heating is included in the design of the complex. Ray C. Olson and Bob Kertz are the project coordinators for Prichard Bros.

Remind Hunters Of Minnesota Trespass Law

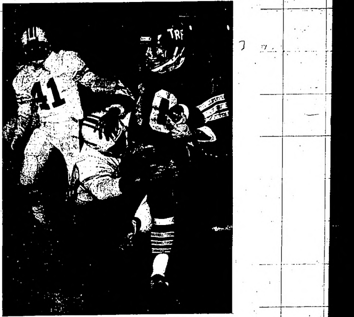
With Minnesota's pheasant season opening Oct. 27 and deer season opening Nov. 3, hunters were reminded by the Department of Natural Resources of the new law on trespassing.

For hunters, the most important provision in the law reads, "No person shall enter upon the agricultural lands of another with the intent of hunting big or small game, unless and until the permission of the owner, occupant or lessee is obtained."

"Agricultural lands" are defined as lands containing plowed or tilled fields, standing crops or their residues, or lands with a maintained fence for the purpose of enclosing domestic livestock.

Officials pointed out that this means farmers no longer have to post their fields to legally exclude hunters.

Hunters who wish to hunt any of the types of lands described above will have to obtain permission first.



HELD TO SHORT yardage on this first quarter play, Thief River Falls halfback Tom Bjorkman was brought down at the Prowlers' 43-yard line as he tried to take an option pitch around the right side of the Crookston defense during Friday's high school football game played here. Roy Mueller (41) watched as a Crookston teammate tackled Bjorkman after a two-yard gain. The Pirates beat the Prowlers 28-8.

Prowlers Resume Schedule With Win At Fergus Falls

A schedule break that spanded nearly two weeks ended Thursday for the Lincoln high school swimming team as the Prowlers turned in a strong performance at Fergus Falls to beat the Otters 102-70.

"It was a good meet for us," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "The kids are making some improvements now."

Franki Kuyath was a double winner for the Prowlers, swimming her personal dual meet best 1:17.8 in the 100-yard breaststroke and winning the 500-yard freestyle in 6:15. It was her first 500 of the year as Hustad made several line-up changes.

"We made some changes to give the kids some variations," mentioned Hustad, "and to find out just where our strengths are."

Brenda Lund did not change events, though, and the Thief River Falls diving star set a new Fergus Falls pool record with 221.1 points.

Other Thief River Falls winners were Johanna Desrocher with a 2:33.1 in the 200-yard individual medley; Betsie Hallstrom with a 27.1 in the 50-yard freestyle; Joan Glauque with a 1:10.8 in the 100-yard butterfly; and Kathy Dillon, Kuyath, Glauque and Hallstrom with a 2:04.3 — their fastest time ever — in the 200-yard medley relay.

Fergus Falls standout Barb Hefte won the 100-yard freestyle in 58.1, took the 200-yard freestyle in 2:13.1 and swam the anchor leg on the Otters' 400-yard freestyle relay team that was a winner in 4:09.4.

Thief River Falls will make its first home appearance since Oct. 2 on Tuesday when the Prowlers, now 4-4 in dual meet competition, host Detroit Lakes at 5 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool.

Pheasants Are Reported Down In Minnesota

Lower pheasant populations and the likelihood of many unharvested corn fields closed to hunting were expected to make things tough when the season opened Saturday.

Wildlife officials at the Department of Natural Resources said an additional problem will be very heavy cover — a result of the excessive moisture which fell on southern and western Minnesota this summer.

Weather conditions made it difficult to obtain an accurate idea of the pheasant population this year, said officials, but the figures indicate that fall pheasant numbers have declined statewide about 31 per cent from last year.

In the southern one third of the state, the populations seems to have fallen 45 per cent. Wildlife biologists blamed a continuing loss of nesting habitat. They also said that the wet weather caused the loss of many nests and newly hatched chicks this spring and summer.

Many farmers are allowing their corn to stand longer this fall in order to dry out. This means some fields will be closed to hunters.

Hunters are reminded that permission must be obtained to hunt on any agricultural land. The trespass law is printed in the hunting regulations and all hunters should read it before going afield.

Pheasants declined about 44 per cent in east central Minnesota, including the Twin Cities metro area. The only increase observed was in the west central part of the state, but officials said the increase was "statistically insignificant".

Last year there were 156,000 rooster pheasant hunters in the field. Approximately 408,000 birds were taken, the highest figure since 1964 when 700,000 were bagged.

Although Hungarian partridge numbers also declined this year, the population is still at a high level in the southwestern counties and outnumber pheasants nearly 9 to 1. Last season a record 132,000 Hungarian partridge were taken.

Bag limit on pheasants this season is two roosters per day with a possession limit of four. Shooting hours are 9 a.m. to sunset and the season closes Dec. 2.

Hungarian partridge season opened Sept. 15 and closes Dec. 31. The bag limit is five daily and 10 in possession.

Mink-Muskrat Trapping Has Two Openers

Mink and muskrat trappers in Minnesota start their season on Oct. 27 or on Nov. 3 — depending upon which part of the state they set their traps, the Department of Natural Resources noted.

The state has been divided into a north and south zone for this year's season with a one week difference in the opening dates.

Purpose, explained wildlife officials, is to harvest the animals while their furs are prime. A map showing the location of the zone line is found on page 12 of the small game and trapping regulations, available from license agents and county auditors.

Trapping in the north zone opened Oct. 27 and in the south on Nov. 3. The season will close Dec. 25 in both zones.

There is no limit on the number of mink and muskrat that may be taken but a license is required and there are numerous other regulations that must be followed.

Officials urged trappers to read the regulations carefully before setting any traps.

Several state wildlife management areas in southwestern Minnesota are closed to trapping again this year as part of a research project to determine the effects of trapping on mink and muskrat populations.

Restricted areas are posted and are located in the following counties: Jackson, Lac Qui Parle, Lincoln, Lyon, Murray, Nobles, Redwood and Yellow Medicine.

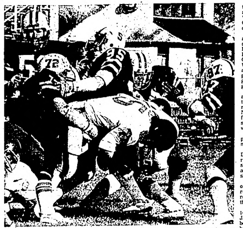
TOP RUNNINGBACK IN Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division football game played in Thief River Falls was Northland community college tailback Mike Cowart (3) who rushed for 105 yards on 16 carries against unbeaten Golden Valley Lutheran. But the Royals were easy 34-3 winners over the Northmen.



DEFENSIVE EFFORTS BY Northland's Todd Tangen (72), Jose Cabrera (95), Scott Chapman (52), Jeff Reese (74) and Zayne Poltier (97) failed to keep Golden Valley Lutheran quarterback Scott Sheridan out of the end zone as the sophomore signal caller scored on a one-yard quarterback sneak in the third quarter of Saturday's college football game played here. Sheridan's touchdown provided the Royals with a 14-3 lead that later became a 34-3 win.

Pirates' Title Ends 1979 NWAC Football Season

Strong finishes by Crookston and East Grand Forks, along with disappointing finishes by Bemidji and Thief River Falls ended the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference football season.

Crookston completed a perfect 4-0 NWAC schedule with a 28-8 victory over Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks matched the Pirates' 6-3 overall record with a 16-12 victory over Fergus Falls.

Meanwhile, Bemidji dropped a 27-19 nonconference decision at Grand Rapids, the third loss in four games for the Lumberjacks who opened the year with five straight wins before losing to Thief River Falls. However, the Prowlers who looked like prime NWAC contenders when they opened their conference play with that win over the Lumberjacks, lost three straight season-ending league games.

— EGF 16, Fergus Falls 12

John Roche scored on a one-yard plunge with just 18 seconds remaining in the game to lift East Grand Forks to a come-from-behind 16-12 win over Fergus Falls.

Roche supplied the Green Wave with an early lead when he connected on a 36-yard field goal. Bill Krueger's eight-yard third quarter touchdown put the Otters on the board, but the see-saw lead went back to East Grand Forks on Dave Swanberg's 12-yard touchdown pass from Jeff Strandell later that same quarter.

Brian Wentworth's four-yard touchdown run put the Otters back on top 12-10 to start the fourth quarter.

Grand Rapids 27, Bemidji 19

Mistakes and fumbles were Bemidji downfalls as the Lumberjacks lost to Grand Rapids 27-19.

Bemidji scored first on John Herath's one-yard run, but two Grand Rapids scores put the Indians ahead 12-7 at halftime.

Herath scored again late in the third quarter to give Bemidji a brief 13-12 lead, but Chris White broke loose on a 52-yard run to put Grand Rapids ahead to stay. Nelson Rotto narrowed the gap to 20-19 on a dazzling 69-yard run, but Tom Rothstein put the game out of reach with 2:25 remaining.

Rotto led Bemidji with 121 yards on 12 carries, with Dale Leonard adding an even 100.

Deadline Set For NWF Grant Applications

National Wildlife Federation has set a deadline of December 31, 1979, for applications from graduate students for its 1980-81 environmental conservation fellowships.

To be eligible applicants must be citizens of the United States, Canada or Mexico who are pursuing degrees in a college or university graduate program or law school. They must be principally engaged in research, rather than course work, in fields related to wildlife, resources management, or the protection of environmental quality. The grants range up to $4,000.

In addition to the NWF fellowships, which have been awarded for the past 22 years, the federation has since 1971 also awarded joint fellowships with the American Petroleum Institute for studies involving petroleum and the conservation of resources. The deadline for the NWF-API fellowship is also December 31.

For information, including a list of priority topics, and an application form, write the Executive Vice President, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Scots, Warriors Are 1979 Playoff Teams

First place ties were featured in the final North Tri County and Top of the State high school football conference standings, but based upon head-to-head results, McIntosh-Winger and Warroad will be representing those two leagues in post-season play.

McIntosh-Winger shared the North Tri County Conference pennant with Gonvick, but the Scots beat the Bulldogs 14-8 in a season-ending title showdown Tuesday. The victory gave the Scots a post-season berth and they responded with a 33-16 victory over Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy Friday in a qualifying game to the 1979 state nine-man playoffs.

Opening round quarterfinal foe for McIntosh-Winger Friday will be Lake Park, a 38-12 winner over Crookston Mount St. Benedict in the Agassiz Valley Conference championship playoff Friday that featured the North (MSB) and South Half titlists.

To complete the final week of North Tri County Conference scores, Mentor outscored Goodridge 48-26, Middle River bombed Clearbrook 52-12, Plummer stopped Erskine 14-6 and Oklee doubled Grygla 28-14.

Warroad and Stephen shared the Top of the State Conference crown this fall, but the Warriors beat the Tigers two weeks ago this year to advance into post-season play where Warroad will meet Park Region Conference champion Battle Lake Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Moorhead State University in an opening round Class C quarterfinal game.

In last week's final Top of the State Conference games, Warroad edged Argyle 12-6, Roseau hammered Lake of the Woods 50-12, Stephen shut out Hallock 44-0, Marshall County Central blanked East Grand Forks 30-0 and Karlstad downed Greenbush 23-8.

Officials Report DNR Trees Are Nearly Sold Out

Supplies of most species of trees produced by DNR tree nurseries have already been sold out for the season, it was announced.

The department has been taking orders for trees since September 1 for shipment next spring.

Officials said demand for the 12 million seedlings available has been "tremendous" this year. Orders are filled on a first come, first served basis.

Eight species are still available for the southern counties of Dodge, Faribault, Fillmore, Freeborn, Goodhue, Houston, Martin, Mower, Olmsted, Rice, Steele, Wabasha and Winona. They are white, Norway and jack pine, black spruce, red cedar, green ash, caragena and ginnala maple.

Five species remain available for the remainder of the state. These are soft maple, poplar, green ash, Norway and jack pine. Officials expect the pine to be sold out within the next two weeks.

A few wildlife windbreak packets are available but are not expected to last long.

Seedlings are sold by the DNR for purposes of reforestation, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control and permanent food and shelter for wildlife.

This may not be planted for ornamental purposes or resold, given away or removed from the ground with the roots attached.

Orders for tree stock in the 14 southern counties close January 31. These trees have been lifted from the nursery beds and frozen for shipment in early spring before the ground thaws at the nursery.

Orders for the remainder of the state close March 15. Forestry officials urge those seeking trees to send orders immediately before all trees are sold out.

Price lists, order blanks and other information can be obtained from DNR forestry offices, ASCS (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) offices, county extension offices or by contacting DNR forestry, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. Phone (612) 296-4479, or toll-free (612) 652-9747.

Water And Health Conference Slated

A conference on water and health — believed to be the first of its kind in the United States — will feature nationally prominent professionals from the fields of medicine, health, agriculture and government at an event set for November 1 and 2 at the Radisson South hotel on highway 100 in Bloomington.

Key speakers will include Michael Halberstam, M.D.; Richard Wade, Ph.D. and Kim Hooper, Ph.D. Halberstam is a nationally syndicated columnist and contributing editor to "Modern Medicine" magazine. Wade, former director of the Minnesota department of health, spearheaded studies of groundwater contamination in St. Louis Park and Southeastern Minnesota. He is currently director of the health division of the California department of industrial relations. He will provide an update of his studies and offer some solutions. Hooper is researching carcinogens (substances producing cancer) at the University of California in Berkeley. He will outline a way of measuring the potency of carcinogens to predict which doses cause harm.

Major questions which will be considered include "What's the problem with our water?" "What more do we need to know about the problem?" "Are we aware of the hazards to our health?" and "How can we change public attitudes, behavior and policy about water pollution?"

Sponsored by the Minnesota medical association, the freshwater society and the Minnesota department of health, the conference will be moderated by Paul Cashman, Ph.D., professor of speech and communications at the University of Minnesota (U of M), and summarized by Joseph Rossillon, Ph.D., executive director of the freshwater biological research foundation, Navarre.

Most prominent question, "Can I drink the water?" will be dealt with comprehensively by the major speakers and others, including Conrad Straub, Ph.D.; Joseph Lakowicz, Ph.D.; Howard Andersen, Ph.D. and Maurice Mittlemark, Ph.D.

Straub, a world health organization consultant, is also professor and director of the environmental health program at the U of M. Lakowicz, a principal investigator with the Gray Freshwater biological institute, is known for his studies on how toxic substances move through cell membranes. One of his research projects deals with the high rate of cancer among smokers who work with asbestos fibers. Andersen is a professor and consultant at Mayo medical school in Rochester. He will explore what physicians and scientists can do to change public attitude and behavior toward water and health problems.

Mittlemark, assistant professor in the school of public health at the U of M, will describe how the public dictates health policy. According to Mittlemark, "It is special interest groups, media, and other innovators who arouse awareness and set the agenda for public policy." He will suggest ways that such innovators can capitalize on their influence.

Pollution "gets personal when one talks about water and health together", according to Dr. Valentine O'Malley of the Minnesota medical association. "Everyone should begin to realize we're living under an entirely different set of rules than we were ten years ago," O'Malley said. He noted that the environment has a remarkable cleaning system, but it was never designed to remove the millions of tons of waste that are put into it. Of the 30,000 chemicals used today, and the 1,000 more created each year, many find their way into the water supplies, O'Malley said. At present there is no practical way of taking the chemicals out of the water, he noted, adding, "Unless we act now to bring about meaningful changes, the suffering and health care costs of the future will be astronomical."

A registration fee of $65 ($75 at the door) will cover two meals and all presentations. Conference will begin at 4 p.m. Nov. 1, and end at 4:45 p.m. Nov. 2.

Conference coordinator is Christine Olsenius, who is coordinator of the freshwater society, the membership arm of the freshwater biological research foundation. Foundation is the organization which built the Gray freshwater biological research institute. Society supports freshwater research and public information programs.

Medical Staff Officers Named At R. L. Falls

With the addition of two new physicians to St. John's hospital officers of the medical staff were elected recently.

Elected as chief of staff was Dr. Ahmad Nakib who has been on the staff for just over one year and is a surgeon who also does family practice.

Elected vice chief of staff was Dr. Rodolfo Mirandilla who joined the hospital staff on August 20 and is a family practitioner.

Dr. Owen T. Nelson was elected secretary of the medical staff. He recently started his practice in Red Lake Falls and is also a family practitioner.

Terms of office are for one year and officers are normally elected at the annual spring meeting of the staff. Once the nominees have been nominated from the active medical staff, they are presented to the hospital governing board for final approval.

Pathfinders To Collect Canned Food For Needy

Instead of seeking treats for themselves, Pathfinder club members of the Seventh-day Adventist church will seek canned goods for area residents. The canned items will be used to supplement fresh fruit, vegetables and baked goods provided for the needy by the SDA community center. Fifty Thanksgiving baskets are needed this year to bring cheer to area shut-ins. Pathfinder club members will go from door to door Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m. and will cover the streets of Kneale, Crocker, Tindolph and Kendall.

DOUG ENGSTROM directs 60 members from throughout northwestern Minnesota who will be performing with the community band during the "Autumn Musicale" to be presented at NCC November 18.

CLOSE-UP VIEW of this anaconda from the Minnesota state zoo was obtained by youngsters attending zoomobile programs at local elementary schools Thursday in Thief River Falls. Students were given the option of touching the snake as they left the program, finding out that the reptiles are not cold nor slimy as they are often purported to be.

ALMOST CUDDLY is this opossum, held by interpretive aide Tom Reller of the Minnesota zoo, during a zoomobile program at Knox elementary school Thursday. Students attending had an opportunity to touch the opossum and the 10-foot anaconda as they left the program.

U of M Sixth In Money From Private Donors

University of Minnesota ranked sixth among the nation's colleges and universities in the amount of money received from private sources in 1977-78.

Figures were compiled by the council for financial aid to education (CFAE) and published in its most recent annual survey on private gifts to higher education.

In 1977-78, the University of Minnesota received $34,550,935 from private sources, including corporations, foundations, alumni and other individuals, according to the CFAE survey.

Although the amount given to the university was the sixth largest among all private and public institutions, it was the second largest amount given to a land-grant university. University of California system ranked first among all public and private institutions with $66,968,571 in gifts.

According to the CFAE results, gifts to higher education from corporations, foundations, alumni and other individuals rose substantially in 1977-78. Largest source of private support of the 822 institutions participating in the survey was non-alumni individuals, while the largest source of giving to the 81 land-grant colleges and universities participating was corporations.

Religious denominations contributed 61.4 per cent more money to land-grant institutions than they did in 1976-77.

Among the public land-grant institutions reporting, the University of Minnesota ranked tenth in the amount of money received from corporations, fifth in the amount received from foundations and fourth in the amount received from non-alumni individuals.

MAC Meetings Will Be Held In Bloomington

Production Credit association of Thief River Falls will be represented this year at the 34th annual meeting of the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives today and Tuesday at the Radisson South hotel in Bloomington.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenord Swanson will attend the MAC meeting as representatives of PCA, along with some 400 other co-op people from across the state.

The 24th cooperative conference for youth will be held in conjunction with the MAC meeting. The youth are sponsored to the conference by their local cooperatives and more than 330 Minnesota youth are expected to attend.

Murray Semanko will be sponsored to the two-day cooperative conference, which teaches the youth basic cooperative principles.

The theme of the annual meeting will be "Cooperatives: Good For All Americans".

During other business at the MAC meeting, members will elect new directors and adopt new resolutions on current issues facing cooperatives.

State Third In Supplying All U.S. Oilseeds

Latest estimates on 1979 field crops production based on October 1 surveys reveal that Minnesota now is the nation's third leading supplier of vegetable oilseeds, agriculture commissioner, Mark Seetin said recently.

Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service estimates show that Minnesota farmers are harvesting all time high soybean and sunflower seed crops, although total estimated field crops tonnage this year is about seven per cent below the 1978 production.

Minnesota's 1979 vegetable oilseed crops are estimated at 173.58 million bushels of soybeans and 2 billion, 32.55 million pounds of sunflower seeds. Combined these crops represent 6,223,675 tons and almost nine per cent of the national total forecast.

Nationally, Minnesota ranks second to North Dakota in sunflower seed and fourth behind Illinois, Iowa and Missouri in soybeans. Minnesota also is the third ranked producer of flaxseed, from which inedible linseed oil is extracted.

Commissioner Seetin said that the October crops estimates show that Minnesota farmers this year expect to harvest nearly 41.3 million tons of 14 principal field crops. That compares with 44.2 million tons of the same crops harvested last year. Minnesota's estimated 1979 crops tonnage represents 7.3 per cent of the national total.

Minnesota's combined oilseed and grain crops add up in the latest estimates to nearly 27.2 million tons that will be available for domestic and export buyers during the new global marketing year. That includes 18.2 million tons of feed grains and 2.6 million tons of wheat in addition to the 6.3 million tons of oilseeds.

House In Mpls. To Aid Child Cancer Patients

A long-awaited home away from home for children undergoing treatment for cancer, and their families, has officially opened in Minneapolis. The building, called the Ronald McDonald house, is located at 621 Oak Street S.E., near the University of Minnesota campus. It will house eight families at a cost of $5 per night, or less if funds are unavailable.

Home is owned and operated by the children's oncology services of the Upper Midwest (COSUM), a group made up of parents of children who are being or have been treated for cancer, the physicians and nurses who provide that treatment and other concerned persons. Cost of the renovation project is approximately $500,000. That includes the renovation of the house and purchase of plots of land for a second phase of the project — a ten-bedroom addition later.

Need for the Ronald McDonald house grew out of significant advances in the treatment of pediatric oncology (children's cancer) during the past ten years. While successful treatment has become more common, children from rural Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, eastern Montana, western Wisconsin and northern Iowa often must spend weeks, even months in the Twin Cities undergoing daily treatment in one of a number of hospitals. Financial burden can be crippling to a family already under severe economic pressure.

Renovation of the home, formerly a University of Minnesota boarding house, began in 1978. Initial money for the project was provided by area McDonald's restaurant owners, who pledged $120,000 through annual balloon sales in their stores. Over $110,000 was raised during the first two promotions and the third, next spring, is expected to bring in a total of considerably more than the original pledge.

Carleton Rated Among Top 25 In Selectivity

Carleton college continues to be one of the most selective colleges in the nation and is one of only two institutions between the coasts which appears among the top 25 institutions, according to a new study by the higher education research institute.

The study, based on the average scholastic aptitude tests (SAT) of the entering freshmen classes of 1976-77, shows Carleton is the only primarily under-graduate college from Pennsylvania to California to be listed. The University of Chicago is the other midwestern institution.

Carleton, tied with Mt. Holyoke college at 24, is rated as the eighth most selective of the primarily undergraduate liberal arts college in the country. Only three institutions in the top 25 (Rice university in Texas, Webb Institute of naval architecture and Cooper union in New York) have tuitions lower than Carleton.

The report, which appeared in "Change" magazine, also ranks colleges on the basis of selectivity over the past 15 years. California institute of technology was the highest ranking four-year institution in 1961 and remains in that position. Harvard and Radcliffe rank number two and three.

At the time of the last study in 1973, Carleton also ranked 24; but in 1961, the year of the first study, the college held the number 12 spot. Whether the SAT scores of Carleton students declined more than the national average or other colleges improved their selectivity is not made clear by the study. Between 1961 and 1977, the average SAT scores of all students dropped about 50 points.

The strictly undergraduate institutions which moved up the list all seemed to have one thing in common — they have not increased their enrollment. Carleton increased in size from 1,300 to 1,700 in 15 years.

Despite the drop, Carleton still ranks in the top one per cent of all four-year institutions. There are more than 2,500 colleges and universities which offer four-year degree programs.

"SAT scores are only a small part of what we look for in a Carleton freshman," said Richard Steele, dean of admissions, commenting on the report. "Of course, we are pleased that we remain among the nation's most selective colleges, but finding students with a creative spirit, an interest in learning, a sense of humor and a wide range of talents is more important to us. High SAT scores is one way of determining quality of students, but it is by no means the only one."

The report does describe one advantage of continuing to rank high. The report's authors explain: "As the job market becomes saturated with graduates, employers are more likely to use institutional quality as a screening device rather than to base hiring decisions merely upon degree level attained."

Permit Issued To Stop Moth In Sunflowers

A special local need registration permit has been issued by the Minnesota department of agriculture to authorize the use of a specific pesticide to control the Indian meal moth and prevent economic damage to stored sunflower seeds.

Issued subject to public and local government comment, the permit is for the use of Top Side Dipel, a pesticide manufactured for Loveland industries, Loveland, Colorado 80537.

Minnesota laws and rules regulating the sale and use of pesticides provide for special local need registrations and for public comment when a use other than those prescribed on the product label is considered justified in the public interest and there is no potential for unreasonable environmental hazard.

Public comment is invited in petition form signed by 500 or more citizens of legal voting age and who list their legal Minnesota addresses. These written comments should be addressed to the Commissioner of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55107 by November 30, 1979.

Inflation price you out of a new building? Take a look at Stran.

And reconsider.

As your Authorized Stran Builder, we're very much aware of how inflation has affected the cost of building new facilities.

Costs have risen dramatically for both materials and construction labor. That's why it makes good building sense to take a look at Stran's building systems approach. Why?

- Most of the building is fabricated in a modern manufacturing plant to take advantage of automation and more productive man-hour utilization
- The system is designed and produced to go together fast at your job site. Saving valuable man-hours in on-site construction costs

So before calling off your plans for a new building, call us and let's see how we can help you deflate inflation. We may have you breaking ground after all.

BLOOD DROPS, owl eyes and chicken toenails were only a few of the ingredients used to make witches brew in the kindergarten class at Mark Twain elementary school this morning. Both the kindergarten class and a pre-school special education group of children watched in amazement as Diane Marshall (the good witch of the west) made the brew as a special Halloween treat.

School Board OKs Local Tax Levies

According to figures approved by the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening, School District 564 will levy $2,680,590 in taxes for all purposes in the coming year. The board certified the 1979 levies payable in 1980 to county auditor C. W. Rodekuhr at the meeting.

Amount certified in the various accounting categories included the following: Maintenance, $1,925,270.72; transportation, $133,462.84; community service, $30,778.37; capital expenditure, $284,079.02; general debt service, $174,413.16; AVTI debt service, $136,586; and AVTI maintenance, $2,000. It was noted that AVTI debt service would be reduced by the amount of state debt service aid received.

Last year the levy totaled $2,500,940 and included maintenance, $1,745,727; transportation, $151,910; community service, $24,622; capital expenditure, $264,055; general debt service, $173,591; and AVTI debt service, $141,035. There was no maintenance levy for AVTI last year.

Discussion was also held by the board of site location for proposed school construction but no decision was reached. Discussion will continue at the next meeting.

Proposal from Holcomb, Knudson and company was accepted for auditing of the college workstudy program for 1976-77, 1977-78 and 1978-79; secondary education opportunity grant for the same three years and basic education opportunity grant for 1978-79.

The board hired Joyce Brandt as instructor in the "Children and Parents Learning Together" program to be conducted at Mark Twain school. Greg Stauss was appointed eighth grade girls basketball coach at Franklin school and Sharon Stauss as sixth grade girls coach.

Resignations were accepted from John Hustad as assistant boys' varsity swimming coach; Gerald Amundgaard, Eldon Myers and Richard Quigley as regular route bus drivers; and Phil Kvalog as custodian at Franklin middle school.

CAREFUL TO GRAB only those items she felt would be useful to her, Mrs. Gerhard Anderson, Roseau, raced from aisle to aisle at Al and Wally's country market filling her shopping cart during the harvest bonanza shopping spree Monday morning. Careful concentration, speed, and tennis shoes enabled her to gather $149.33 in groceries during the spree. "She saw shopping carts all night," remarked her husband before the event. Contestants were given three minutes to fill their carts with up to $150 in groceries.

Child Abuse Hotline New Area Service

A new community service called the "Child Abuse and Neglect Hotline" is now available in Thief River Falls. Number to call is 681-5869, and the service will be open 24 hours a day every day of the year.

Purpose of the hotline is to help parents who are concerned with the care of their own children or to assist others in their efforts to find help for children being abused or neglected.

5 Strandquist Music Entries Win Top Rating

Strandquist music department, under the direction of Mrs. Sheila Nelson, recently competed at the district vocal contest at Roseau. Five entries were entered and all five received superior ratings.

The following students will advance to the state-region contest in May: Nancy Boen and Paulette Kuznia, mezzo soprano solos; Jean Kleinvachter, alto solo; Kevin Nelson, baritone solo; and Paulette Kuznia and Nancy Boen, vocal duet.

AVTI Seminar Teaches How To Outsmart Pain

Thief River Falls AVTI is offering a two-hour seminar entitled "Outsmarting Pain: Psychological Strategies for Reducing Physical Discomfort". Seminar will be November 14 from 8 to 10 p.m. in the CNC chapel of Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Steve Levinson, clinical director of the day-night psychiatric unit at Northwestern hospital, will conduct this seminar designed for the general public. His lecture will provide an introduction to the theory and practice of psychological approaches to controlling pain.

Based on the observation that the experience of pain can be powerfully influenced by readily controlled mental events, Dr. Levinson describes methods by which hurting persons can use their own mental abilities to lessen the discomfort occasioned by disease or injury of any kind.

Parent Class To Start At AVTI Nov. 5

Home start program and the Thief River Falls area vocational school are offering the exploring parenting curriculum to interested parents. This curriculum offers parents a unique educational experience.

The first six sessions will be held before Christmas and the group will then decide whether or not to continue in January. First session will be held Monday, November 5, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls.

Exploring parenting is described as an opportunity for parents to get to know themselves better, get to know their child better and to use this knowledge in making decisions about how to raise their child.

In the sessions parents discuss topics with one another as well as become familiar with new ideas. Films of families at home with their children and information sheets provide a variety of viewpoints for discussion. After each session an "At-Home Activity" is suggested for parents to try with their child and then to discuss at the beginning of the next session.

Most importantly, the program emphasizes that there is no one right way to raise children; there are many and various ways. Each parent has to find the way best suited to his or her lifestyle, temperament and the child's needs. Exploring Parenting is designed to help parents "explore" the obstacles and joys to raising children.

Ripley Alliance Given Sexual Assault Funds

Minnesota corrections commissioner Jack G. Young has announced the award of $12,500 to the sexual assault task force of the Ripley alliance. This award will be used to provide services to victims of sexual assault in Polk, Red Lake and Pennington county. The Ripley alliance is formed as a non-profit organization.

The Ripley alliance is one of 21 programs in Minnesota that have received department of corrections funds to provide sexual assault services to victims.

Area Musicians In BSU Group

Members of the orchestra include Ronn Adams of Thief River Falls, trumpet; Mary Matturro of Goodridge and Mike Peterson of Gatzke, second violins.

Staff Chaplain Serves Northwestern Hospital

Through a contractual arrangement with Lutheran Social services of Minnesota, Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls now has its first staff chaplain serving as director of pastoral services. Rev. Paul Bortnem began his duties at the hospital early this week.

For several years Rev. Harold Peterson served in a chaplaincy role at the hospital, conducting religious services and visitation of patients. Following his service, Rev. Walter Pederson of Grand Forks, a former pastor of Zion Lutheran church here, has been conducting religious services at the hospital on a weekly basis. That service is expected to be continued.

Development of the present position for Rev. Bortnem as a department head resulted from an expression of interest by the Thief River Falls ministerial association as well as recognition of a need by the hospital's administration and board of trustees. Thief River Falls are United Way allocated $3,500 to the hospital from the 1978 campaign to assist in the establishment of the position.

Thief River Falls ministerial association has given full endorsement to the chaplaincy program but will not be participating in its cost. Lutheran Social services will pay a part of the costs since Rev. Bortnem is to spend about 20 per cent of his time in counseling for that agency. Remainder of the cost is to be covered by the hospital.

For the past several years Rev. Ken Gjerde of Moorhead has conducted counseling at the hospital on a weekly basis under Lutheran Social services auspices. Rev. Gjerde will now serve as supervisor of those services which will be provided in the future by the new chaplain.

"My main purpose in the chaplaincy is to facilitate pastoral services," Rev. Bortnem said. "I will be assisting local clergy in emergency or crisis situations but expect that I will be of greater service to pastors and others from out of town, because of the travel distance involved and the increasing number of area people using Northwestern hospital."

Rev. Bortnem will serve as a contact person between hospital patients and their clergymen. He will be available on request from the patient or the patient's family or clergyman, or on referral from the nursing service or medical staff. He expects to spend time in visitation with patients in the convalescent and nursing care unit and to listen to patient needs and serve as a patient advocate.

The chaplaincy service may also set up in-service educational programs for the clergy in such areas as stress seminars, family communication, pre-marriage consultation and others.

FIRST STAFF CHAPLAIN at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River is Rev. Paul Bortnem who began work in his position this week. Rev. Bortnem is a native of Volga, S.D., and his wife Rosine is from the Karlstad area. In his role as chaplain he will work with area clergy as well as dealing directly with patients and their families. Rev. Bortnem's services are contracted for by the hospital through Lutheran Social services of Minneapolis.

Leo Orpens In State Contest

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Orpen of Middle River, selected as the 1969 conservation farmer of the year by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district, have been selected to represent Area 1 in state competition in a special recognition program being held to celebrate the 10-year anniversary of the award.

Selection on an area level was based on their continuing conservation work. A judging team will come to the area to view the Orpen farming operation as well as the operations of the winners in the six other areas throughout the state. Minnesota winner will be the nominee who has made the greatest effort to continue conservation efforts over the past 10 years.

Winning farmer and wife will be honored at the state convention of soil and water conservation districts held during December in Duluth.

Voters Demolish Building Code

Pennington county voters joined those in other Minnesota counties who have voted on acceptance of the state building code by flatly rejecting it at a special election held Tuesday. Final vote showed 820 opposed and only 25 in favor throughout the county.

Thirteen townships and the city of Goodridge failed to give the code a single favorable vote. Greatest support was generated in Numedal township where the vote was 25-4 against acceptance and in Rocksbury where the vote recorded was 47-4 in opposition.

In Red Lake county last Tuesday the voters gave the building code only 10 votes in rejecting it 670 to 10. The defeat left the city of Red Lake Falls without a building code since it was included in the election. In Thief River Falls the code remains in effect, since the city was not included in the county election.

Votes in favor and opposed in Red Lake county by precincts were as follows: Brooks, 2-46; Browns Creek, 0-13; Emardville, 0-41; Equality, 1-35; Garnes, 1-44; Gervais, 0-23; Lake Pleasant, 0-20; Lambert, 0-34; Louisville, 0-36; Oklee, 3-72; Plummer, 0-62; Poplar River, 0-43; Red Lake Falls, 3-134; River, 0-11; Terrebonne, 0-30; and Wylie, 0-21.

Nanci Kezar Is Sunflower Queen Entry

Fourteen homecoming queens have been entered by their respective area high schools in the Miss Sunflower Bowl queen pageant at the University of Minnesota technical college — Crookston (UMC). Twelfth annual sunflower bowl, November 3, is the longest-standing event that has been observed without interruption in the history of UMC.

Competing for the title of 1979 queen of the Sunflower Bowl will be the following young ladies from this area: Nanci Kezar, Thief River Falls; Penny Kruse, Oklee; Ann Mayer, Erskine; and Jodi Pahlen, Plummer.

A panel of three judges will conduct informal interviews with each candidate Saturday morning. Criteria used to evaluate candidates and select a titlist are, in order of priority, charm (personality), poise, responsiveness to extemporaneous questions and personal appearance.

Identity of the new queen will be revealed during halftime ceremonies of the UMC Trojans vs. Thief River Falls Northmen football game, which kicks off at 1:30 p.m. and the 1979 winner will be crowned by last year's queen, and a floral bouquet will be presented to the new queen.

Use For Cattail Studied . . .

Lowland Plant No Longer Lowly Plant

(Editor's Note: The following article on research into uses for the common cattail was written for "Conservation News", an educational service of the National Wildlife federation in Washington, D.C., by Betsy Gordon, editorial assistant for the publication. It is being reprinted here in the general public interest.)

In this time of frenzied searching for alternative energy sources, a promising new candidate has emerged.

Cattails, those fuzzy brown denizens of swamps, are getting attention as a viable form of bioenergy because of their high productivity. In the past, cattail studies had been limited to wildlife management and the hydrologic cycle. However, the focus has changed from controlling growth to investigating management techniques for maximizing it. The University of Minnesota-St. Paul has been the leader in research on cattails, for energy production.

During the 1950's, the University had done research on natural stands, but for the past, five years, its botany department, under Head Douglas C. Pratt, has focused on managed stands of the common reed mace, or cattail, an abundant emergent aquatic plant. Pratt calls them "wet feet" plants; their folklore names include marsh beetles, marsh pestles, bullsedge, candlewick, and great seed mace.

Minnesota has between four and six million acres of wetlands, with no real commercial value other than waterfowl habitat and water purification. While these areas have too much moisture for conventional agricultural techniques and crops, they can support hardy, productive natural plant communities like cattails. In fact, marshes are among the most productive natural systems in the world. Cattails grow in all the world's temperate zones, including 140,000 square miles of wetlands — swamps, marshes, and lowlands — in the U.S. Productivity is high in these swampy areas because plants rarely suffer from water stress or lack for moisture.

Pratt has conducted experiments with managed cattail stands at the St. Paul campus and the Carlos Avery Wildlife Area 25 miles to the north. He is attempting to discover optimum growing conditions and nutrient supply for these plants. Early results indicate that managed stands may not be as productive as natural ones. Cattails can also be grown hydroponically (without soil) in floating "rafts" on shallow lakes, or along shores of larger ones.

Their long, narrow, upright leaves are ideal for capturing a maximum amount of solar energy, manufacturing large amounts of cellulose and starch and little of the lignin which complicates bioenergy processes. They absorb the sun's rays over a large

Jacobson and Vigness Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Wanda Jeannette Jacobson and Charles Clifford Vigness exchanged marriage vows recently at the Evengelical Free church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burlin Jacobson of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vigness of this city.

Rev. Curtis Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony together with Rev. Eugene Enderlein, pastor of Our Savior's Lutheran church. At the organ was Mrs. Ron Trontvet, who played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and the traditional "Bridal Chorus," for the processional. During the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hanson, cousins of the bride, sang "God, a Woman and a Man," and "Wedding Song." As a solo, Steve Hanson sang, "Let Us Climb the Hill Together."

For the ceremony, the chancel was graced with spiral candelabra and arrangements of white and peach carnations and babies' breath.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white jersey gown. It featured an empire styled bodice with an open V-neckline, accented with silk Venice lace, and long straight sleeves with open lace work. The A-line skirt extended into a chapel-length train edged in Venice lace. Her fingertip veil was held by a profile headpiece embroidered with seed pearls and edged with the same lace that trimmed her gown. She carried a cascade of white silk gardenias, orange blossoms and peach babies' breath accented with rust babies' breath and imported rust star flowers. Her diamond earrings were a gift from the groom.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Bev Jacobson. Other attendants were Sharon Peterson and Cathy Rominski, sisters of the groom, and Carolyn Jacobson, sister of the bride. Their identical gowns of peach polyester crepe featured empire waistlines accented with peach ribbon, and long, full skirts. Dainty white lace trimmed the open necklines and long, bell sleeves. They carried silk colonial bouquets of peach carnations, white daisies, white and rust babies' breath and rust star flowers.

Tawnya Rominski, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Her gown was fashioned in the same style and of the same fabric as those worn by the other attendants. She carried a basket of peach carnations, white daisies, babies' breath and rust star flowers.

The bride's personal attendant was Deb Gilbertson.

Attending the groom as best man was Bruce Brown, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Brian Jacobson, brother of the bride; Greg Carter and Gary Heaton, friends of the couple. The rings were carried by Shawn Rominski, nephew of the groom. All wore rust Westwood tuxedos with dark brown velvet trim, peach ruffled shirts and peach carnation boutonnieres. The groom wore a similar tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt with rust edging, and a white gardenia boutonniere.

The ushers were Jeff Hanson, David Vigness, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. Distributing the wedding programs and rice packets were the bride's twin brother and sister, David and Donna Jacobson.

The mother of the bride wore a soft yellow polyester floor-length gown styled with a blouson top with cap sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a robin-egg blue, floor-length gown with a blouson top complemented by a matching capelet. Their corsages were of peach rose buds, orange blossoms and rust babies' breath. Peach carnations with sprigs of babies' breath accented the rust tuxedos worn by the fathers.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Josephine Vigness, grandmother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Folstad, great uncle and aunt of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception for approximately 200 relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanson, uncle and aunt of the bride, served as host and hostess. At the guest book was Laurie Hanson, cousin of the bride. Janet and Linda Bjornrud, cousins of the bride, served as gift bearers.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with peach roses. Between the tall Grecian pillars which supported the upper tiers was a lighted, flowing water fountain. Topping the cake were a minature bride and groom. On either side of the cake were two-tiered cakes connected by stairs featuring minature replicas of the wedding party. Cutting and serving the cake were Mrs. Lily Hanson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Dorothy Anton, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Beulah Bjornrud and Mrs. Les Vigness, aunts of the bride and groom, poured the coffee.

Presiding at the punch bowl and serving the groomscake, which was a kransekage, the traditional Scandinavian wedding caku surrounded by colorful marzipans, were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hedlund, friends of the couple. Debbie and Peggy Hanson, cousins of the bride, and Laurie and Kristi Hanson, friends of the bride, were waitresses.

After the reception, a supper was served at the bride's parental home for the wedding party and the immediate families. Following the supper, the gifts were opened by the bride and groom.

The evening prior to the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at Lons for the bridal party and immediate families.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the bride wore a beige and lavender pantsuit, a gift from the groom.

The couple is now at home in Thief River Falls at the Countryside trailer court. The bride is employed at Al and Wally's Country Market. The groom is a partner of Kip and Chuck's Lock and Key shop and is also employed by Tony Dorn, Inc. Photo, Chuck Agnew photography, Mahnomen

Shelly R. Wiseth and Arden Hyland Wed Here

Miss Shelly Rae Wiseth and Arden Wayne Hyland exchanged marriage vows recently at an afternoon wedding at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wiseth and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hyland of Goodridge.

Rev. Gene Broughton of Goodridge officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by 300 relatives and friends. At the organ were Lorene Ubel and Mrs. Grace Hammer. They played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the bridesmaids' processional, and "The Wedding March," as the bride and miniature bride approached the altar. Vocalists were Susan Hoffman and Vernon Iverson, who sang "Wedding Song," and "I Fell In Love Again." As the "Wedding Song" was sung, long-stemmed yellow roses were presented by the bride and groom to both mothers. Also during the ceremony, Iverson sang "For Baby, for Bobby," and Miss Hoffman sang, "O Perfect Love."

Candelabra with silk daisies and greenery graced the chancel. All flowers at the wedding were of silk. Blue ribbon bows marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white organza gown styled with an empire bodice with sheer bishop sleeves. Her Queen Anne neckline was edged with Venice lace accented with seed pearls. Matching lace trimmed the A-line skirt and edged her chapel-length train. A Juliet styled head-piece held her scalloped, triple-tiered veil of bridal illusion, graced with Venice lace. She carried a cascade of flowers featuring blue and yellow daisies, white lilies, roses and babies breath and light blue forget-me-nots.

Theresa Johnsrud and Shirley Verbout of Goodridge were the bride's personal attendants.

Matron of honor was Diane Paulson, Goodridge, sister of the bride. Other attendants were Tami Johnsrud and Mavis Paulson of Goodridge, friends of the couple. Junior bridesmaid was Shelly Defreece, Thief River Falls, a niece of the groom. Their gowns of a soft blue Silesta chiffon in apple blossom print were fashioned with blouson bodices with scooped V-necklines and puffy, elbow-length sleeves. In their hair they wore a cluster of blue, yellow and white daisies. They carried colonial bouquets of white roses, yellow lilies and daisies, and blue asters, forget-me-nots and babies breath, accented with white streamers. Their silver heart-shaped necklaces and earrings were gifts from the bride.

Wearing a white floor-length lace gown, styled like the bride's, and a elbow length veil, was the miniature bride, Nicole Paulson, Goodridge, a niece of the bride. Her silver necklace was a gift from the bride.

Minature groom was Shane Defreece, Thief River Falls, a nephew of the groom; and honorary ring bearer was Troy Paulson, Goodridge, a nephew of the bride. Like the groom, they wore silver-gray tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and a white rose boutonniere accented with yellow and blue daisies.

Aldon Hyland, Goodridge attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Alan Hyland, Thief River Falls, another brother, and Gene Marquis, Goodridge, a friend of the couple. Junior groomsman was Tony Wiseth, a brother of the bride. Serving as ushers were Terry Wiseth, Wishek, N.D., brother of the bride, and David Paulson, a brother-in-law of the bride. Usherettes were the groom's sisters: Arlette Defreece, Thief River Falls, and Audrey Bruggeman, Fridley. Their gowns of Silesta chiffon apple blossom print were in creme color, and their wrist corsages matched the bouquets carried by the bridesmaids.

The mother of the bride was attired in a monaqua blue gown with a ruffled scooped neckline, long, sheer sleeves and a shirred waist. The groom's mother wore a floral blue and beige floor-length gown. Their corsages were of white roses with yellow daisies and blue forget-me-nots.

Special guests were A.J. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Mordy Morrison, honorary grandparents of the groom; and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schlofer, godparents of the groom.

Hosts and hostesses at the reception that followed in the church parlors were Sherman and Jean Groven, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Terry and Lana Anderson, cousins of the groom. Georgine Troska registered the guests as Donna Vraa and Fern Horachek served the punch.

The four-tiered chocolate wedding cake, baked by Norma Johnson, Goodridge, was decorated with blue and yellow daisies and topped with two white doves. It was cut and served by Arlyne Brateng and Ruby Anderson, aunts of the couple. Pouring coffee were the couple's sisters-in-law, Darlene Wiseth and Mary Hyland.

Waitresses were Carmen Hanson and Bev Horachek, friends of the couple; Rosemary Hyland, niece of the groom, and Kari Jo Wiseth and Wendy Wiseth, cousins of the bride. The gifts were arranged by Justin Hyland, Thief River Falls, Jared and Guy Bruggeman, Fridley, nephews of the groom. The flowers were pinned by Julie Rugland, Thief River Falls, cousin of the bride, and Trudy Hyland, Goodridge, sister-in-law of the groom.

Following the rehearsal, a supper was hosted by the groom's parents at the Arlette Defrees home in Thief River Falls.

After a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla., the couple is now at home in Moorhead at 1116 18Y2 Street South. The bride is a graduate of Goodridge high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI, bookkeeping department. She is currently employed as a bookkeeper by W.W. Wallwork in Fargo, N.D. The groom, a graduate of Goodridge high school, is attending Moorhead State university. Prior to entering the university, he was employed by Edson construction, Thief River Falls. Libraries Join To Better Serve The Borrowers

More than a million residents of Minnesota now have increased opportunities to borrow books, records, films, periodicals and other material from public libraries, according to Alan Lewis of the office of public libraries and interlibrary cooperation (OPLIC).

A reciprocal borrowing agreement among 11 of the state's 13 regional library systems makes it possible for a card holder from any of 175 member libraries to borrow and return material at any other member library. Only noncirculating reference works, rare books and a few other items are not included.

Libraries with unusual collections in certain subject areas can now lend such material to people who live outside their immediate area.

Regional library systems are made up of local libraries which cooperate to provide more services at lower cost. For example, some systems have centralized their purchasing so that they qualify for higher discounts.

Regional systems participating in the agreement and the counties included in them are Arrowhead: Carlton, Cook, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods and St. Louis; Crow River: Kandiyohi, Meeker and McLeod; East Central: Aitkin, Isanti, Kanabec, Mille Lacs, Pine and Chisago; Great River: Benton, Morrison, Sherburne, Stearns, Todd and Wright; Kitchigami: Beltrami, Cass, Crow Wing and Wadena; Lake Agassiz: Becker, Clay, Norman and Polk; Northwest Regional: Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau; Plum Creek: Jackson, Lyon, Nobles, Redwood and Rock; Traverse des Sioux: Blue Earth, Martin, LeSueur, Nicollet, Sibley, Waseca, Watonwan and Fairbault; Viking: Douglas, Stevens, Grant and Otter Tail; and Western Plains: Big Stone, Chippewa, Lac Qui Parle and Yellow Medicine.

Two other regional systems are not participating at present, but they do have reciprocal borrowing within their own boundaries. The two systems are Metropolitan, including Anoka, Carver, Dakota, Hennepin, Ramsey, Scott and Washington counties and Southeastern, including Freeborn, Goodhue, Mower, Olmsted, Rice, Steele, Wabasha, and Winona.

About 300 of the state's 325 libraries belong to regional systems.

SMART Group Helps Prepare For Retirement

SMART (Senior Member and Retiree Training) members gathered for their seventh session during the SMART workshop conducted at St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Monday evening. Paul and Mary Warble, Bemidji, are trained as group leaders to present the workshops to those interested. Workshops are sponsored by the Aid Association for Lutherans branch, 1669. Workshops are conducted as often as there is a demand for them, according to Paul Warble.

"It doesn't matter what church one belongs to, or if he belongs to one at all," Warble stressed. "Anyone may attend the workshops."

Workshops, however, are designed primarily for people who are between five and ten years away from retirement. Idea behind SMART is to help people plan ahead to help them better approach their retirement. Each SMART workshop consists of eight two and one-half hour sessions. Titles of the eight sessions conducted at St. John church include: "Retirement attitudes and adjustments"; "Assets, resources and income"; "Managing your retirement money"; "Activity and leisure"; "Health and welfare"; "Housing decisions"; "Legal rights and responsibilities"; and "Your blessings", which summarizes the previous sessions and urges members to share their blessing with each other.

"SMART helps develop a person's attitude toward his retirement," Warble said.

MEMBERS OF THE SMART (Senior Member and Retiree Training) program at St. John Lutheran church include: Norm Busse, president of the local branch of the Aid Association for Lutherans, the group sponsoring the SMART workshops; Mrs. Ken Kohler, secretary-treasurer of the branch; Mrs. Ellen Spray, Mrs. Luella Fuller, Mrs. Kenneth Bakke, Mrs. Lillian Ranum, Mr. and Mrs. Marv Koop, Mr. and Mrs. Les Borning, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hermanson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frodahl, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mehrkens, and Mrs. Betty Olson. Group leaders are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Warble, Bemidji. Not pictured are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sisler, and Tom Puppe, vice president of the local branch.

Lowland Plant No Longer A Lowly Plant

photosynthetic surface area, while taking up little ground space. Natural stands yield 15 to 20 tons of biomass per acre per year, as compared to one ton per acre for aspen forest. Managed stands yield 16 to 19 tons of dried biomass per acre per year, while corn manages only 11 to 12 tons. In both managed and natural stands, cattail productivity exceeds high yield corn by 50 per cent.

One ton of oven-dried cattail biomass contains 15 million British Thermal Units (BTU's). (One BTU equals 252 calories, or the amount of heat energy required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.) Therefore, an annual productivity rate of 15 tons per acre translates to 225 million BTU's per acre per year. At this rate, the energy yield from just 4.9 million acres of cattails would equal Minnesota's total energy consumption in 1975, not taking into account energy for harvesting and processing the plants. (This would need to be subtracted, making the net energy yield somewhat less.)

Pratt has been compressing cattails into briquets to retard burning, but so far, it has proven only 20 per cent efficient. In their natural form, cattails would burn almost as quickly as paper. He is also studying ways to treat the plants to produce liquid and gaseous fuels, a process called pyrolysis. The major problem with this method is that the liquid fuel produced has not been pure enough for widespread use.

Pratt's major challenge is discovering an inexpensive way to harvest cattails, making their use for fuel economically feasible. It is not known whether cattails are adaptable to mechanized planting and harvesting techniques. Because their natural growing areas are saturated with water and have a low bearing capability, conventional equipment cannot be used. One possible sollution is to harvest cattails during the winter, when bogs are frozen and could support heavy machinery. This would allow only the above-ground portions to be harvested, leaving the roots (rhizomes) to regenerate next year's crop.

However, 50 to 80 per cent of a cattail's biomass is underground. One possibility is to use machinery similar to a potato picker to harvest the rhizomes. Another idea which seems to be economically feasible is planting cattails in six-foot-wide strips, then harvesting each strip in alternate years. In this way, the rhizomes, which are able to spread out several feet from their perimeter, could self-propagate from the uncut strips into the cleared path. This method would require less energy and manpower, because replanting would be unnecessary. Managed strips could also benefit waterfowl. Cattails often grow so profusely that aquatic birds do not have sufficient open water. Cutting cattails would thus be a useful wildlife management tool as well as a natural source of energy.

Economics of harvesting must also be scrutinized, to see if managed growth of cattails is energy efficient. How much energy input is needed to prepare the soil, cultivate, harvest, process, fertilize, produce, and transport this crop? To date, Pratt has not had to use pesticides or much fertilizer, but this could change if cattails were grown out of their natural habitat.

Pratt lists several advantages of a wetlands "energy plantation approach" which make bioenergy production there feasible: 1) In wetlands, cattails would not compete with traditional agricultural crops for land or organic matter. 2) Wetlands are natural nutrient sinks, especially for nitrogen, so cattails could help purify water by removing these "pollutants-nutrients". 3) Cattails have exhibited high productivity rates. 4) Drainage is not required. 5) Wetlands are extensive and largely unutilized. 6) Harvest can be compatible with wildlife habitat. 7) The energy source is fully renewable. 8) Unlike some energy technologies, especially nuclear power, cattail fuel would not add vast amounts of non-solar heat to the environment. 9) Because these "energy farms" would simply recycle carbon dioxide removed during photosynthesis, using cattails for fuel would avoid increasing concentrations of this gas in the atmosphere, a problem with burning fossil fuels like coal and oil.

Pratt suggests it might be good strategy to locate cattail farms near municipal sewage treatment plants, to take advantage of their propensity for absorbing polluting nutrients like nitrogen and phosphorus. They could act as an inexpensive advanced treatment process, cleaning up effluents entering the wetland.

Another plus for cattails is that, unlike grains like wheat, their growth period does not end after seeds are formed. Their long growing season extends from the first thaw to the first frost. Besides their ability to regenerate from rhizomes, they are wind-pollinated, with one cattail producing up to 176 million pollen grains.

Besides their potential for fuel, cattails could also become a food source for humans and livestock. They store large amounts of edible starch which could be processed into flour or animal feed. The Indians ate cattail rhizomes, and also ground up tendrils to make a dish similar to mashed potatoes. Cattails are also a possible alternative feedstock to sugar beets or grain for alcohol production, and some research has been done on using them to produce penicillin. Cattails can also be made into paper. Another ingenious use practiced by the Indians was using the brown seed heads or catkins as a soft insulation for infant cradle boards.

The greatest potential limit to using cattails as an energy source is economics, especially costs of developing and using special harvesting and planting equipment. But Pratt, a strong believer in localized energy sources, feels that alternatives other than nuclear power should be seriously considered by the government, and developed to their fullest extent. So far, he has received state money but no federal funding for his research. However, he has spoken with at least one Congressman about his work.

Pratt feels cattail biomass energy would be most beneficial when produced on a small scale, by individual communities. In this way, towns could go a long way toward becoming energy self-sufficient, at the same time revitalizing rural areas by providing jobs raising and manufacturing products from "wet feet" plants.

FFA In Minn. 50 Years Old On October 29

On the day remembered as "Black Tuesday," October 29, 1929, 50 years ago, while the stock market collapsed and the nation panicked, a youth organization was born in Minnesota.

In the tiny Finnish community of Esko, the state's first Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapter meeting took place, which led to a project that has become nationally recognized as the largest youth service effort in the world.

Their project called "Corn Drives for Camp Courage," has raised money for people with physical disabilities to attend Courage center camps. Youth began by gleaning leftover corn from farmers' fields in Freeborn county 26 years ago.

In the past 50 years there have been approximately 10,000 FFA chapter presidents and more than 150,000 state members. Today, Minnesota has over 280 high school chapters comprising more than 16,000 members.

In the past year state FFA chapters have invested nearly $4 million in production agriculture, agribusiness, horticultural occupational programs and the preservation of natural resources. Minnesota youth have raised and released over a half million game birds and planted more than 15 million tree seedlings in the past 20 years.

The FFA is a national organization of pupils studying vocational agriculture and agribusiness in 50 states and Puerto Rico.

NW Minnesota History Center Receives Funds

Northwest Minnesota Historical Center, an adjunct of Moorhead State University's history department and a branch of the Minnesota historical society, has received $5,000 in funding from the state legislature to continue its operation.

The center is one of seven regional research branches of the Minnesota historical society and serves as a central point for preserving historical and contemporary records of the twelve-county northwest section of the state.

Located in the Moorhead State Library, the center has been operated and funded as a branch of the state historical society for eight years.

NMHC cooperates with local historical societies and community groups and its materials are available to the public. The center's archives contain hundreds of documents, manuscripts, letters, business papers and recorded oral histories preserved as part of the Red River Valley heritage.

Center is directed by Dr. Kenneth Smemo, a professor of history and languages at Moorhead State.

Crisis Heating Program Sends Money South

Senator Rudy Boschwitz today condemned the administration's most recent formula for alloting fuel-cost assistance money among states as "total defiance of Congress' intent in establishing this program."

He also said he will offer an amendment to a pending Senate bill to insure that future money is distributed more fairly to Minnesota and other northern states.

Boschwitz further stated that the new formula, which divides funds among all 50 states rather than to only "cold weather" states, as in the past, means "the program will be expanded from one which helped out with heating costs in emergencies to one seen as another welfare arm of the government to help with increased energy costs in general. It's a political move and one more instance of where the government is on the path to pouring out money to 'bandage' a problem rather than dealing with its causes."

He continued, "The program affected by Carter's latest formula is named, and intentionally so, the crisis intervention program (CIP). It was designed to help the poor and elderly with their heating bills and to avoid the horrendous choice between warmth and food faced by many northern states residents in previous winters," Boschwitz said.

"However," he continued, "under the latest formula mandated by Carter, funds will now go to states to help with air-conditioning costs this winter.

"That's not right. Keeping warm when the weather outside is zero and below and when fuel oil is close to a dollar per gallon is a crisis for many of our nation's poor. Keeping cool in our southern states, especially in winter, is not a crisis.

"Under the new formula, whereas Minnesota received $12 million last year, this year we're set to receive only $5.6 million of the $250 million available nationwide. Florida, on the other hand, will receive $4 million, up from nothing last year.

"This kind of allotment totally destroys the intent of 'crisis intervention'."

"Regrettably," Boschwitz said, "it looks like this formula for the CIP money is irrevocable. The money is already going out to the states.

"However, another $1.2 billion has been appropriated for a second fuel assistance program. We will soon be working on the bill to establish how it is spent.

"I will offer an amendment on the floor designed to clearly spell out the Senate's intent: that the money is meant to go to states where heating assistance funds are needed, not down south to help with air conditioning bills."

Post Adoption Meet Nov. 9 At Crookston

Post-legal adoption department staff of Children's Home society is sponsoring a new and different post adoption workshop Friday, November 9, at the First National Bank of Crookston, Community room from 7 to 10 p.m. Catholic Charities are the co-sponsors.

This new workshop offers an opportunity for learning and discussion through new materials, video tape presentations and school curriculum units. "Adoption Builds Families" topics have been designed to keep Minnesotans in touch with the changing times. New constructive vocabulary has been developed to assist in talking about adoption positively. Preparations must be made to tie the children securely into their adoption family while not denying them the practical facts about their biological heritage. These and other issues of interest will be discussed.

If you have attended a post adoption workshop in the past, please come again. Birthparents and adopted persons are invited to sign up for the meetings to have a chance to learn more about each other's viewpoints and feelings. Other persons interested are welcome. Discussion of the Minnesota open birth records law of 1977 will be held.

Children's Home society of Minnesota, a United Way member agency, is a statewide, voluntary, nonsectarian, child and family service agency which has been operating since 1889. It is licensed by the Minnesota department of public welfare, approved by the council on accreditation of services for families and children and meets the standards of the Minnesota charities review council.

To register ($7 per couple) or for more information about the wirkshop, contact Ada Lou Dunnwald, CHSM, 2230 Como Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108 or call (612) 646-6393.

Care Necessary For Safety With Medicine

Medicine can make a sick child well; water, a dirty child clean. Yet both are among the common hazards in your bathroom that can mean injury or death to a child.

Medicines are usually stored in a bathroom cupboard. Be sure they're on a shelf that's well out of reach of youngsters. Or better yet, keep medications in a locked place. Check to insure childproof tops are on all medicine containers, and that they're on properly.

Because pills and liquid medicines come in pretty colors and containers, they're attractive to curious children. Often, because of the flavorings, they even taste good. Children should be taught the proper use of medicines. Never call medicine 'candy' or allow a child to drink directly from a bottle.

Water presents a number of problems for parents and children. On smooth surfaces in the bathroom, it makes falls the most common bathroom injury. To ensure a good, safe footing in the bathtub or shower, use a suxtion-cup rubber mat, rough adhesive strips or a wet bath towel mat in the tube before filling with water. Parents often prefer the mat for very young children because it defines a specific area where the child must stay.

Hot water or hot water taps can result in serious burns. Keep children away from water taps, and always check water temperature in the tub before placing the child in the bath. Keeping the hot water temperature at a safe level can be helpful. Below 125 degrees Fahrenheit or 52 degrees centigrade is recommended safe for tap water.

Once a child is in the bathtub, he or she should never be left alone — not even for a few seconds while you answer the phone or doorbell. Children can drown very quickly and in small amounts of water.

Check your bathroom for sharp edges that can cause injury to children or adults. All tub and shower accessories should be free of sharp edges. If the shower stall is glass enclosed, it should be safety glass. Teach your child not to play with the doors; the weight of the door could break or smash a finger if closed on a small hand.

Be extra careful with electric hairdryers and other electrical appliances in the bathroom. Accidental electrocutions can result when a child touches an appliance with wet hands or while standing on a wet floor. After using an electric razor or curling iron, do not leave the room without disconnecting it.

Help keep your bathroom a safe room with these simple precautions.

Citizens and Taxpayers of Pennington County:

You have had a chance to read an opinion from the few persons opposed to replacing the south bridge in St. Hilaire. We, the citizens of the St. Hilaire community who are in favor of the bridge, feel it is time that our opinions were heard.

(1) The bridge went down on Aug. 7, 1977. There have been many hearings over the past two years — both public and with the county board. The first public hearing for replacing the bridge was on Aug. 22, 1977 at the St. Hilaire school. There were 44 people present at that meeting. A straw vote was taken with 27 people voting for replacement, 15 against and two abstaining.

(2) Our county board deliberated over this issue for two years before deciding that the bridge should be replaced. So, this was not a hasty decision on their part. We feel, as our elected officials, the decision they made will be a benefit to all those concerned — even those opposed.

(3) It has been stated that a member of the River Falls township board estimated "maybe" 25 to 30 cars a day would use this bridge. An official state count was taken in the summer of 1977 on the old single lane bridge just prior to when it went down. The average daily count year around was 129 vehicles per day.

It has been stated that only three families used that bridge every day. We feel that these few people could hardly account for all this traffic. There must have been more people using this bridge than that!

(4) There was a count also taken on the existing bridge on county road 3 (this bridge is not located on a road leading into St. Hilaire). The count on that bridge was 659 vehicles per day. Therefore, it is safe to assume that if the bridge was replaced leading into St. Hilaire on county road 55 and no weight restrictions were necessary, the count would go up considerably.

(5) We have the No. 1 single co-op elevator, shipping to GTA, in the northwest area in St. Hilaire. They are now in the process of building a substation in Hazel which is east of St. Hilaire on county road 3. They estimate anywhere from 25 to 100 farm trucks a day traveling on county road 3 to and from Hazel. These trucks will all be crossing the existing bridge on that road. We feel there is already congestion on this road. If the bridge was replaced on county road 55, this will be a major help in alleviating the problem.

(6) If something should ever happen to the existing bridge structure or a serious traffic accident should occur on this bridge blocking it for a few hours or longer, the only way across the river would be at Red Lake Falls or Thief River Falls. This could have very dire consequences for anyone east of the river in case of fire or other unforeseen emergencies.

(7) We feel that the six families located immediately east of the old bridge and supposedly opposed to it are only a small number compared to the number of people in favor. Out of the six families, only three have ever voiced their opinions at any meetings.

A portion of the trade in St. Hilaire also comes from east and southeast at the town. The businesses noticed a considerable decrease in trade when the bridge went down. Replacing the bridge would bring this trade back to St. Hilaire — not away from it. Not replacing this bridge will adversely affect the town of St. Hilaire and the surrounding area. We have a right to grow as a city. And, we will fight for that right.

(8) There was a figure of $175,000 to construct the approaches, acquire the right-of-way, engineering, etc. We do not know where this figure was taken from. The estimate for the east and west approaches, including a road from the river to highway 32, was approximately $70,000. The county board decided that county road 55 would not be extended west from the bridge to highway 32. Therefore, the cost involved would be considerably less. We realize this is an era of inflation but think that the $175,000 figure is very unrealistic.

(9) There are no controversial issues connected with replacing the bridge — other than the few people opposed. It will not have any effect on any wildlife, historical values or recreational facilities. This is based on the state department of transportation's report dated July of 1979.

(10) The state funding that is available is only for the repair and replacement at existing bridges. It cannot be applied to the building of bridges in new locations or applied to roads. If we do not get this bridge replaced now, it is very unlikely that we would ever get it replaced. We feel that the replacement of this bridge is imperative to the town's economic growth now and in the future.

In closing, there are only a few remarks to make. First, we were very upset to see the Thief River Falls city planner at the hearing on October 23. He was hired by the opposition and testified in opposition to the bridge replacement. We feel his opinion was very biased. And, to give an honest opinion, he should have consulted with both sides before voicing his personal opinions.

Mr. Quinlivan stated at the hearing that he was very familiar with the area in question. He stated that highway 17 (it really is county road 17) was tarred all the way south from county road 3 to Red Lake Falls, when in reality, it is only tarred for four miles south of county road 3 to the Red Lake county line.

We also realize that the main opposition, Doug Dehnert, has his own business in Thief River Falls and is not too concerned with the future and progress of the St. Hilaire community. We certainly understand that with the bridge out the traffic by his home has been halted and naturally much privacy has been gained. However, the old bridge was standing and useable when his new home was built. Therefore considering all facts, we feel it is not unreasonable to ask that our bridge be replaced in its original location.

Durenberger Upset By DOE Tactics On Gas

Senator Dave Durenberger has criticized the department of energy (DOE) for significantly contributing to the gasoline shortage of last spring and summer.

Durenberger was especially upset with DOE's failure to provide necessary assistance to independent service station operators who were seeking changes in their gasoline allocations. The effects of the agency's lack of responsiveness, said Durenberger, were long gasoline lines and many service stations going out of business.

Durenberger made his statement at a Senate committee on governmental affairs hearing at which energy secretary Charles Duncan was testifying.

The senator said DOE was created two years ago to manage the nation's energy situation and make policies and regulations responsive to the people and their needs. "Instead, DOE, throughout most of this year, has done just the opposite. I have a large file of letters and records of phone calls from owners of small businesses in Minnesota. These business people are community service station owners who literally were thrown to the wolves by DOE. The regulations governing their allocations of gasoline were changed by DOE with little notice and with no opportunity to comment.

"When they sought relief from DOE in the form of changes in their base period allocations they were ignored. As of October 10, 151 applications had been filed by Minnesota service station operators and jobbers. Almost one-third of the cases were filed before July 1 and are still waiting for action from your department," Durenberger told Duncan.

"These service stations are not part of the giant oil companies. They are independent businesses. In many cases, one or two stations will serve an entire community. How can they be responsive to their customers when DOE thwarts their every effort? And, if they are not responsive to their customers, how can they stay in business?" asked Durenberger.

Durenberger cited an oil industry newsletter which predicts gasoline shortages in Minnesota and other states this winter, perhaps within the next few weeks. "We may be facing another shortage, which means more applications for allocation changes from service stations, and I've seen little evidence that leads me to believe that DOE is better equipped to handle the situation," said the Minnesota senator.

Durenberger asked Duncan to provide written responses to a list of questions, including:

—Mr. Secretary, do you agree with the reports authored by your own department and the office of management and budget that blame DOE, at least in part, for the gasoline shortages of this spring and summer?

—On Feb. 28, 1979, the ERA issued a rule that changed the base period for determining gasoline allocations to service stations from 1972-73 to 1977-78 and made the change effective the next day, March 1. What public purpose was served by issuing such a rule and making it effective without notice and without the opportunity for public comment?

—We no longer have a middle distillate allocation program, even though middle distillates (diesel and heating oil) may be more important to economic stability and to our health and safety than gasoline. Why is it that we don't need an allocation program for middle distillates, but we do need an allocation program for gasoline?

Durenberger said he would report on Duncan's answers as soon as he received a response.

VA Announces Mobile Home Loan Rate Hike

Veterans administration has announced an increase in the maximum interest rate on mobile home loans from 12 to 12½ per cent.

Irvin D. Noll, director of the VA medical and regional office center in Fargo, said the increase was necessary to continue making loan funds available to veterans for the purchase of mobile homes. He said it was the first time the rate has been raised since August 1973.

Since the inception of the mobile home loan program in February 1971, VA has guaranteed 32,760 loans, nationally. These loans have been worth more than $330 million. Noll said the agency can guarantee up to $17,500 or 50 per cent of the loan, whichever is smaller.

Veterans administration recently increased its interest rate on GI home loans from 10 to 10½ per cent. Rate change does not affect existing VA home loans, he said.

Those eligible for these loan guarantees include veterans with service since September 16, 1940, certain unmarried surviving spouses of such veterans, spouses of servicemen listed as missing in action or captured for more than 90 days, and active duty military personnel who have served more than 181 days.

Acid Rain Is Topic Of Meet By Officials

University of Minnesota scientist Eville Gorham, Rep. James Oberstar and other Minnesotans will participate in an international conference on acid rain in Toronto November 1 through 3.

Some 40 government officials and scientists at the "Action Seminar on Acid Precipitation" will join a group of citizens from various conservation groups reviewing the growing evidence of this atmospheric phenomena's damaging effects and exploring public policies to combat it.

Acid rain is caused when air pollutants, primarily from automobiles and coal-fired power plants combine with water vapor and return to the earth as acidic rain. High acid levels can hamper or eliminate fish reproduction and may be responsible for the high levels of mercury being found in some fish, researchers say.

Gorham, an ecologist, will describe acid rain's impact on lakes and fisheries, which in some parts of Europe, Canada and the United States has been considerable. Besides affecting fish, acid rain can also damage crops, forests and buildings.

Gorham, an ecologist, will describe acid rain's impact on lakes and fisheries, which in some parts of Europe, Canada and the United States has been considerable. Besides affecting fish, acid rain can also damage crops, forests and buildings.

A recent U.S. environmental protection agency (EPA) study indicated that fish in about 50 north central Wisconsin lakes are on the verge of being wiped out by increased acidity. Preliminary data indicates that lakes in Northwestern Minnesota, particularly those in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA), may also be subject to the same fate. This area shares with north central Wisconsin a type of bedrock that cannot buffer high acid levels.

Gary Glass, a scientist with the EPA Duluth laboratories, will discuss data gathered from these areas at the conference. The increased acidity levels have been traced to local sources and to the long-range transport of pollutants from eastern industrial centers.

Glass will also discuss further dangers posed to the area by a coal-fired power plant under construction at Atikokan, Ontario, 40 miles north of the BWCA. Researchers and officials are concerned that increased acidity may ruin the sport fishing and tourist industry and reduce agriculture and timber productivity throughout northern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The devastating effects of acid rain were first discovered in Scandinavia where large areas have lost entire fish populations. Increased acidity has also destroyed fish populations in lakes in lower Ontario and the Adirondacks of upstate New York.

The global nature of acid rain, which is carried by the winds over large regions and has been found in the polar ice caps, has stumped scientists who are seeking a solution to the problem. They believe its effects can only be alleviated by curbing the use of fossil fuels and reducing their emissions.

The conference comes at a time when federal officials in the United States and Canada are attempting to negotiate a treaty about the control of trans-boundary pollutants which are contributing to acid rain problems in both countries. A panel discussion at the conference, which will include Oberstar, will consider alternatives for political action.

The conference is being sponsored by some 30 conservation organizations from both countries including the Minnesota-based Friends of the Boundary Waters Wilderness.

Seminar Hosts Specialists On Sunflowers

Two agri-business executives who oversee marketing of sunflowers and sunflower products for their respective companies will be featured speakers at the inaugural sunflower breakfast seminar in Crookston November 8.

A free buffet-style breakfast will be served at 7 a.m. in the Best Western motor inn's banquet facility. A program that "promises to be both informative and entertaining" will follow, according to a planning committee spokesman.

Sunflower growers, seed distributors and others associated with the Red River valley's sunflower industry are welcome to attend this first annual seminar. Educational event is being coordinated under auspices of the agriculture division of the University of Minnesota technical college — Crookston, with support and co-sponsorship from chemical manufacturing firms and sunflower processors of the area. Those interested producers who may not have received invitations can make reservations to attend by calling UMC, (218) 281-6510, ext. 250.

Ralph V. Hayenga, senior vice president of Honey mead products company of Minneapolis, will be keynoter of the seminar and will address conferees on the future of sunflower marketing, the theme chosen for this initial breakfast seminar.

A former owner and operator of a country elevator at Ellsworth and later manager of the Ellsworth farmers' elevator, Hayenga is also vice president of the board of directors of the Minneapolis grain exchange. He is a current member of the board of directors of the Sunflower association of America and a past president of the Minneapolis grain shippers association. Earlier in his career, after a stint as a grain merchandiser for the Grain terminal association in St. Paul, Hayenga was named to the board of the National flaxseed processors association.

Hayenga will be followed to the rostrum by Herb Steed of Cargill, Inc. Steed, who will also speak on the present and future status of product marketing in the sunflower industry, is a manager in the Cargill progessing group, whose offices are located in Minnetonka. An experienced market analyst with Cargill, Steed is much involved in development of the new Cargill facility in Fargo, N.D.

A question-and-answer period at the conclusion of Steed's commentary will precede an awards ceremony during which several leaders in the field of sunflower production will be recognized.

With over 50 pre-registrations, the "How To Improve Your Office Operations" seminar that will be held at Northland community college on Saturday from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. looks like a success, according to Barbara Hauger, seminar coordinator.

"The seminar will be invaluable for anyone responsible directly or indirectly for office functions, such as owners and managers of small businesses, administrators of companies and public institutions, administrative assistants, secretaries, file supervisors, accountants, architects, personnel managers, office managers and supervisors, controllers, word processing personnel, managers and supervisors of secretarial services, school administrators, business teachers and students preparing for office careers," Hauger said.

Seminar topics include human relations in the office, reducing paperwork, organizing records more effectively, effective content and efficient production of correspondence, ways to improve business forms and new technology for the office.

Conducting the seminar will be Dr. Mark Langemo of Consultants for Offices and Education, Grand Forks, ND.

Persons interested in attending this professional development seminar for one college credit at a cost of $12.75 should contact Northland college (681-2181) for a brochure and a registration form. Those who wish to register on the day of the seminar may do so, but for better planning pre-registration is encouraged.

Audubon Group To Meet Nov. 7 At Northland

Agassiz Audubon chapter will hold its fall meeting Wednesday, November 7 at 8 p.m. at Northland community college, Room A16.

The chapter has had its officers and yearly meetings on a rotational basis, which includes Thief River Falls, Crookston and Warren, and will be based at Thief River Falls for the next three years. The November 7 meeting will be organizational, and election of officers will take place. A ballot was included in the chapter's newsletter sent out two weeks ago and nominations will be open until voting begins.

All present members and prospective members are urged to attend and take part in the chapter's functions, to make the chapter a viable group in dealing with the many environmental issues facing the public today, and participate in outings that are being planned.

Time and place of each meeting will be announced in advance. Watch for these dates if you are interested in the chapter's activities.

For further information on balloting or activities call Randy Johnson, 681-5372 or Keith Steva, 681-5289.

Good Diet, Life Style Alters Cancer Trend

American health foundation predicts that cancer, heart disease and stroke will be even more prevalent when today's generation of children reaches maturity. Foundation's president, epidemiologist Ernest Wynder, says the trend could be turned around if health and school officials put a high priority on giving school children instruction in good diet and life styles. (Wynder is the scientist who first linked heavy cigarette smoking and cancer.)

According to Dr. Carl Knutson, state supervisor for health, physical education and safety, an innovative new school health curriculum is being implemented to assist and encourage elementary students to develop and practice sound health habits.

The school health curriculum project encompasses grades four through seven. Overall goals deal with appreciation of the human body; an understanding of how the body interacts with the environment and daily practices of the individual, and knowledge of body systems and functions. Each grade unit is organized around the structure, functioning and care of a body system.

A workshop at St. Cloud university July 23-31 trained over 50 state fourth grade teachers in the initial unit, highlighting the importance of good nutrition. Another workshop for fourth grade teachers, emphasizing good nutritional habits, will be announced in the near future.

For more information on the curriculum project and on available funds for training fourth grade teachers, contact Dr. Carl Knutson, Minnesota Department of Education, Capitol Square, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Grants for the school health curriculum training are provided by the Minnesota division of the American Cancer society, the Minnesota Lung association, the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association and the Minnesota department of education.

Seniors Warned Against False Medicare Sales

Insurance commissioner Michael Markman has warned senior citizens to be careful in their dealings with anyone trying to sell Medicare supplement policies or discuss health insurance.

Markman noted that about this time every year efforts to sell medicare supplement policies increase. This happens when an announcement is made that Medicare Part A deductible is about to increase. On Jan. 1, 1980 the deductible will go from $160 to $180.

According to Markman, the insurance division gets a seasonal increase in the number of complaints from senior citizens about people identifying themselves as Medicare representatives whose real intention is to sell commercial Medicare supplement policies. Markman said Medicare has no field representatives and personal contact is made only at an individual's request.

Markman offered some hints for senior citizens who might be approached about purchasing supplemental coverage:

(1) Know the salesperson — If anyone claims to be from the government and then tries to sell an insurance policy, that person should be reported to the state insurance division. Supplemental policies are not serviced or sold by government;

(2) Ask for identification — All licensed insurance agents must show their license if asked;

(3) Be wary of anyone who tries to rush you into a decision — A reputable agent will give you time to make up your mind;

(4) Take advantage of Minnesota's 10-day "free-look" law — You have 10 days to review any insurance policy you buy. If you decide not to keep it, you can send it back to the agent of company and get a refund;

(5) Never pay cash — Pay for your policy by check, money order or bank draft payable only to the insurance company.

In addition, Markman said it is just good sense to shop carefully and avoid unnecessary duplicate coverage.

"A person's best defense against an unscrupulous agent is information", Markman said. "A current basic medicare supplement policy will have two advantages over a new policy. First the 60-90 day pre-existing conditions limitation has passed. Second, the renewal premium on an existing policy is often less than the initial premium on a new policy.

Insurance division has a pamphlet titled "Guide to Health Insurance for People with Medicare." People seeking more information should write to the Insurance Division, 500 Metro Square Building, St. Paul, MN 55101 and ask for a copy.

Precautions In Home May Save Life Of Child

"Danger: Kitchen." That message could be posted in virtually every kitchen in the country because the kitchen is possibly the most dangerous room in the house. And two of its most useful contents — knives and the stove — are the greatest hazards to children, states the Minnesota chapter of the American academy of pediatrics.

Hundreds of children are treated annually in emergency rooms for injuries from knives, accidents that could have been avoided with a few simple precautions. A knife should be wiped clean and put away immediately after use. Placing it on a countertop or in the sink makes it too easy for a curious child to find.

Knives should be kept in a special rack, placed high on a wall or better yet, on a top cabinet shelf. They should never be kept in a drawer or left in a dish drainer.

Parents should take time to teach older children how to use a knife properly, beginning with a table knife before allowing a child to use sharper knives. Be sure the child knows what to do before allowing him or her to use a knife alone.

The stove cannot be put away in a safe place, but precautionary measures when using it can reduce the risk of burns. Crawling infants should be kept in a playpen if it's necessary for them to be in the kitchen while someone is cooking. It is very easy to trip over a baby while carrying a hot pot of food from the stove to the table.

When a toddler is in the house, an adult should be in the kitchen when food is being prepared. It only takes a few seconds for a child to pull open a hot oven or climb up to the stove to see what smells so good. And even when an adult is around, be sure pot handles are turned to the back of the stove. A handle that sticks out can be touched in passing and the pan's contents spilled.

A stove is for cooking, not storing. Don't use a stove-top, or the cabinets or shelves above the stove, to store items that a child might want. A youngster might climb on the stove to reach a cookie jar, lighting a burner en route, and be set on fire or seriously burned.

Other kitchen hazards are less obvious than a hot stove or sharp knives. Plastic plates, glasses and bowls can be dangerous because they are breakable. Don't use them for young children. A toddler carrying a plastic container of juice may fall and be injured or disfigured on the broken plastic glass.

An electric coffee pot is another hazard. Even when the pot is placed safely out of reach, be sure its cord is also put away. Otherwise the pot can be pulled onto the child, spilling hot coffee and causing a bad burn.

When children are small, use placemats rather than tablecloths. A six-month-old may grab a tablecloth to try to stand, and pull down the entire contents. An active two-year-old could become entangled in a low-hanging cloth with similar results.

Be extra careful with your kitchen trash container. Its contents may be dangerous too. Pull-tabs from pop and beer cans may be swallowed; lids from opened tin cans may cause cuts. A plastic bag may cause suffocation if a child puts it over his or her head. When clothes are returned from the cleaners in plastic bags, tie the bag in several knots before throwing it away. That and other easy precautions may mean life or death to a child.

Common Home Items Possible Hazard To Child

A portable television. . . a vase of flowers. . . an open window. . . a beautifully waxed hardwood floor; each can represent a danger to an infant or toddler if precautions aren't taken.

When an infant first learns to crawl, the most common dangers are electrical cords in which the child may become entangled, and sharp corners on the bottoms of furniture. Arranging the room to allow plenty of open space is the best way of eliminating the hazards.

As a child progresses to pulling itself up by grasping furniture, parents should be aware of any pieces that might topple over onto the child. If possible, put these into storage until the youngster is walking well. At about the same age, the child will begin opening doors in end tables and cabinets. Check the contents and if anything stored there is dangerous, move it to a safe location or secure the doors with tot-locks or string. This is especially true of liquor cabinets. Children like the taste of many liquors and even drinking a small amount may result in alcohol poisoning. Dresser drawers also should be checked for potentially harardous contests.

Portable televisions on stands or low furniture are particularly dangerous. Children love to turn the set on and off and the set can slowly edge to the front of the stand until it falls off onto the child.

Drapery cords that are allowed to hang loose rather than be anchorsed top and bottom can result in strangulations if a child puts the "noose" end around his or her neck.

When a child first learns to walk, he or she will fall countless times. End tables, coffee tables and other furniture with sharp corners should be childproofed by putting foam rubber covers over corners or by moving the furniture against a wall and out of the toddler's safe traffic area. A sharp blow to the temple or eye of a child could result in serious injury.

Be careful of what you put on low tables too. A glass vase on a coffee table looks pretty, but if grabbed and broken by a small child can cause serious cuts.

Many older houses especially have low windowsills. Be extra cautious about these open windows. A curious toddler can climb onto a windowsill and fall out. A heavy dresser that can't be climbed over is a good window-blocker.

Outside entry doors should have shatter-proof glass, or glass panels may be replaced with heavy plastic inserts. Protective and decorative guards may be installed at child level for additional safety. Storm doors should be on only the minimal time that weather dictates because these doors frequently are not made with safety glass.

Taking a few minutes to safety-proof your home can make growing up a safer experience for your child!

Roller Skating Revival Raises Injury Numbers

Roller skating revival has not only brought on a boom for roller skate manufacturers, but also a boom of another sort. Roller skaters, both children and adults, are experiencing increasing numbers of injuries that range from bumps and bruises to fractures and concussions, according to physicians at St. Paul children's hospital.

Consumer products safety commission says roller skating accidents last year caused an estimated 100,000 injuries, nearly double the number reported in 1974. An orthopedic surgeon at Children's hospital, Ivan Schloff, M.D., says that many injuries come from the recent increase in outdoor skating.

"We're seeing an especially large increase in the number of injuries due to the increased popularity of skating as an outdoor sport," Schloff says.

Bruises, scrapes and fractures of the upper extremities top the list of roller skating injuries, according to Schloff. "The skater accelerates in speed, hits a bump, reaches out with the hands to brace the fall, and breaks one or both wrists," he says. Occasionally, the skater will shatter an elbow."

Teen-agers and older adults are more apt to shatter their elbows because they weigh more than younger children and there's a greater force when they hit the ground, Schloff says.

Next most common injury is fractured kneecaps. Broken and sprained ankles occur less frequently. "Head injuries are even more rare," Schloff adds. "But as in most sports, when someone is moving at an accelerated speed, a sudden stop against a hard object, such as a pole or wall, can cause a head injury."

Many skaters think it's "cool" to lace their skates only partially. But those skaters are "more prone to accidents than those who lace-up their skates completely," Schloff says.

Children's hospital emergency services medical director, Russell LaBeau, M.D., reminds children and adults alike that learning to skate should be done slowly. "Roller-skating is not something that most people learn in a hurry. They need to practice and to be cautious to avoid serious injuries," he says.

Both physicians list the following precautions to help prevent roller skating injuries:

Roller skates should fit properly and should be laced properly to provide ankle support and prevent tripping on overly long skate laces.

Roller skates should be kept in good working condition.

Long pants and long-sleeve shirts or knee and elbow pads can be worn to help reduce the severity of abrasions and bruises.

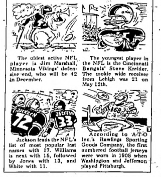
Skaters who wear eye glasses should use an eleastic band to keep from losing or breaking the glasses in a fall.

An inexperienced skater should pick up tips on starting, stopping and controlling the skates from an instructor or an experienced skater.

Ourdoor skating should be done in areas with no obstructions and no automobile traffic.

"Outdoor skating is on the increase and should be treated with caution and care so the skater can continue to enjoy the sport without injuries," Schloff says.

Football Follies



The oldest active NFL player is Jim Marshall, Minnesota Vikings' defensive end, who will be 42 in December.

The youngest player in the NFL is the Cincinnati Bengals' Steve Kreider. The rookie wide receiver from Lehigh was 21 on May 12th.

Jackson leads the NFL's list of most popular last names with 17. Williams is next with 15, followed by Jones with 13, and White with 11.

According to A-T-O Inc.'s Rawlings Sporting Goods Company, the first numbered football jerseys were worn in 1908 when Washington and Jefferson played Pittsburgh.

Meat Grading Rule Changes Made By USDA

The U.S. department of agriculture will propose changes in the federal meat grading regulations to improve grading efficiency and reduce grading variations.

Under the proposal, meat would be graded only as carcasses or sides, and beef, mutton and lamb would be graded only at the plant in which the animals are slaughtered. Veal and calf would be graded only after the hide is removed and only in the plant where such removal occurs.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said this practice would reduce some of the variations in grading which results when meat is offered for grading as carcasses or sides and later as quarters or wholesale cuts, and at locations distant from the point of slaughter. Provisions would be made for grading damaged sides.

Foreman said the new proposal is based on comments and information developed as a result of a January 1978 proposal, which the department will withdraw Oct. 12.

Additional changes — applying only to beef — would:

— Define "beef carcass" more specifically to reduce confusion over what constitutes a carcass.

— Specify that a beef carcass be ribbed at least 10 minutes before it is offered for grading. This will allow the grade determining factors — marbling and color, texture and firmness of the lean — time to develop to the extent needed for an accurate grade determination to be made.

— Permit the yield grade mark to be removed from officially graded beef carcasses or cuts which have a layer of fat (natural or trimmed) ¾" or less. This specifies how thick the fat layer can be before yield grade designations may be removed. Removing these grade marks will permit low yield cuts to be accepted in the marketplace after fat cover has been removed.

— Clarify language in the present regulations which prevents trimming that alters the actual fat cover over the ribeye if a carcass is to be presented for grading.

Also published in January 1978 was a proposed plan to label "U.S. Ungraded" any meat which had not received a USDA grade designation. The department will consider this proposal separately after completion of a survey being conducted now on consumer perceptions of grade names.

Notice of the new proposal will be published in the Oct. 16 Federal Register. Copies may be obtained from Meat Quality Division, Food Safety and Quality Service, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Comments should be submitted in duplicate by Dec. 17 to the Executive Secretariat, FSQS, rm. 3807-S, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Gross Sales Of Red Meat Drop $86.1 Million

Estimated gross marketing receipts of livestock farmers who sold red meat animals to commercial slaughter plants in Minnesota this September dropped to $80.1 million or 12 per cent below that month last year, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported recently.

Hog producers experienced the biggest cut in gross income. September receipts of nearly $37 million was down by $11.3 million or more than 23 per cent despite having marketed nearly 7 per cent more pork animals this year compared to that month in 1978. Salughter hog prices now are at the lowest levels in the past three years; as Minnesota celebrated "October Pork Month."

Marketing receipts also declined this September for producers of beef and veal animals due to lower volume available for commercial slaughter although market prices are higher than last year. Only lamb and sheep producers cashed in on higher market prices with increased volume of marketings.

Commissioner Seetin said the September cutback did not change Minnesota's ranking as the nation's eighth leading supplier of total red meats. Minnesota's 1,201,575,000 pounds of red meats production during the first nine months of 1979 represents 4.4 per cent of the national total. That was 6 per cent less than Minnesota commercial slaughter output for January through September last year.

Gross slaughter livestock marketing receipts for the first three quarters of this year are estimated at $995.1 million, up by $68.4 million or nearly 8 per cent compared to the same period of 1978.

Beef cattle lead in estimated gross income at $519.6 million share of Minnesota's total despite an 18 per cent reduction in slaughter volume compared to last year's first nine months. January through September receipts were 15 per cent above last year.

Slaughter hog receipts for the January through September period were $417.4 million. September decline changed what had been an eight month gain to a $4.3 million drop in gross income for pork producers when compared to January through September 1978.

Lamb and sheep slaughter receipts through September this year are estimated at $17.4 million, higher by $3.6 million due primarily to a 19 per cent increase in the volume of animals marketed.

Minnesota's veal valf marketings continued at one of the lowest levels in over a decade and 31 per cent below the first nine months of 1978. Gross receipts for the nine months were an estimated $66,000.

Dairymen Vote To Continue Check-off Plan

Minnesota dairy farmers have overwhelmingly approved a five-year extension of the self financed research, promotion and market development program in a mail referendum required by state law and supervised by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Ballots were cast in a mail referendum held between September 17 and 27 by 20,469 producers, or nearly 77 per cent of the 26,665 eligible Minnesota dairy farmers. Over 78 per cent of those voting supported continuation of the self financed check-off program.

Since 1975, when the Minnesota dairy research and promotion program was initiated by the nation's fourth leading diary state, producers have been contributing one half of one per cent of their milk checks to support the market development activities.

At current Minnesota farm average milk prices, that check-off contribution amounts to about one half cent per gallon of raw milk. Because of this state's high volume of milk production, last year's Minnesota producer check-off support for research and promotion totaled nearly $3.4 million.

Minnesota's dairy research and promotion program is managed by a producer elected 22 member council.

In 1978 the Minnesota dairy research and promotion council allocated nearly 73 per cent of its check-off revenue to advertising, four per cent to product and market research, nearly 14 per cent for consumer education on the nutritional importance of dairy products, nearly two per cent for return to local promotion in the rural community, nearly two per cent for member relations, and slightly over six per cent for administration management and operating costs.

Sign Vandalism Costs Up 42% Over Last Year

Highway sign vandalism costs are up 42 per cent this year from the previous 12-month reporting period, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Vandalism of highway signs cost Minnesota taxpayers nearly $127,000 compared with $89,000 last year. The signs were stolen or were damaged by gunfire, paint or other means.

"Although the actual number of signs vandalized increased by only four per cent to a total of nearly 5,000," Braun said, "higher material and labor costs significantly increased the expense to repair or replace these signs."

Of those totals, gunfire accounted for two-fifths of the total cost of sign vandalism, with 2,400 cases costing over $51,000. Another 1,000 signs were stolen at a cost of $30,000 and 500 signs were damaged by paint at a repair cost of $14,000. More than 1,000 signs were damaged in other ways at a cost of $31,000.

Braun said causes for the increases or decreases are hard to pinpoint, but he reminds that sign theft and alteration are dangerous practices which can lead to injury or death. When signs have been removed or their message altered, motorists have either no warning or misleading information about the roads they are traveling.

He also reminds that sign vandalism is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and-or a jail sentence of up to 90 days. Possession of highway signs is a petty misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $100.

Gunfire damage to signs was greater in the northern part of the state. The central area had the only decrease where total sign vandalism dropped 48 per cent from 1,489 last year to 778 this year.

By contrast, valdalism cases jumped from 6 to 92 (91 of which were theft) in the metropolitan area of Minneapolis, including parts of suburban Hennepin, Anoka, Carver and Scott counties.

REMOVING HIS HAT and coat to reach higher speeds, Norman Rokke, McIntosh, sped through the Red Owl aisles to come as close to the $150 mark in groceries as he could. "That's the most groceries he's ever picked up," his wife said. Rokke collected $97.21 in groceries during the three minute spree. Grocery gathering was part of the harvest bonanza shopping spree conducted in Thief River Falls at participating stores Monday morning.

Women Are Prime Target Of Arthritis

There is one kind of discrimination against women that no legislation can correct. According to the Arthritis foundation, arthritis attacks women far more frequently than it does men. Over half a million Minnesotans have the disease, of which number more than 300,000 are women.

Over 30 million people are victims of arthritis — and 21 million are women, many in their early twenties, or younger. Women are also the prime targets of the most serious form of the disease, rheumatoid arthritis.

Because more and more women are working outside the home, the problem of arthritis in women is increasingly serious, an Arthritis Foundation spokesman pointed out. Women with heavy pressure on their time are more likely to ignore the early warning signs of arthritis: persistent pain and stiffness upon arising; pain and swelling in one or more joints; tingling sensations in the fingertips, hands, and feet; and unexplained weight loss, fever, anemia, or fatigue.

During November a message on arthritis in women may be heard by calling the Arthritis foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Literature on arthritis is available free to callers.

Free services of the Arthritis foundation are made possible in most Minnesota communities by the United Fund.

Northland, Crookston Renew Rivalry

Rival northwestern Minnesota college football coaches Irv Smith of Northland and Jim Sims of Crookston will start their 1979-80 recruiting battle Saturday -- on the Lincoln athletic field in Crookston. The two Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) teams meet at 1:30 that afternoon to close out their 1979 Northern Division schedules.

"It'll mean a lot to our recruiting if we can beat Crookston," said Smith whose four-year-old Northland program is still struggling to match the success enjoyed by the Trojans who have been playing football 14 years; the past four years under Sims, who coached high school football in Thief River Falls for 10 years before moving to Crookston in 1976.

"Crookston has had their way," admitted Smith who knows only too well that the Trojans have out-scored the Northmen 98-0 in three previous meetings. "It would be worth something to us if we could tell a kid, "Hey, we beat them; we're on par with them." I think it would influence a player's decision on where he decides to attend school."

Smith brought in a large freshman class this fall. The 43 freshman on the current roster includes 28 out-state players and is from northwestern Minnesota. Smith feels he can land a bigger percentage of the area players s time around.

"I expect Northland football will do better in this area this year," Smith says of his recruiting prospects. "I think we've got a good base to work from. If we can build on what we have, we'll be in good shape for next year."

By Smith's figuring, Northland has more area players in its starting line-up this year than does Crookston. Smith's area starters include wide receivers Jeff Olson (Warren) and Dan Levenhagen (Lancaster); defensive linemen Jeff Reese (Hallock), Kelly Turgeon (Warren), Duane Kjono (Mahnomen), and Jon Sipe (Baudette); linebackers Joe Ranum (TRF) and Todd Tangen (Fosston); and kicker Jeff Gobell (TRF). In addition, injuries have shelved wide receiver Joe Kraska (Lancaster) and fullback Howard Beito (Hallock), both starters.

Crookston's starting line-up Saturday, said Smith, will probably include quarterback Frank Dostal (Badger), offensive guard Kevin Beckman (EGF) and defensive players Rod Balstad (EGF), Bruce Foss (Roseau) and Bernie Foss (Roseau). The Trojans also have five Moorhead high school graduates in their line-up.

"We expect to do much better than we have in the past against Crookston," mentioned Smith as he looked ahead to Saturday's game. "I think our Minnesota kids in particular are looking forward to the game because that's our big rival." He's hoping the out-state Northmen will get caught up in the atmosphere.

Cuppett Leads Sioux To Title

With Thief River Falls sophomore goalie Marchell Cuppett recording three shutouts, the University of North Dakota women's field hockey team won the AIAW Sub Region VI tournament over the weekend in Grand Forks to earn a berth in the AIAW Region VI championships Nov, 8-10 at Warrensburg, Missouri.

Cuppett registered her 10th, 11th and 12th shutouts of the year by blanking Northern Iowa 3-0, Emporia (Kansas) State 4-0 and South Dakota State 6-0 in the Sub Region IV competition.

"Cuppett was again great," praised North Dakota coach Margaret Peterson. Cuppett, who has not allowed a goal since Oct. 18, has lowered her goals-against-average to 1.32 (37 goals in 28 games). She has blanked seven of North Dakota's last 11 opponents.

FASTEST TIME OF the year for Lincoln high school junior Franki Kuyath made her a winner in the 500-yard freestyle during Tuesday's Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool. Kuyath swam the event in 6:13 as part of the Prowlers' surprisingly easy 105-65 victory over the Lakers.

Lincoln Swimmers Win 105-65 . . .

TRF Surprisingly Easy Winners Over Lakers

John Hustad is a terrible mathematician. Moments before the start of Tuesday's dual meet against Detroit Lakes, the Lincoln high school swimming coach said by his calculations the Prowlers and Lakers were headed for an 86-86 tie. "That's what I come up with by going right down the line matching our best times against their best times; unless one of us swims out of our minds," he said.

Well, Thief River Falls has a bunch of mindless swimmers today and Hustad will have to check the batteries in his calculator because the Prowlers overwhelmed the Lakers 105-65 in the Franklin middle school pool to improve their dual meet season record to 5-4, reversing a season-opening 46-37 loss at Detroit Lakes.

"It was just some really, really good swims," said Hustad when he tried to explain the unexpectedly easy victory that was highlighted by a school and pool record by junior Kathy Dillon in the 100 freestyle where her 58.0 bettered Joan Jury's 1975 clocking of 58.6.

But Dillon wasn't alone. Juniors Franki Kuyath and Betsie Hallstrom also made news as Kuyath swam her fastest time of the year — a 6:13.0 — for a surprising win in the 500-yard freestyle, and Hallstrom reestablished herself as the top sprinter in Section 3 with a 26.6 in the 50-yard freestyle. And the 200-yard medley relay team of Dillon, Joan Glauque, Kuyath, and Hallstrom swam a season-best 2:03.8.

There were lots of "unexpected" points for the Prowlers to account for the wide point spread, according to Hustad who went down the events and listed a fourth in the 50-yard freestyle by Karla Lokken; a 1-2-3 finish in diving with Brenda Lund, Lisa Desrocher and Lori Swanson; a first in the 100-yard butterfly by Glauque; a second in the 100-yard freestyle by Hallstrom; Kuyath's win in the 500; a third by Shari McGann in her first 500 of the year; a second by freshman Sarah Green who posted the Prowlers' fastest time of the year in her first every 100-yard backstroke; a fourth by Andrea Lia in the backstroke; and a victory by an inexperienced 400-yard freestyle relay team that featured Johanna Desrocher, Lund, Green and Glauque.

"We made some changes," mentioned Hustad who said he was still looking for the right combination. It appears he might have found it.

Thief River Falls faces two challenges next week when the Prowlers travel to Moorhead for a 4 p.m. meet Tuesday and return home to host Brainerd in a 5 p.m. meet Thurs., Nov. 8.

Two Volleyball Coaches Visit Sports Boosters

Volleyball coaches Sharon Stauss of Lincoln high school and Deb Jacobson of Northland community college will be the guest speakers Thursday at the weekly 12 noon luncheon meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

The meeting is open to the public.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER completing the 50-yard freestyle, Thief River Falls junior Betsie Hallstrom turned to the scoreboard check Tuesday to see that her first place 26.6 ranks her as the fastest sprinter in Section 3 this fall. Hallstrom and her Thief River Falls teammates beat Detroit Lakes 105-65 in the Franklin middle school pool.

Girls High School Volleyball Tournament . .

Spuds Expected To Win North Half 8AA Title

Host Moorhead high school is an overwhelming pre-tournament favorite heading into Saturday's start of the 1979 North Half Region 8AA girls volleyball tournament.

Considered potential state tournament winners, the Spuds are expected to dominate the North Half Region 8AA field which includes Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Fergus Falls and Park Rapids.

First round pairings Saturday will find Bemidji playing Thief River Falls at 2 p.m., East Grand Forks meets Fergus Falls at 3:30, Crookston faces Park Rapids at 7 and Detroit Lakes tackles Moorhead at 8:30.

Semifinals and finals will be played Thurs., Nov. 8. In the semifinals, the Bemidji-Thief River Falls winner plays the East Grand Forks-Fergus Falls winner at 5 p.m. and the Crookston-Park Rapids winner meets the Detroit Lakes-Moorhead winner at 6:30. Those winners will square off in the 8 p.m. championship match.

"I think we're the obvious favorite to meet the obvious favorite," noted Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss who expects to find her Prowlers in the finals opposite Moorhead. "If we play the way we can we should reach the finals."

Thief River Falls finished its 1979 regular season schedule with a 9-7 record, which included a 2-0 victory over Bemidji earlier this month. Crookston would be a probable semifinal opponent for the Prowlers who are expected to handle the first-year Lumberjills in the opening round. Thief River Falls and Crookston split a pair of regular season meetings, with the Prowlers winning 2-0 back on Sept. 25, before playing poorly and losing their final home appearance to the Pirates 2-1 last week.

"We've been improving every game," mentioned Stauss. "That's why last Tuesday (the Crookston loss) was such a big disappointment. It was a major setback for us."

Although she anticipated a championship match berth, Stauss isn't foolhardy enough to expect a Thief River Falls title. Moorhead easily beat the Prowlers 2-0 two weeks ago with an impressive display of volleyball skills in the Lincoln gym.

"We've never played up to our potential when we've faced Moorhead," said Stauss who hinted the Prowlers face a psychological barrier when playing the Spuds, a team they have never beaten. "We just sit back and let Moorhead control things against us."

Northland Ends Season By Playing Rival Crookston

Uncharacteristic of a Jim Sims-coached ground-orientated option football team, Crookston passed for 190 yards last week in a 14-0 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) win over Itasca. But it's still the ground-gobbling wishbone that concerns Northland community college coach Irv Smith heading into Saturday's 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game at Crookston that will close out the 1979 season for the two area rivals.

"We've got to stop the option. If we don't stop the option, the ball game is over," explained Smith who narrowed it down even more to stopping the Trojans' inside ground game. "We've got to stop that fullback dive. If they can run the ball inside, they'll be able to run outside, because we'll have to stack people up inside."

Frank Dostal, a sophomore from Badger, in his first start at quarterback, completed seven of 12 passes for 190 yards against Itasca as the Trojans extended their modest winning streak to four games and improved their season record to 5-3, 5-2 in the MJCAA. Dostal replaced regular signal caller Dewey King of Moorhead the week before to produce a 21-9 win over Fergus Falls.

Still, Smith isn't overly concerned about Dostal's passing that included a 26-yard toudhdown strike to Kevin Danielson in the third quarter and a 22-yard pass to Bill Gimler in the first quarter that set up a two-yard Mike Sandt touchdown run against the Vikings.

"I think we have the the best defensive secondary in the league," boasted Smith. "That's one area where we're really improved over last year."

Northland defensive backs include starters Luis Delahoz (Miami, Fla.), Paul Wilcox (Miami) and Brian Thomas (Inkster, Mich.), along with Jim McCue (Deer Park, N.Y.), Blair Spikes (Inkster), Zayne Poitier (Miami), Ted Sarrazin (Clyde Park, Mont.) and Brad Arneson (Norco, Calif.).

Both Northland and Crookston had trouble holding on to the football last week as both teams lost five fumbles. But the Trojans still managed to shut out Itasca while the Northmen saw four of those five fumbles turned into touchdowns in a 34-3 loss to Northern Division champion Golden Valley Lutheran. The difference — in addition to the opposition — was that Crookston also recovered five Itasca fumbles and picked off two passes by the Vikings.

"We were emotionally ready to play Golden Valley," pointed out Smith who watched his team lose for the sixth time in eight starts. "And some of our people played their best ball game of the season. It was just a matter of some others letting us down. And that's discouraging. It's sometimes hard to tell how a team will react after losing like that, but from all indications our kids will bounce back. The only game we played flat this year was at Bismarck. I think we'll be up both emotionally and physically."

Crookston, after losing back-to-back season-opening games to Bismarck 33-2 and Golden Valley 28-0, has bounced back to lock up second place in the Northern Division with wins over Brainerd 34-9, Vermilion 24-22, Hibbing 27-7, Fergus Falls and Itasca. Only Crookston loss in the past six weeks was a 10-0 defeat at the hands of Mesabi in a game the Trojans dominated but couldn't win.

There are still goals for Northland to shoot for in the season finale, says Smith. The Northmen have never beaten the Trojans, losing 45-0 in 1976, 21-0 in 1977 and 32-0 in 1978; and they have never won more than two games since they first fielded an intercollegiate football team four years ago.

In other Northern Division games this week, Brainerd is at Hibbing, Fergus Falls is at Vermilion and Itasca is at Mesabi. Last week Mesabi beat Fergus Falls 10-9 and Vermilion stopped Hibbing 21-12.

TOP DIVER in Section 3, Thief River Falls junior Brenda Lund, turned in another strong showing with a 238.40-point first place performance during Tuesday's dual meet competition against Detroit Lakes. Thief River Falls finished 1-2-3 in the diving competition with Lund, Lisa Desrocher and Lori Swanson. The Prowlers beat the visiting Lakers 105-65.

Scots Enter State Playoffs On Friday

With a 33-16 qualifying game win over Northern Lights Conference champion Kennedy under their belts, the North Tri County Conference champion McIntosh-Winger Scots will advance to the opening round quarterfinal round of the 1979 Minnesota state high school nine-man football playoffs Friday against Agassiz Valley Conference champion Lake Park. The 7:30 p.m. game will be played at Lake Park.

It'll be the second post-season appearance by the Scots who participated in the state Class C playoffs in 1975.

Boasting a 9-1 record, the Scots rely heavily on senior runningback Coby Burslie who has rushed for 1,146 yards on 167 carries this fall. Burslie also leads in the team in scoring with 158 points and has returned 23 kicks for 421 yards.

Junior quarterback Todd Haugen has completed 34 passes for 569 yards and nine touchdowns.

Tackle Ray Van, a senior, anchors the offensive line. Juniors Cameron Burslie and Rick Parent are at the ends, with Juniors Kevin Kundert at center and Glen Smeby at tackle. Seniors Dean DeFrang and Jim Strom, along with junior Eric Balstad, have also seen extensive action on offense.

The Scots have totaled 3,000 yards total offense.

Senior Anders Forslund, an exchange student from Sweden, has handled the kicking with a 40 yard average on kickoff. He is four of eight on conversions and two for two on field goals of 27 and 28 yards. Eric Balstad handles the punting chores.

Opponents have scored 124 points in ten games and have collected 1,800 yards against the Scots. But the McIntosh-Winger rushing defense has been strong — with only three opponents breaking the 100 yards total.

Starters in the defensive line have been Senior Jeff Gunderson, Van, Smeby, Balstad and Kundert. At the linebacker position McIntosh-Winger has used Rude, Parent, and the Burslies.

Seeing duty at safeties will be junior Mark Thompson and Nelson. Haugen and Strom will also be available for duty.

Lone McIntosh-Winger defeat this year came at the hands of Middle River 20-14. The Scots season peaked with a 14-8 decision over the third-ranked Gonvick-Trail Bulldogs, the defending conference champions, in the final game of the regular season schedule to earn a post-season berth.

State Football Playoffs Open This Weekend In Minnesota

First of 20 state football playoff quarterfinal games in five classes — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — will begin Friday and continue through Saturday night at various sites throughout the state.

Last year 41,196 spectators viewed state playoff quarterfinal action with a total of 75,669 persons watching all 35 state playoff encounters.

There are a number of "qualifying games" in each of the five classes that were held Tuesday. Games matched champions of various conferences against one another with victors advancing to the eighth annual state playoffs.

New state champions are certain in each of the five classes this year as none of last year's titlists are entered in this year's playoffs. There is one champion from 1978, however, that could win a title this year in another classification: Alden-Conger, last year's Class C winner, is still in the running and was involved in a nine-man qualifying game Tuesday night. Alden-Conger is the holder of the state's longest winning streak — 25 games.

Deer Hunters

Here are some tips on how to rough skin deer heads for the taxidermist.

- Make cuts as shown by the heavy black lines in Fig. 1.
- Cut from the inside out to avoid damaging the hair
- Peel skin back from the neck to the base of the skull as shown in Fig. 2
- Cut the skull free from the neck at the area shown by dotted line in Fig 2

NOTE: Make the neck cut up the center back of the neck — DO NOT make any cuts in the front throat area!

November 4 Is Bowl-For-Breath Start In State

Bowlers across Minnesota will participate in the third annual "Bowl-For-Breath" to beat cystic fibrosis (CF) Sunday, November 4, through Sunday, December 2, at 72 Minnesota bowling centers. Minnesota Jaycee women will again coordinate this massive project.

Bowl-For-Breath chairpersons Joe Salem, University of Minnesota football coach, and bowling star Georgene Cordes, have set a $200,000 goal for this event. Last year 1,500 bowlers at 48 centers raised $165,000 for CF treatment and research programs.

Bowlers are asked to find sponsors for at least a penny a pin for the three games bowled. Prizes will be awarded for the number of sponsors recruited and not for bowling score. Every bowler who meets the entry requirement of five sponsors will win a prize. The more sponsors a bowler recruits, the more prizes he or she will win.

Everyone, regardless of age or bowling skill can enter and help strike out the number one genetic killer of children.

Pledge forms are available at all participating centers. Local project co-chairpersons are Judy Evenson, 681-6631, and Vickie Schimke, 681-6430. Contact them for more information or call the Family Bowl, 681-1270.

Closed Area At Agassiz Refuge Will Be Posted

Deer hunters at Agassiz national wildlife refuge are reminded that a new "closed area" has been established this year due to the construction of a new refuge maintenance center.

The closed area is on the eastern boundary of the refuge, extending one mile north along the east boundary to Ditch 194, west past the intersection of Airport road, south to county highway 7 and east along county highway 7 to the east boundary.

The area will be clearly marked with signs. The Airport road will be closed to vehicular traffic.

The new closed area is in addition to the closed area existing around the refuge headquarters that provide protection for refuge families and for refuge buildings and equipment.

A map showing the closed areas can be obtained by writing the Refuge Manager, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Middle River, MN 56737, or by calling 218-449-4115.

Ag. Department Simplifies Food-Stamp Forms

"It was frightening! I didn't know what to do. I needed help!

Dorothy was not describing an encounter with a monster from one of the wave of recent horror films. She was talking about an experience that was far more mundane but nearly as intimidating — filling out the old food stamp application and certification forms.

Fortunately for Dorothy, a food stamp participant in Rockville, Md., the agriculture department has issued new, simplified forms that will help millions of food stamp users and thousands of food stamp caseworkers around the country.

New forms are courteous in tone, graphically appealing, and they provide plenty of space to write in.

"The new forms are easier to read, easier to write on. They're printed up better and easier to understand," Dorothy says.

"You began to feel like a number with the old forms," says Veronica, a former food stamp user who is now a caseworker in Rockville. "The new forms make you feel more human."

According to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, the new forms reflect an overall effort to make government more understandable and more accessible.

"There's a tendency in government to use big words and small print," Bergland said. "I'm trying to get that turned around — to use small words and big print — so people can understand what they read. The new forms are a good example of government responding to the people."

Agriculture department's Food and Nutrition Service, which administers the food stamp program nationally, handled redesign and field testing of the forms as part of the sweeping program reforms mandated by the Food Stamp Act of 1977. Previously, each state designed and printed its own forms. States are now required by law to use the new forms unless they obtain USDA's approval for deviations from them.

Annette Darrow, a food stamp caseworker for the Montgomery county social services in Rockville, says the new forms should save dollars for the American taxpayer by reducing error.

"The new forms list the kinds of income that households should report. Things like veterans benefits, social security, welfare, pensions, unemployment compensation, child-support, etc. In the past, some applicants simply didn't know that these benefits were counted as income, so they didn't report them. Sometimes they drew more stamps than they were entitled to."

"People also have more space to write in now," Annette added, "which is good for people with poor eyesight, like many of the elderly."

New forms use italics and other type faces to emphasize key words and phrases, and they are written in much plainer language.

For example, instead of asking for "name of head of household (last, first, middle)," as was required by the old form, the new form simply asks for "your name."

Information especially important to the applicant, such as what papers to bring for an interview, and penalty warnings for not following program rules, is presented in bold face type.

The forms have won recognition beyond program users, administrators and caseworkers. In late March, the Food and Nutrition Service was awarded a Certificate of Excellence for the forms by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, at its annual Communications Graphics Show in New York City. The food stamp forms were among 85 entries selected for the Certificates of Excellence out of over 2,000 entries. They were the first series of forms ever to be submitted to the competition.

Rotary District Governor Talks To Local Club

Robert S. Olson

Calling Rotary the "pioneer of the service clubs", District 558 Governor Robert Olson of Fergus Falls spoke on "Lighting Rotary's Darkest Avenue" at the Thief River Falls Rotary club Monday noon. Rotary celebrates its 75th anniversary in 1980.

"Rotary club activities improve their communities, aid youth, elevate business standards and further international friendships and understanding," he said. Expanding on the international theme of "Let Service Light the Way", Gov. Olson pointed out the Rotary service avenues of club, community, international and vocational service.

Thief River Falls Rotary club is one of 46 clubs in the district which includes North Dakota, half of Minnesota, part of Wisconsin and Ontario.

During his visit the governor conferred with club president Larry Belmont and other officers regarding club administration and plans for future activities. He stressed a project titled "Operation Aware", an activity directed at grade school youngsters to combat negative peer pressure. The program is meeting with favor in schools throughout the nation, he said.

Farmers Union Asks Extended Dairy Supports

Dairy price supports should be extended at a minimum of 80 per cent of parity for at least the next two years, Minnesota Farmers union assistant to the President Bob Rumpza told a U.S. Senate Agriculture sub-committee here recently.

Senate agriculture subcommittee on production, marketing and price stabilization held hearings on two bills which would maintain dairy support prices between 80 and 90 per cent of parity until September 30, 1981. Dairy supports have been at 80 per cent since 1977, but legislation mandating that level expired on September 30. Carter administration recently moved to maintain the 80 per cent of parity minimum, but the support price could drop to 75 per cent in the future, if Congress doesn't act to reestablish the 80 per cent minimum.

Consumers and producers alike would be served if the 80 per cent support level is continued, Rumpza said. "A look at the past three years, when milk prices were supported at 80 per cent of parity, will show that we have experienced supply and price stability. . .milk production in almost perfect balance with demand and consumer prices which have risen slower than the general inflation rate for food products," he said.

Rumpza further noted that the favorable supply and demand situation for milk over the past three years has "steadily reduced government outlays for dairy price support program purchases to the lowest levels since the early 1970's." He contrasted U.S. government outlays for dairy price supports — less than $130 million this year — with European government outlays, which will cost more than $4 billion for the purchase of nearly 20 per cent of the farm milk supply.

National Farmers Union policy, as drafted by member delegates from throughout the country, call for dairy price supports at 90 per cent of parity, Rumpza noted. However, he told the senators, since no legislation at the 90 per cent of parity level is currently being considered, Farmers Union supports the 80 per cent level legislation, "but we wish to note that they do not go as far as our members would like."

Project 20 Will Bring Increased Enforcement

Minnesota state patrol has embarked on an ambitious 28-month saturation enforcement program aimed at reducing the number of traffic violators beginning last Monday, according to state patrol chief Roger Ledding, Minnesota department of public safety.

Project's first location will be on U.S. Highway 2 between Duluth and Bemidji. A line patrol comprised of 11 troopers will be spaced approximately 10 miles apart running 50 miles either side of Grand Rapids from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on October 29 to November 2, 1979.

Each trooper will utilize one of the most sophisticated radar instruments KR-10, and their efforts will be supported by helicopters and fixed wing aircraft.

"The program, 'Project 20,' is a total enforcement effort but major emphasis is being placed on enforcement of the 55 mph National Highway speed limit," said deputy assistant chief Albert Gollas. "Our goal is to stimulate greater, long-term, voluntary compliance that has resulted from the so-called 'crack down' efforts of previous short-term spot projects."

During the 28 month duration, the saturation enforcement program will progress throughout the state and be located along most Interstate and U.S. highways where the majority of Minnesota's accidents occur.

U.S. Highway 2 was chosen as the first location based on recent DPS traffic statistics indicating an increase of motor vehicle accidents and deaths.

The second site of Project 20 will be I-94 between Junction 494 and Alexandria. Actual speed surveys will serve as the primary criteria for selecting future locations.

"Project 20 was funded by a $1.2 million grant from the U.S. department of transportation, and made possible the hiring of 20 new troopers who will man the project. The "new hires" bring the total number of troopers to 524. At the conclusion of the saturation effort the 20 troopers will receive new assignments filling vacancies of troopers retiring during the next 28 months and bringing the total number of troopers back to 504.

One veteran trooper, Sgt. James Lane of the Duluth area, and 10 first year troopers volunteered to be among the first of 20 troopers needed to conduct the project. An additional 10 troopers will join the project on March 1, 1980, after completion of Trooper Candidate School and eight weeks of on-the-job training.

"In addition to the long-range positive effects of gaining motorist compliance with the 55 m.p.h. said Gollas, "a second combined goal is to conserve energy and to insure that federal funding continues unhindered by possible sanctions."

Throughout the course of the project, a continuous speed monitoring program will be conducted to determine the effectiveness of the speed enforcement effort during the actual saturation and later times to evaluate the lasting effects.

Herber Named Diplomate In Family Practice

Dr. Leo Herber of Thief River Falls has been named a diplomate of the American board of family practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. He is now certified in the medical specialty of family practice.

The intensive two-day written examination is designed to prove the candidate's ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice. ABFP diplomates also must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years.

Grain, Oilseed Shipping Total Down In 1979

Shipments from Meinnesota terminal elevators through September this year totaled an estimated 12,512,108 tons of grain and oilseeds with a farm value of over $1.4 billion, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin announced recently.

Volume of grain and oilseed exports was almost 2.3 million tons or 15 per cent below that for the same nine months of 1978 due primarily to the prolonged labor dispute that shut down Duluth-Superior port terminal elevators.

Minnesota metropolitan and Mississippi river terminal elevators reported a 10 per cent increase in the volume of grain and oilseeds shipped this year, but Duluth port's exports fell 34 per cent below the same January through September period of 1978.

Cumulative grain movement totals at the end of September also showed a substantial backlog of commodities in Minnesota terminal elevators due to the combination of the port strike and the limited capacity of available export transportation resources, Commissioner Seetin observed. Receipts exceeded shipments by 2.5 million tons.

Receipts of the terminal elevators for the first nine months totaled over 15 million tons. That was a 3 per cent increase over last year. Metropolitan and river terminals showed a 38 per cent increase in receipts, but Duluth port reported a 29 per cent drop.

September figures showed the crippling impact of the strike at Duluth port. Receipts were only 360,131 tons compared to 1,276,770 tons for that month last year, or compared to the record 1,640,914 tons received by metro and river terminal elevators. Duluth elevators shipped 473,448 tons during September, but that was 64 per cent below a year ago.

Estimated farm values of the volumes shipped out of the Minnesota terminal areas this January through September was $860.5 million for metro and river elevators and $574.5 million for Duluth elevators.

Commissioner Seetin said that had Duluth port been able to match the export movement of Minnesota's metropolitan and river terminal elevators during the first nine months of 1979, an additional 2.5 million tons of grain and oilseeds would have moved and generated an additional $380 million in gross farm income.

Friday Most Dangerous Day For Accidents

If you are driving on a trunk highway at 4 p.m. on a typical Friday enjoying a lovely sunny afternoon, you may not be as safe as you think, according to the latest statistics from the office of traffic safety, Minnesota department of public safety.

Based on information derived from 1978 Minnesota accident reports submitted by citizens and law enforcement agencies on crashes involving death, personal injury or property damages of $300 or more, the "typical" accident occurs during daylight hours when weather conditions are clear, the road surface is dry and a motorist is driving on a trunk highway.

"Motor Vehicle Crash Facts" indicates that more accidents occur on Friday between 3 and 6 p.m. than any other day and time. Of the 118,833 crashes that occurred during 1978, 22,840 happened on Fridays. However, more deaths occurred late Saturday night-Sunday morning. The 1978 death toll was 980, 61 deaths occurring between the hours of midnight Saturday and 2 a.m. Sunday.

"Crash Facts" also indicated that the number one contributing factor in all types of crashes was "driver inattention-distraction" followed by "failure to yield the right-of-way" and "illegal or unsafe speed".

Collision with another motor vehicle was the most common type of crash for a total of 77,755 crashes.

Both males and females in the 15-19 age group received more injuries than any other age group.

Male drivers aged 25-34 were involved in 241 fatal crashes, aged 20-24 were involved in 228 fatal crashes, and aged 15-19 were involved in 189 fatal crashes. Of the 705 males killed during 1978, males aged 15-34 accounted for 442 of the fatalities.

Female drivers aged 15-19 were involved in 54 fatal crashes, aged 25-34 were involved in 42 fatal crashes, and aged 20-24 were involved in 39 fatal crashes. Of the 275 females killed during 1978, females aged 15-34 accounted for 139 of the fatalities.

According to "Crash Facts" the safest time to be on the road is at 5 a.m. Worst time to be on the road is between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m., peaking at 4 p.m.

Examination of the 1978 crash data shows that three people were killed each day, 138 people were injured each day, 326 accidents occurred each day, one pedestrian was killed every three days, one motorcyclist was killed every two days (April-November), one bicyclist was killed every 11 days (April-November), and the economic loss due to traffic accidents amounted to $1,079,036 each day.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear son, Bud McEnelly who passed away Nov. 3, 1978.
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much.
His memory is a keepsake
With which we will never part,
And we will always have him,
Very deep within our hearts.
Sadly missed by his mother, Selma Anderson and his sister Betty Wold. 1186p

Dairy Chores Tone Body, Slow Aging

You don't have to jog five miles each day or become a marathon runner to stay in shape. In fact, ordinary activities like showering, dressing and cleaning can play an important part in tuning up aging muscles if the movements are exaggerated and labor-saving machines are left to gather dust.

Taking advantage of these opportunities is important to all ages, particularly for older persons who may not have full-time jobs to keep them moving, says Vickie Rosenthal, occupational therapist.

"Regular exercise plays an important part in slowing down the aging process. It sharpens the efficiency of the various systems in the body such as the circulatory and nervous system," she said. "We could all benefit if we used daily chores as exercise opportunities."

Rosenthal cautions persons with special health problems to check with their doctors about what kind of exercise is appropriate for them.

She also warns against overworking muscles. "Exercising is like getting a sun tan — you must build gradually," she said. "If you hurt, you've overdone it."

Before a person gets up in the morning, doing several gentle exercises in bed will help stretch muscles that have shortened during sleep. This can be done by lying on your back with the legs bent and gently drawing one knee toward the chest while raising your head. Do this several times with each leg.

Taking a shower is another opportunity to loosen and exercise muscles, Rosenthal says. "Standing under the warm water, move your shoulders up and down and then roll them from side to side. Bend slowly sidewise. Reach up and adjust the shower head, even if it doesn't need it," she said. "Wash your legs twice since the gentle forward bend is good."

Arm and shoulder joints benefit from a good towel drying after the shower. The "torso twist" can be done by rotating the body with the towel movement when drying the middle and lower back.

Because different kinds of clothing require different motions to put on, Rosenthal calls dressing "one of the built-in exercises in life." Standing to put on stockings and underwear improves balance and strengthens leg muscles. Buttoning shirts and blouses keeps finger joints flexible; pull-on clothing stretches arm and shoulder muscles.

Because labor-saving devices have replaced many activities that used to help keep people in shape, less reliance on them can pay dividends to the body. Hanging laundry instead of using a dryer will give your body needed bending and stretching. Using a push mower rather than a power mower fuels your body, not the gas tank.

Squeezing orange juice, kneading bread dough, making salads from scratch and beating batters by hand will help keep your arms and hands flexible. Vacuuming, cleaning ceilings and walls, washing windows and floors and scrubbing tubs will benefit you, not just your home.

Even watching television doesn't have to be a time of complete inactivity. Ankle and wrist turns can be done at intervals to keep joints flexible. Some people do calisthenics and stretching exercises while watching television or listening to music.

An important concept to keep in mind (one of the basic exercise rules to avoid overworking a specific muscle group according to Rosenthal) is that any constant motion should be alternated with rest periods. For example, it's a good idea, when doing yard work, to use a small basket for weeds and clippings and to carry it often to the compost pile.

Walk as much as possible is Rosenthal's advice. You can burn the same amount of energy (calories) walking as you do jogging the same distance, she said.

If you use a car to go shopping, park away from the door for extra walking time. If you're early for the bus, walk to the next stop. During the winter, go to an indoor shopping mall and walk. All elevators must by law have stairs located near them. Use the stairs for one or two flights. "If you haven't climbed for a long time, start slowly and watch yourself. If you get out of breath easily, check with your doctor," Rosenthal cautioned.

The suggestions all sound like work and they are, she said. "The point is that a daily dose of activity is one of the best prescriptions available for helping us feel better and adding vitality and energy to our lives."

ARRANGING HIS OFFICE in the day-night unit of Northwestern hospital has been a current task for Rev. Paul Bortnem, the first staff chaplain to serve the hospital. be conducted each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon on a fee basis in relation to ability to pay. This Lutheran Social services phase of the work will involve counseling on marriage and family, crisis, grief, supportive and other types of problems. Appointments for counseling may be made by calling Karen Hodge at 681-4240, extension 335.

"In other areas of chaplaincy service, I would prefer that patients, families, nurses or doctors contact me directly at extension 388," Rev. Bortnem said. "I expect to spend several months doing a lot of listening before I go very deeply into development of any sort of structured program."

The chaplain's office will be in Room 3B in the hospital's day-night unit and door will be marked "chaplain". The room next door has been designated as a family room and is furnished for people who desire a quiet or private time or who are waiting because of an emergency or crisis involving hospital patients.

Chaplain Bortnem expects to become involved in the ministerial association and to have weekly luncheons with clergymen or other individuals in the community to discuss community needs and the role of the pastoral services department.

Chaplain Bortnem comes to Thief River Falls from Minneapolis where he has been resident chaplain at North Memorial medical center for the past two years. From September of 1978 to October 1 of this year he was supervisor-in-training in the oncology specialty, dealing with cancer patients. He worked with a Share and Care group formed among cancer patients and their families and with a Grief Growth group involving people who had lost someone close through death.

Rev. Bortnem earned a BA degree from Augustana college at Sioux Falls, S.D., and a BD degree from Luther Theological seminary in St. Paul. He was ordained at Lake Campbell Lutheran church at Volga, S.D., and interned at Bethel Lutheran church and the North Dakota school of science at Wahpeton. He served churches at Foremost and Provost, Alberta, Canada from July of 1968 through July of 1977.

Rev. Bortnem and his wife Rosine, who is from the Karlstad area, have two children, 10-year-old Peter and nine-year-old Rebekah. His family will join him here when housing has been arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Stucy visited a week ago Sunday at their brother-in-law's home Milton Sanndmark of Grygla.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Gustafson stopped over on Wednesday to visit with the Malcolm Stucys.

Otella Mandt from Madison, Wisc. arrived Saturday at son Lyles home to attend the wedding for Knutson and Flategard and to spent some time visiting relatives and friends here.

The Merle Lundeen's purchased the Clark Ward farm, formerly the Qualley old home place where Mr. and Mrs. Merald Halvorson have lived for several years. The family is busy cleaning, ditching and getting the fields ready for next years crop. The community is very grateful that a local farmer purchased the land a great asset to our Deer Park township. Congratulations.

HOLT . . .

Clara and Henry Gronvold were Sunday dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hienze of Thief River Falls.

STRANDQUIST . . .

Sarah Wikstrom and Delphine Braff visited at the Roy Stennes home Sunday afternoon.

Eleanor Johnson of Karlstad, Elsie Lefrooth, Pearl and Betsy Thompson attended a women's rally at the Assemblies of God church in Thief River Falls on Saturday.

Pens of Power

"Wow . . . what a story." "Now, there's a real article." So go our reactions to writing that stimulates. But, before a word is written, a good writer must first have something to say and know how best to say it.

Poe, Shakespeare and Margaret Mitchell . . . they had something in common . . . pens of power. They had the rare gift of being able to transport readers into another world of beauty, drama, or history itself. Passing years cannot dim the luster of their immortal works.

Yet, long before the days of these great authors, four other writers spoke to a needy world through their pens. They wrote about a man from Nazareth whose life changed the world. Divinely inspired, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John still testify today to the truth of the risen Savior.

Share the experience of the Holy Word of God this Sunday.

More On Lotteries

Frequently we are asked to give publicity on raffles or other fund-raising events which fall into the category of lotteries. We must refuse those requests, often at the expense of ridicule or anger by the promoters. Here is what the Grand Rapids Herald-Review said by way of explanation in a recent editorial:

This newspaper frequently receives requests for assistance promoting lotteries through its advertising and news columns.

Most of the time, the sponsors are solid community organizations, striving to raise money for important purposes. They are not fly by night promoters who will leave with the money.

We'd like to help them. But we can't.

Law on lotteries is clear, as far as the postal service is concerned. As far back as 1827, postmasters and their assistants were barred from selling lottery tickets, and in 1868, as the anti-lottery sentiment grew stronger, Congress decided to prohibit the depositing in any post office of letters or circulars concerning "lotteries, so-called gift concerts or other similar enterprises offering prizes of any kind on any pretext whatever."

What is a lottery? It is a scheme where a consideration is offered for a prize that is dependent upon chance. There are three elements — consideration, prize and chance, and all three must be present to have a lottery. The consideration is the charge or "donation" for a ticket, or it could even be the coupon or boxtop which must accompany the entry.

The prize, of course, is whatever is offered the winner. And chance is present in any drawing or in bingo — a word we're not even supposed to use in a newspaper which depends upon the mails for much of its delivery.

A United States Post Office department brochure makes the situation clear:

"A lottery advertisement is non-mailable even though it does not give the full story of the scheme's operation. Announcements of bingo games sometimes say nothing more than games, or party, or entertainment, or some other word or designation — for example, a dollar sign — which is understood by the reader to give notice that the games, of chance will be played at the time and place noted. Any of these references would be non-mailable."

Section 1302 of title 18, U.S. Code, provides further that the mails "shall not be used to send newspapers containing any list of the prizes drawn or awarded by means of any such lottery." This means it is not permitted to mail the results of the lottery, telling who won or how much."

It should also be noted that the postal law provides no exception for lotteries conducted by churches, fraternal groups or other worthy organizations; nor does it exempt games of chance which are legal under state law.

We can't urge citizens to obey the law through our news and editorial columns all year and then shrug it aside to promote or report on lotteries. The law is clear. Our hands are tied. Organizations which use lotteries as a means of raising funds simply can't expect this newspaper to provide publicity.

Theory vs. Reality

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

The recent nuclear incidents occurring at Three Mile Island and Prairie Island predictably provoked a public outpouring of concern over the environmental risks of nuclear energy. Those risks are real and a threat to the public health does most certainly exist. But the mystique that cloaks the nuclear industry and radioactivity in general has, apparently, blinded many of us as to the real threats to the environment posed by true sources of conventional pollution.

Certainly, the operation of a nuclear reactor produces potentially hazardous substances that, if not contained, can cause severe and irreversible damage to the environment. But the real issue to be dealt with here is not the existence of the pollution threat, but the propensity to contain that threat exhibited by power producers and industrialists.

Clearly, the nuclear threat is a growing one. With each passing day, more toxic substances are formed during the reaction process that produces electricity in a nuclear reactor. To date, these substances have been contained with a great deal of care and caution exhibited by organizations charged with the duty of containment. Only the federal government is guilty of procrastination in this matter as time after time, proposals for testing of new and more permanent methods of storing of nuclear waste are debated and discarded.

The coal insustry, however, is guilty of a crime far worse than that of the nuclear industry. Here, containment of the pollution threat is not accomplished and the industry is not particuarly excited about accelerating their efforts. Instead, they are content to limp along, simply complying with admittedly weak federal and state regulations regarding tolerable emissions levels from coal burning facilities.

Up until now, the nuclear debate has been a theoretical one hinging on forecasts and predictions regarding the safe use of nuclear energy and the possibility of accidents. Now, we propose to inject reality into the debate. We do not favor the expansion of nuclear energy unless and until a more satisfactory method of by product containment can be developed and put into use. We do favor the continued operation of nuclear facilities as they exist with an emphasis on development of new waste disposal methods to control toxic substances produced by the reactor.

The reality of the nuclear power industry, stated simply, shows us that very little environmental threat exists due to the operation of a nuclear facility. This is not theoretical, but simply based on the past record of safe operation. We do not dispute that serious damage could result from a nuclear accident. Anything can happen, but as of yet, that catstrophe has not occurred.

The matter of the coal fired generating facility is another story altogether. True, they do not possess the potential for nuclear mishap that reactors do. But the record speaks clearly here. Coal is a dirty fuel. As it burns, it releases sulfur and nitrogen oxides into the atmosphere. Even the most elaborate scrubbing devices are not capable of eliminating these wastes. A very serious pollution threat exists from these coal facilities. Coal plants do not simply pollute the nearby area. The oxides spoken of earlier are swept up into the weather systems and transported, perhaps for miles, before being released with rain or snow. The nitrogen and sulfur oxides, when precipitated out, produce a relatively new phenomenon — acid rain. The acid is in the form of sulfuric and nitric acid and the rain itself can be as acid as vinegar.

The results are already clearly seen throughout the world. As the acid rain falls, it changes the acidity levels of soil and lakes. In Scandinavia, alone, an estimated 5,000 lakes are no longer capable of supporting aquatic life due to acidity. In the United States, the Adirondack Mountain lakes are seriously damaged already and the northern Boundary Waters Canoe Area is threatened with acid level that now approaches that level where life may no longer be sustained.

The point is this, the pollution threat is real from coal burning facilities. The sky is literally raining acid already. If and when these acid rains concentrate enough to reach croplands, food production may be seriously affected.

Nuclear power is a presumed threat. No doubt, it is real, but it has yet to manifest itself in a manner that even approaches the severity of the acid rain situation.

As a country, we sould be extremely cautious with our use of nuclear energy due to the possible damage to the environment associated with radiation. In addition, we must continue to regard nuclear power as dangerous and requiring constant monitoring by official personnel not affiliated with the utilities.

But the real, immediate threat is not a nuclear threat, but an environmental threat that could have ramifications worldwide if it hasn't already. Acid rain is not a myth or a prediction. It is real, it is here, and it has destroyed thousands of lakes in this country and Scandinavia already. Our protests should be directed first, against the real threat, and second, against the perceived or potential threat. The urgency of the situation mandates it.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Not too long ago, at the Central Minnesota Knights of Columbus Communion Breakfast, I met Father Ferdinant Schreifels, O.S.B., of St. Martin's Church in St. Martin. His first question voiced the thoughts of a lot of people: "What does the Pope look like to you?"

Based on my two meetings with the Pope, I said that he looks like a lot of the men in Holdingford. Maybe America fell in love with Pope John Paul II because of his down-to-earth quality and character.

By now, everyone has an opinion of what the Pope said on his trip to the United States. More important than what he said, though, is how he said it. Words like "loving," "humorous" and "outreaching" are typical of the words and style he chose to bring his message to America.

My wife Penny and I waited with congressmen and senators for two hours to greet the Pope at the White House. When the Pope arrived, he reminded Senator Ed Muskie (the only other Polish senator besides me) that as Karol Cardinal Wojtyla, Archbishop of Krakow, the Pope had been made to wait for more than an hour in 1968 to see Senator Muskie.

On Sunday, the second day of Pope John Paul's visit to Washington, my son David and I shivered through a four-hour wait and a two-hour mass on the Capitol Mall. But it was worth every minute to hear the message of the value of the individually-created human being instilled with a unique human spirit and provided in every case with two instruments designed to foster that spirit: the family and the government, the former being by far the more important.

I also was pleased that the Pope told those of us in government service of the objective of government and warned us not to place roadblocks in the way of the family.

President Carter heard the Pope's message and repeated it in his Oct. 15 speech on the family to the 65th annual convention of the National Conference of Catholic Charities. He drew enthusiastic and warm applause when he promised to hold sessions of the upcoming White House Conference on Families in several cities. One of those sessions is scheduled for next summer in the Twin Cities. More information will be available later.

I hope the conference doesn't become a forum for those who urge more government rather than less in developing the role of the family. Government should support the family, but we must never allow it to replace the family.

In the same vein, I am sympathetic to the people in St. Cloud who are fighting a government-financed program to serve breakfasts in public elementary schools. According to opponents (and reinforced by the program planners), the idea is to relieve parents from the responsibility of serving breakfasts to their children. It's an important and necessary service of government to serve hot meals to children who, because of family income, would otherwise go without. But it's absolutely wrong to spend thousands of taxpayers' dollars for a government program designed to replace parental duties and the family structure.

I had a very pleasant surprise, recently, when I spotted 94-year-old Madaline Murray of Bird Island, Minn., in the Senate visitors gallery. Madaline's husband Frank represented Renville County in the Minnesota Senate in the early 1900s.

Although Madaline has traveled the world, this was her first trip to Washington — a special treat from grandson Bob Gallivan and his wife.

Madaline has spent most of her life in public service. Beginning in 1910 with the Bird Island Ladies Improvement Society, she has worked for the American Red Cross, the Christmas Seal Drive and has been a long-time member of the Minnesota League of Women Voters. In 1954 she received the Bronze Medal from the National Tuberculosis Association for 50 years of service to her community and state.

October 12 was the 50th birthday of the South St. Paul law firm of Harold Stassen, Elmer Ryan, Harold LeVander and Fallon Kelly. Penny and I had a great afternoon at the reception meeting Dakota County area friends. . .The next day, we helped St. Paul celebrate its 125th birthday by cutting — and eating — the world's largest birthday cake. . .After St. Paul's bash, we headed up to St. John's University to honor Faribault native Fran Miller, who was named the outstanding graduate of St. John's. Fran now lives in Scottsdale, Arizona, where he is executive director of the American Compensation Association.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

People will argue endlessly about the federal government, but on one point more and more Americans now agree: Zealous bureaucrats seldom allow anything—and least of all logic—to dissuade them that they are right and they have a mission to save us from ourselves. It's those Washington experts, for instance, who believe we should ban saccharin and legalize marijuana . . . and who tell us the best way to reduce the federal deficit is to increase the deficit—by spending more money.

Trying to keep track of all these inconsistencies will make your head spin unless you remember that self-preservation motivates much of what the bureaucracy does. And that is why many federal programs feature these three common elements: First, the program wasts large sums of taxpayers' money; second, it seriously aggravates the very problem it was supposed to solve, and third, those running it either refuse to accept responsibility or answer in essence, "We have failed; let us continue."

As a specific example, look at OSHA, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, established in 1971 to cut down on employee injuries and illnesses. We need only examine OSHA's budget to see that we are right on track. The agency's spending has shot up more than 382 per cent in the past seven years. This expansion has required industry to spend more than $25 billion in efforts to comply with the regulations. These added costs must ultimately be absorbed by consumers in the form of higher prices.

Well, what about OSHA's results? Has this massive regulatory effort at least translated into better protection for American workers? Sorry, but predictably the results have not been positive, nor even neutral; they have been negative. OSHA has not only failed to reduce serious injuries and fatalities, but the number and severity of each have sharply increased in recent years.

Without so much as a blush, OSHA has a ready defense for both its bloated budget and its empty record. First, we're told the agency's responsibility to protect workers logically entitles it to receive and spend huge annual budget increases funded by taxpayers. But then we're told the agency cannot be held responsible for what it does, since employers are responsible for safety. OSHA wants it both ways, and its supporters defend it by claiming the safety problem woulld be much worse if OSHA did not exist.

Oh really? OSHA-funded research attributes 75 per cent of all accidents to "behavioral problems or momentary (nonpersistent) hazardous conditions." That conclusion was confirmed by a California Department of Industrial Relations' study which found 82 per cent of all occupational accidents could never be prevented by governmental inspection.

Also, how does one explain that during the 25-year periord before OSHA's creation in 1971—when industry was handling safety and health concerns itself—the rate of serious injuries and fatalities steadily declined? Only after the creation of OSHA did this trend reverse and begin climbing.

Business managers do and should care about protecting their employees. Many enjoy personal friendships. All know it is in their interest to avoid accidents that trigger costly workmen's compensation and necessitate new hiring at far greater expense than preventive health and safety programs. But business must spend billions of dollars each year filling out regulatory forms in duplicate, triplicate and quadruplicate rather than investing in new and safer plants and equipment. I believe it is no coincidence that the rise in accidents corresponds with a decline in investment.

Safety dollars are a vitally important expenditure, so let's stop throwing them away. Let's stop giving a blank check to bureaucrats so preoccupied with job preservation. Robert Ringer, author of Restoring the American Dream, sums it up well: "The regulatory game is a game of destruction. It is imperative that the bureaucratic regulators find problems, even if they do not exist. If problems were solved and new problems could not be found, they would be out of a job. The essence of governmental policy is: 'You build a better mousetrap and we'll build a bigger mouse.'"

Gift Ideas THEN AND NOW

Searching for unusual gift ideas is hardly a new concern.

In fact, as far back as ancient times, the Roman Emperor Nero celebrated certain special occasions by literally showering his guests with precious stones. On cue, the gems were dropped from baskets hidden in the ceiling of his banquet room.

When it comes to choosing a unique gift that suits today's lifestyle, American Express can help you go down in history.

Using the company's "Be My Guest" Restaurant Gift Certificate service — offered exclusively to Cardmembers at no additional cost — you can treat someone to a "night on the town" even if you are miles away. The certificates are honored in any restaurant or nightclub in the U.S., its possessions or Canada that accepts the American Express Card.

Here's how the service works.

You, the Cardmember, may select the place or let your guest choose a favorite spot. You can set a dollar limit, the number of guests or both. The dinner/entertainment check — including tax and tip, will be charged to your account. The amount will appear on your regular billing statement, but not until the certificate has been used.

"Be My Guest" Restaurant Gift Certificates are a perfect way to celebrate birthdays, anniversaries, holidays. They also provide a nice way to say "thank you" to business associates.

You can request "Be My Guest" certificates by calling the toll-free or customer service number on your American Express billing statement or by writing to: American Express Company, Box 927, Dept. PA/NAP, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers,

Often I see newspaper articles about children with cancer. Usually they are very sad — and frightening when you think it could happen to your own child.

For example, when one of my children complained of a headache off and on for a few days, I began worrying about brain tumors. Recently, my 10-year-old said that her leg ached at night, and this lasted for almost two weeks. I was afraid she might have bone cancer. I would appreciate having some concrete information about cancer in children.

Worrying Mother

Dear Worrying Mother:

Perhaps some statistics will ease your mind. Reports from the National Institutes of Health indicate that children in the U.S. run a much lower risk of death from cancer than from accidents.

In 1979 only twelve children in 100,000 under the age of 15 are likely to develop cancer. Those are pretty good odds, and the cancers that tend to occur are often curable. For example, eye tumors have a cure rate of up to 84 per cent.

Also, research advances plus parents and doctors who are alert to early symptoms are making long-term control of cancer in children a reality. More than 75 per cent of children who have cancer in the U.S. are being effectively treated.

Many parents, like you, worry about their children's health. This is natural. And it is important to investigate any abnormal signs or symptoms for which there is no obvious cause.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My doctor's nurse just called to tell me I should come in for another pap smear in six months because the smear taken last week is Class 2. What does this mean? How many classes of pap smears are there? How is the class determined? Does this mean I might have cancer?

Jan T.

Dear Jan T.:

During a pelvic exam, your doctor takes a pap smear by collecting cells from the cervix with a cottom swab or a flat stick. These cells then are placed on a slide and studied under a microscope. By examining the cells, a pathologist can determine whether they are normal or abnormal

All pap smears are assigned a classification ranging from 1 to 5. Cancer Medicine lists the following definitions for pap smear classes:

Class 1: Smear containing only normal cells.

Class 2: Smear containing cells having some unusual features, but none suggestive of a malignancy.

Class 3: Smear containing cells having abnormal features suggestive of but not definite for malignant cells.

Class 4: Smear containing malignant cells.

Class 5: Smear containing malignant cells more bizzare than Class 4.

So, you can see that not all abnormal pap smears indicate cancer. A pap smear also can detect infections or reveal changes in cells that can lead to cancer later. Your Class 2 pap smear does not indicate cancer.

Every woman over age 18 should have routine annual or semi-annual pap smears. This simple, painless and inexpensive test helps doctors detect cancer in its earliest stage while the disease is still virtually 100 per cent curable.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Are there any health hazards associated with fiberglass?

Larry

Dear Larry:

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health conducted a study of death among workers exposed to airborne glass fibers. No increased incidence of lung cancer was noted; however, there was a high rate of other respiratory diseases among fibrous glass workers. Also, fiberglass can cause irritation of the skin, eyes and other mucus membranes. People working with fiberglass, either in the home or in industry, should wear protective gear which will keep the fiberglass of the skin and from being inhaled.

For further information, you may write to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857; or call the Consumer Product Safety Commission's toll-free number, 1-800-638-8326.

Dear Cancer Answers:

How effective is acupuncture in helping people stop smoking?

P.R.

Dear P.R.:

Because acupuncture is a relatively recent development in this country, there have been few studies on its use as a smoking cessation technique. A 1975 study conducted in France, however, reported somewhat promising success rates. Ear acupuncture, used previously in treating morphine addiction, was tested on 300 subjects as an anti-smoking treatment. After a six-week period, it was reported that 50 per cent of the subjects had stopped smoking completely, that 25 per cent (mostly women) had not responded to the treatment, and that 25 per cent had reduced their cigarette consumption. Subjects in the French study also reported that cigarettes became distasteful, and their desire to smoke was forgotten.+

Dear Cancer Answers:

What does precancerous mean? Does something that is precancerous always turn into cancer? What conditions are considered precancerous? What should be done about them?

L.T.

Dear L.T.:

A precancerous condition is one that is not presently invasive cancer, but may become cancerous if left untreated.

For example, a person may have a precancerous polyp of the colon — a small growth attached by a slender stalk to the inside of the intestine. This means the polyp has only minimal signs of cancerous changes on its surface. In such cases, removal of the polyp is all that is necessary and the risk of it coming back is negligible.

Another typical condition is a common noncancerous skin problem called actinic keratosis (red, rough, scaley areas of skin that develop, usually on the face, neck of hands.) It does not always turn into cancer, but it should be examined regularly by a doctor.

Also, the cervix (the opening of the uterus) is sometimes a site of precancerous changes. These changes are easily found with regular pelvic examinations and Pap tests. Some changes may simply require frequent checking while others may involve surgery, depending upon the severity of the problem and the age of the patient.

While there are other conditions that could be labeled "precancerous," it is safest to simply report any unusual changes that persist for more than two weeks to your doctor. He can best determine if further follow-up is necessary.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I am a nursing mother. During the month's when I am breast-feeding my baby, how do I perform an effective breast self-examination? How can I distinguish between abnormal growths and lumps caused by milk and milk ducts?

A.C.B.

Dear A.C.B.:

Breast self-examination is more difficult for mothers who are nursing their babies because the breast tissue becomes very dense — but they should continue the practice anyway. Even though women in their child-bearing years are not as likely to get breast cancer as older women, it's a good idea to make breast self-examination a regular habit once you have started it.

When you examine your breast, you should look for a change in one portion of the breast that differs from the changes taking place throughout both breasts as a result of nursing. If you discover a well-defined lump that is unlike any other area of your breast tissue, or if one spot seems thicker than the others — and if this persists for more than a week or so — consult your doctor about it.

As you practice self-examination—throughout the period of breast-feeding, you will become more familiar with the kind of "lumpiness" that is natural in nursing mothers. Then, if a different kind of lump appears, you are more likely to be able to identify it and have it checked by your physician.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I am a woman in my 30's. I have had numerous bladder infections in the past and they are getting harder to control. During the past two years, I've had several cystoscopies of the bladder which have revealed ulcers and other unexplainable sores. Needless to say, I fear cancer of the bladder. Could this problem cause cancer, or is it possible that I have bladder cancer? How would this be diagnosed?

Miss T.W.

Dear Miss T.W.:

The symptoms you describe are probably due to inflammation or infection of the bladder, and not cancer. However, you should continue to have regular medical checkups to exclude the possibility of bladder cancer. Your urologist (or family physician) seems to be keeping close track of your condition, judging from your letter.

Diagnostic studies for bladder cancer include actual examination of the bladder with a thin, lighted tube (cystoscopy), biopsy examination of a piece of the bladder tissue, and microscopic study of the urine for the presence of cancer cells sloughed off by the bladder.

It may reassure you to know that bladder cancer accounts for less than 5 per cent of all cancers. Also, it tends to strike persons much older than you — being most common in the 50-70 age group. Moreover, three of every four bladder cancer patients are men.

Inflammation and infection of the bladder are relatively common in women your age. But where cancer is concerned, no risk is worth taking. Talk to your physician about having diagnostic tests at appropriate intervals that will exclude the possibility of cancer.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Several members of my family have died with cancer, including my aunt and my mother. They left me some of their belongings, including bedding that can't be washed without damaging it. I have two questions. First, is cancer catching? I am wondering whether cancer could be passed to another person through personal belongings such as this. Second, how important is it that the rest of the family (my brother and sisters) have checkups? We are in our 50s and 60s.

Regular Reader

Dear Regular Reader:

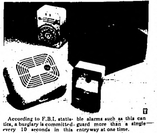
Cancer researchers are not certain what causes cancer, but a number of factors probably contribute. At this point, no evidence has been found to suggest that living in the same household with a cancer patient, sharing his or her possessions, or even being physically intimate over a long period of time will increase a person's chances of getting cancer. In short, researchers have been unable to demonstrate that cancer is "catching" among human beings.

However, some families do seem more prone to cancer than others. Apparently, a susceptibility to cancer can be "inherited" — but other factors must usually come into play, as well.

Since your letter indicated that several members of your family have had cancer, it is very important that the rest of you have regular checkups. Most cancers are curable when caught in the early stages.

Hints For Homeowners

PROTECTING YOUR PROPERTY



According to F.B.I. statistics, a burglary is committed every 10 seconds in this country. And of the goods stolen during these crimes, less than five per cent are ever returned to their owner.

What can you do to help protect your family and your property? Many law enforcement professionals suggest the installation of home security devices. A recent National Burglar and Fire Alarm Association report, for example, found that 25,000 burglars and arsonists were apprehended during 1977 because of home alarms.

The portable burglar alarm is one such device you may want to consider because it requires no actual installation and most of these alarms are affordable.

Zonar, new from General Electric, is a portable alarm, unobtrusively styled to look like a small radio. It is battery powered, so there's no need to fear cut wires or power failures. This small alarm works on the principle of ultrasonic sound. If an intruder should cross its sound waves—which extend up to 30 feet to guard doors and windows—a loud, pulsating alarm is set off. Portable alarms such as this can guard more than a single entryway at one time.

But there are other valuable aids to foil would-be intruders. A U.S. News & World Report finding indicates that most residential burglaries are committed by youngsters who live within six to 12 blocks of the house being robbed, rather than by professionals. Whether the intruder is a neighborhood youth or a pro, a twenty-four hour timer can help discourage potential entries by giving your home that "occupied" look.

Similarly smoke alarms, which sound a piercing horn when smoke enters the sensing chamber, can protect your family against the tradgedy of fire.

You also might consider equipping your home with a security light for home power failures. If your power goes out for any reason, a portable security-evacuation light will help lead your family out of darkness and into safety.

Do yourself and your family a favor say the safety experts at General Electric. In the long run, it pays to be prepared.

CRACKED WHEAT BREAD

Can you make bread in a food processor? The answer is yes, providing that your machine is powerful enough to manipulate heavy dough. This new kitchen machine mixes wet and dry ingredients with incredible speed.

The following recipe for Cracked Wheat Bread can be made by the conventional method. However, this recipe advises how to make it in a food processor.

CRACKED WHEAT BREAD

Makes 1 loaf

1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup cracked wheat
2 3/4 cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons margarine
1 package Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
3/4 cup warm water (105°F. - 115°F.)
Melted margarine
Coarse Salt

Food Processor Preparation

Scald milk; stir in cracked wheat. Cool to lukewarm.

Combine flour, sugar, salt and margarine in bowl; process with metal blade for 15 seconds. Add cracked wheat mixture; process for 5 seconds. Dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup warm water. Pour dissolved yeast through feed tube while processing. Continue processing while gradually adding remaining 1/4 cup warm water through tube until dough forms a ball on top of blade. (Entire 1/4 cup warm water may not be necessary.

Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 3 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. On lightly floured board form into a roll about 12 inches long. Place loaf on a greased baking sheet. Brush with melted margarine and sprinkle with coarse salt. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes.

Bake at 400°F. for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack.

SPORTS SHORTS

The World Championship Quarter Horse Show opening Nov. 13 in Oklahoma City, will feature 1,300 horses competing for a total of $160,000 in prizes.

To qualify for the show, sponsored by Copenhagen and Skoal, moist smokeless tobacco products of the U.S. Tobacco Company, a horse must receive an invitation by earning a predetermined number of points at American Quarter Horse Association-approved shows held between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31. Although the number of points needed to qualify were raised this year, the number of horses already qualified is up 16 percent compared to the same time last year.

An extra incentive to qualifiers is the Copenhagen/Skoal Superhorse Award. A custom-designed trophy and $5,000 in cash goes to the winning horse's owner. To be eligible, a horse must compete in a minimum of three World Championship classes. Any horse meeting this requirement will automatically become a candidate. The horse with the most points will be the winner.

Some 1,300 horses will compete for some $160,000.

The final performance of the show will be Nov. 17, with the annual World Championship Show Sale continuing on through Nov. 18. More than 600 head of quality American quarter horses are expected to be sold for a total in excess of a million dollars.

Those attending the World Show will have an opportunity to tour several famous quarter horse breeding farms. The tours will include seeing more than 50 top quarter horses and thoroughbred stallions in the industry.

You don't need a lot of horse sense to see that this quarter horse show should be a whole lot of fun.
